THE SEMINOLE OF FLORIDA

Continue on page 4.

When Tom Tiger's grave was robbed and his bones taken for exhibition, the outcry over the desecration was almost wholly a newspaper affair. The nearest settlers were unalarmed and the Indians indifferent.

Mr. Storter, a trader on the west coast of Florida, asked Johnny Osceola about Indian debtors.

"No pay one year all right, no pay two years, get Indians with big sticks in line, make him run between, hit him one time for every dollar."

"Little Billy, he pay me."

"Unca, he good Indian. He pay."

"Billy Tommy, he pay me, think so?"

"Dunno, lazy ojus, no hunt. Injun just like white man; some pay, some no pay; some good; some holowangus (bad) to hell."

"Think so bad Injun go Happy Hunting Ground?"

"No! Me think so, Injun after big sleep come to big river with pole across it, pole pretty slick, bad Injun fall off, alpat catch him. Good Injun get across pole to Happy Hunting Ground."

"You think white man Happy Hunting Ground like Injun?"

"Unca, Injun hunt alpat, sell him George Storter, same as here."

"You think Injun ever fight white man any more?"

"No use, white man all round, Injun in middle."

For slight attacks of sickness the Seminole often takes the medicine of the white man, but in serious cases he calls in the medicine man of his own people. I talked with Johnny Billy, medicine man, while he busied himself extinguishing a patent. Every hour or so he drained off a lot of his "bad blood," and in the intervals dosed him with sweet bay, sanke root and black root. He permitted his victim to eat turkey, but forbade deer, duck and fish.

Many traditions of the tribe have perished with recent deaths. Old Nancy, widow of the great Osceola, was a fountain of fact and fancy. Old Doctor, once chief, became garrulous in his after years, while Chief Motley as a nonagenarian, continued to tell with devilish detail, his "Lorna Doone" story of tossing white babies in the air and catching them on a big knife as they fell.

THE TYPICAL CAMP.

The language of the Seminoles is like that of the Creeks. Much of the construction is by building up from root-words.

Eche is tobacco; eche-polka, cigar; wakana-wathes, milk. There are of ten two words with the same meaning, probably to mislead aliens. Panewa and fightee both mean turkey; loskee and nokanosee mean old, and whyome and kehome whiskey.

The Seminoles live in widely separated small colonies, consisting usually of five or six families. A typical camp covers about an acre of dry land, and consists of four rather attractive buildings of poles and palmetto leaves. The roofs are large, high and extend to within four feet of the ground. The earthen floors is nearly covered with large tables, three feet high, on which the Indians eat and sleep. In the center of the camp, between the larger buildings, is the cooking camp, which consists of a circular shed. Under this is a camp fire from which logs of wood radiate like spokes from the hub of a wheel. As the ends of the logs burn away they are fed up to the center, where a tiny fire suffices for the simple requirements of the Indian. The arable soil about the camp is devoted chiefly to growing corn and sugar cane. An old cane mill and a still, crudely constructed from an iron pot with a wooden cover, a length of iron pipe and a box of water, utilizes the sugar cane in the way best appreciated by the Indian.

Under the influence of liquor the Seminole is quarrelsome, bites like a dog, fights with his companions and all the members of his family, but seldom with white men, whom he fears even when in his cups. Whenever these Indians carouse, one of the party keeps sober, to look after the others. The corn-dance of the Seminole is a carousal which begins with the new moon in June and lasts from ten to twenty days. The Indians walk around in a circle twenty or thirty yards in diameter, and talk until, at a signal of a scream, they jump up and down. The ordinary dance of the squaws consists of a pertunatory rising and sinking motion caused by bending the knees, and is utterly unattractive. Sometimes the younger girls vary the monotony of the performance by a rough-and-tumble wrestling match, which is exciting enough but exasperating, because the sight of a camera sends them to cover so quickly. Casualties are not uncommon during these festivities. I heard an Indian report to a trader an occurrence at a recent corn-dance.

"Doctor Jimmy, he kill squaw Jack Buster."

"Shoot her with a gun?" asked the trader.

"No, killed it with a stick. He drunk." Nothing was done by the tribe or the husband, but a few weeks later the measles and the medicine man killed both Doctor Jimmy and Jack Buster. On another festive occasion Jimmy Jumper, a half-negro member of the tribe, ran amuck and killed five Indians before he was shot down.

Mackillessee, the Indian name of a trader, whose store is in the Everglades, gives a Christmas dinner annually to the Seminoles which is usually attended by nearly half of the tribe. The Seminole who described the latest affair to me expressed himself idiomatically:

"Mackillessee—set 'em up—pie—sure Mike."

SEMINOLE MARRIAGE SEPARATION

Indian hospitality expresses itself negatively. You are expected to dip either your hand or a big wooden spoon into the family pot when you are hungry and no one helps or hinders you. The squaws are diffident or reserved, especially in the presence of male Indians, and it is sometimes embarrassing to speak to one or offer her a trinket without eliciting an indication that she is aware of your existence.

Marriage ties are lightly regarded, and a Seminole separation is as simple as a Dakota divorce. If a married couple come to blows, the non-resistant can light out, and Indian ethics are complied with when Tommy Osceola's squaw got drunk and pounded him, he didn't strike back, but left her and the camp and married a widow with six children, who was twenty years his senior. The tribe inflicted no additional punishment.

Numerically, the Seminole represents 5 per cent of the immigration of a single day through Ellis Island. Intellectually and economically, his percentage is negligible.

A speedy solution of the problem could be reached by letting him alone to be disposed of by disease, drunkenness and medicine men.

What humanity and moral obligations demand is quite another question.

feel much better and stronger from the use of St. Joseph's Liver Regulator, either liquid or powders. It removes toxic accumulations from the bowels, and thus gives Nature an opportunity to build up the system and insure good health. It is good for adults and children. A few doses will prove its efficacy. Druggists and general dealers sell it, liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powders, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box, five boxes for a dollar. Mrs. Scott Hodgkin, Howry avenue, DeLand, Fla., says: "I am very glad to acknowledge the great benefit I derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidneys did not do their work properly and the secretions were scanty and otherwise unnatural. My back ached constantly and I suffered intensely if I stooped or lifted. I felt miserable and some days was hardly able to get around. I finally learned of Doan's Pills and procured them. It required but the use of two boxes to relieve the backaches and I have not had a pain in my back since. "Cooney," a 14-year-old negro girl from Ormond, was also sent to the Reform school for one year.

Will Brown, colored, petit larceny, second offence, was given two years in the State pen.

Cromartie and Irvin Harris, stealing apples, were given six months on the county roads. Cromartie will join his pa, who is already there.

Rich Brazelle, a blind negro, plead guilty to dispensing booze. Sentence was suspended, and he bought a ticket for outside the State and left.
