us. As the majority of the Democrats of this county thought it best to draw party lines, any mistake we make this year will be more severely felt than at any other time. Let us all work together, and victory will reward us in the end.

THE "WOMAN'S RIGHTS" PARTY.
Belva A. Lockwood, Female Candidate for the Presidency.

The latest political sensation is the candidature of Belva A. Lockwood, of Washington for the Presidency. She has long been prominent as an agitator for "woman's rights," a temperance reformer, and a hard-working member of the Universal Peace Union and of the Arbitration League. She is a prominent lawyer and has been, since 1879, a member of the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. No stranger to notoriety previously, she is now known everywhere in the Union as the candidate of the Woman's National Rights party of California, for the Presidency of the United States. The party named have given reasons to the world why they prefer Mrs. Lockwood to other women eminent in agitation whether wife widow or spinster. It seems that Elizabeth Cady Stanton is "too old" for the honor; Susan B. Anthony "too much of a spinster;" Mary A. Livermore "too opposed to certain classes;" and Lucy Stone "too narrow." Belva A. Lockwood unhesitatingly accepts the nomination in a witty letter which she bids for votes in every direction and promises offices to her sex in the event of her election. As women cannot vote for the Presidency, and a woman cannot be President, the reason why the new "machine" has been constructed and set working is not plain to the blunt perceptions of men. Perhaps it is one more protest against "male tyranny."

The candidate is a native of New York State. She was born in 1820. When only fourteen years old she taught school. Four years later she married Uriah H. McNall, who died in 1853, leaving one daughter, now a literary person—Lara W. Ormes. Mrs. McNall assisted in the care of Union soldiers during the war. At its close she resumed teaching. In 1868 she married again, her second husband being Dr. E. Lockwood, now deceased. Mrs. Lockwood received the degree of A. M. from Syracuse University in 1870. Directing her attention to the study of the law, she graduated as L.L. B. at the National University, Washington, and in 1873 was admitted to practice in the District of Columbia. After a hard fight she succeeded in being received as a member of the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. This was in 1879, and is remarkable as a point gained by those who clamor for "equal rights" in the sexes.

The candidate for the Presidency is a well known figure in Washington. She rides the tricycle to perfection, and to her is due the distinction of having introduced that vehicle in the capital of the United States. Her candidature seems to be taken in earnest by some people, if it be true that she is already in receipt of attention from both female and male office-seekers. A Kentuckian makes her a promise of marriage conditional upon her success. This enterprising individual expresses his perfect willingness to be "boss of the White House."

The great public are indebted to Mrs. Lockwood for the biggest joke of the campaign.

BAD ON BROWN.
A short time ago Mrs. Morrill, who resides in Augusta, received a letter from the Republican campaign committee of Ohio, addressed to her late husband, appealing to him to come to Ohio and aid the Blaine canvass. Mrs. Morrill did not keep the letter. She was so indignant at the request, and also at the fact that its author did not know of the death of her husband, that she wrote her answer on the back of the circular and immediately returned it to the sender. But to a New York Herald reporter she has given both the circular and her reply from memory, as follows:

Senator Lot M. Morrill.
Dear Sir—The situation in Ohio is a critical one. The party is in trouble on account of the attacks on Mr. Blaine as the candidate of the party. Your well known character as a pure and upright statesman, and coming from Blaine's own state, you could refute the charges as no one else can. We hope you will come to us in this emergency, and make as many speeches as possible.

To Brown, Chairman, Columbus, Ohio—I am surprised and shocked to receive such a communication. I thought every citizen of this country knew my husband was at rest. I am in mourning for him, but as much as I mourn his death, I thank my Father in heaven that He called him home before the party he loved so well and did so much for had so degraded itself as to nominate so wicked and corrupt a man for the highest office within the gift of the American people as I know and my husband knew James G. Blaine to be. If he were alive he would not support Mr. Blaine or any such man, even at the bidding of his party.
CHARLOTTE MORRILL.

In an interview which followed, Mrs. Morrill said:
"My husband," continued Mrs. Morrill, "was visited by Mr. Blaine at the beginning of the congressional investigation into the Little Rock railroad bonds. Mr. Blaine, as he did to Mulligan, importuned my husband with tears and entreaties to use his influence to save him. When my husband resigned to go into the cabinet it was generally understood, and so my husband understood, that Governor Chamberlain would be appointed to fill the vacancy. Instead and to the surprise of everyone, Governor Connor appointed Mr. Blaine, then a representative in congress and under charges in that body, to the vacancy."

OUR SARATOGA LETTER.
From Our Regular Correspondent.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 13, 1884.—Although many find it pleasant to visit Saratoga in September, and never come here until that time, the last week in August in effect closes its season. There have been many departures every day this week, also, and on Monday 180 went from one hotel alone.
The account of this being the last week until next summer that a crowd will be here, the amusements have been even more numerous than earlier in the month. The hopes have been many, but the garden party at the Grand Union hotel has of course been the chief social event of the week. Preparations for this began last Saturday when, the dancing floor, as large as that of many a good sized ball room, was laid near the center of the town, and the platform (a little elevated above it) for the musicians placed beside it.

The imitation to the garden party, which were of a different design from any heretofore used for these events, at the same hotel, and very finely engraved, named the house, which have been the same for all given all the Grand Union garden since the first of these fresco fetes occurred. The children were invited from 4 to 7, and the dancing floor was reserved for them during those hours in the afternoon, while the grown folks were asked from 9 to midnight.

The decorations, as heretofore, consisted of flags among the stately elm trees and thousands of Chinese lanterns of different sizes and colors hung between the trees and the garden in groups, representing different designs, the favorite device being that which symbolized chandeliers, by means of hanging the lanterns on hooks of graduated sizes, one above the other, pyramid form. This produces an especially fine effect at night.

There were more electric lights in the garden this time than ever before, three hanging in a line over the dancing floor and one over the music platform, where several others were scattered through the grounds and on having just in front of the large central door of the hotel leading to the garden. Over this door is a balcony, which was draped with red, white and blue, silk finished with gold fringe. There were handsome colored draperies also above the music platform and dancing floor, and over both were canopies formed by colored gauze scarfs meeting in the center. An arch was between this and the music stand, which was draped with bright colored plush edged with gold fringe.

The conundrum as to why the city guests all run back home when the revolving year rolls September to the top, regardless of the markets and regardless of the weather, is one for which Saratoga landlords would give a great deal for the solution and the remedy. Some say it is simply fashion, but all fashions are generally in accord with comfort if not with health, and this custom is neither. Again it is argued the children have to be started to school, but the people who have no children at school or elsewhere, and those who do not send them to the public schools, but of others which begin later, are just as eager to pack their trunks and join the procession as those who must get a half dozen "hopes of the future" ready for the opening day. Strong efforts have been made in recent years to extend the vacation period so as to have it include September, and they have met with considerable success. The first part of this month is now generally recognized as belonging to that period of the year known as "the season" in the Saratoga vocabulary, and all of the hotels peep open accordingly. Some of them, and notably the States, brave it out until October, regardless of the weather, and with the reduced expense account and the business brought here by the September conventions it has been found not unprofitable.
