SUDDEN DEATHS.
Hamilton Johnston Found Dead in Bed. W. J. Turney Has a Hemorrhage.
Two sudden deaths occurred in the city yesterday morning.
Yesterday morning between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock Hamilton Johnston, a well known sporting gentleman of this city, closed his eyes in everlasting sleep at his residence, No. 303 Marquette avenue, between Second and Third streets. Mrs. Johnston states that her husband had been complaining for the past week, and in consequence was very nervous. They were down town as late as 10 o'clock last Saturday night and obtained some medicine, the prescription being prescribed by Dr. Hope. On returning home he took a dose of the medicine and at about 1 o'clock he took another dose and seemingly then went to sleep. At about 4 o'clock she awoke and instantly discovered something wrong—his face and feet both being cold, and at once notified her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. James Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goetz hurriedly responding. They rubbed him vigorously, thinking that he had gone into a deep stupor, but observing no appearance of life Mr. Martin went after a physician, Dr. Pearce arriving in a few minutes. The doctor examined the body and pronounced life extinct, giving his opinion that death must have resulted about thirty minutes before his arrival and from heart failure. Dr. Hope was also summoned, and his opinion coincides with that of Dr. Pearce, hence there is no reason for a coroner's inquest.
A telegram was sent by his folks at Fort Scott, Kas., yesterday by Mr. Martin, and the bereaved mother left for Albuquerque this morning. Until her arrival, which will be to-morrow night, there will be no disposition of the remains.
Hamilton Johnston was born somewhere in New Jersey and was 37 years old on the 29th of October. He was generous to a fault, always willing to help one of his associates in need, and many will read of his demise with a sad heart. He leaves, besides a grief-stricken wife, a mother, three sisters and two brothers and a large circle of influential eastern relatives. This CITIZEN will announce a funeral in due time.
TURNEY'S DEATH.
W. J. Turney, of Greensburg, Penn., came to the Highland house on East Railroad avenue about ten days ago from Las Vegas, an invalid from consumption, and died in the throes of a severe hemorrhage, in bed, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, the discovery being made just as the last spark of life was leaving his body by John James, the proprietor of the house. A telegram was sent by Mr. James to his folks, and an answer was received this morning from Jacob S. Turney requesting that the body be embalmed and placed in a metallic coffin and shipped to Greensburg for burial. The remains will be sent east to-morrow evening.
MURDERED.
An inquest was held upon the body of J. F. Anderson, the finding of which south of Canon Diablo we have mentioned here, Monday last Justice Prime was accompanied by Dr. Francis, Tom Drum and J. F. Wheeler. The body was exhumed and it was found that the man had been fatally murdered. He had been shot from behind, the ball entering the back of the head and emerging near the right eye. There is yet no clue to the perpetrators of this dastardly deed, but it is to be hoped that the guilty person or persons may be brought to justice, and that the officers of the law will leave nothing undone to accomplish that end.—Flagstaff Democrat.

TWO LETTERS!
What a Suicide Wrote to His Wife.
Jacob Hirsch's Sincere Regard and Admiration.
He Blames Himself and Extols His Wife's Deeds.
PATHEtic IN THE EXTREME.
Since taking poison, followed by his death, some evil-minded friends of the suicide, Jacob Hirsch, have seen fit to quietly put in circulation a report that his death was mainly due to his wife, attributing this fact to an unhappy life and to their separate and distinct ideas of religion and nationality, he being of Jewish persuasion, and she born and reared a Catholic. In order to forever refute these outrageous and malicious reports—to place the stamp of absolute denial upon them, and to show the outer world that Mr. Hirsch loved and honored his wife, and blamed her for nothing that he has ever done, even going so far as to magnify and largely increase his own frailties and infatuations, this CITIZEN, at the request of the bereaved wife, publishes the two letters found upon the person of her husband after he had realized life a mockery and had taken the deadly drug. Mrs. Hirsch states that on the 14th of the present month they had been married eleven years, and it was his desire, from all the evidence adduced while the doctors were attempting to save his life, for he would occasionally open his eyes and ask what day of the month it was, to be before their wedding anniversary. He succeeded in passing away at 9:45 o'clock p. m., November 11.
The first letter reads as follows:
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 31, 1904.
Whatever estate, money or anything else of value which is to come to my wife after my death is to be for her sole benefit only and no one else has a right to it.
The deceased evidently contemplated suicide when he penned the above, but he did not work himself up to take poison, or commit the awful deed in some other manner, until after writing the subjoined letter:
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 11, 1904.
My own dear wife,
Forgive me, forgive me for the wildest grief I am putting on your shoulders. I feel as if I were a fool, a madman, what grief, what sorrow, what torture, what trouble and what misery I have caused you for the last eleven years through my damnable passion for gambling whenever I got out of work, and all the hard savings that you alone worked so hard to scrape together, doing all your own work in every shape and form at home to save a dollar, and I, miserable man, oh! how I did appreciate it, not as a dutiful husband ought to have done. Oh! my dear wife, you have made me a good and faithful and loving husband, you alone have shielded my friends and upheld me in the eyes of a here as no other man's wife could have done, and how did I repay you for your great goodness toward me. God, you and I alone know that I alone am to blame for everything for my wife, you have suffered terribly, but you have never suffered them in silence for eleven years. God knows I was willing to do right towards you, but that passion for gambling and being all that you worked so hard to save until I have no more in the bank. I, miserable man, have ruined you, and I am sorry for the last moment, making you believe that I still had money in the bank. All I can ask of you, although I do not deserve it, is your forgiveness, and after I am gone think only of my little kindness toward you, for at that time only must I have good and kind thoughts for you. For the present time I am almost insane thinking of the trouble I have caused you until the last moment that I can not endure any longer, as I am now suffering all known tortures in my head, knowing that I have not done what a good, dutiful husband ought to do towards his wife. But, my dear, it is for the best and I request that the first chance you have to better yourself, do so as it is my wish. In regard to little Beattie do as you alone wish, as you must not let anyone interfere with your future welfare, as you desire to do as you wish, and I am sure, God, bless and protect you, while I am dying, will be on my lips. In regard to my insurance, have some one write to S. H. Newman, of El Paso, Texas, who is the agent for my company and notify him immediately of my death. The best receipts are all together in my pocket. Be careful not to lose any of them; everything is paid on the policy until the 14th of this month. Bury me here in Albuquerque in this same suit of dark clothes that I have on and by all means have me buried just as cheap as you can get. I am sure you will get what I please me. Keep mother's ring and picture as long as you can. If any one presents you with any kind of a bit toward me have them send it to New York to my folks for collection, as you are not permitted for any debts that I made indiscriminately. Bear up under this extra grief I am causing you, but you will see that it will be for your own good later on, so now, my darling wife, God bless you for everything. Loving kisses to you and Beattie, and I thank you for everything you do for me. I am all I can say. God bless you, darling wife, good-bye, your loving but wayward husband. Kisses to you and Beattie. Good-bye.
JACOB HIRSCH.
My dear wife, you have done everything to make home and surround every happiness for me, even to the death of yourself. You have sacrificed your own life for me to make it pleasant for me, and I was not man enough to appreciate all your kindness. Oh, my dear wife, as I said before, forgive me and think kind of me once in a while as I can see of you as I deserve nothing else. I have made indelibly. Bear up under this extra grief I am causing you, but you will see that it will be for your own good later on, so now, my darling wife, God bless you for everything. Loving kisses to you and Beattie, and I thank you for everything you do for me. I am all I can say. God bless you, darling wife, good-bye, your loving but wayward husband. Kisses to you and Beattie. Good-bye.
JACOB HIRSCH.

that the suicide lays great stress upon his "passion for gambling." Mrs. Hirsch states that to her own personal knowledge he was never known to gamble, except recently when out of employment, he having given up a good situation back in New York when he was persuaded to come to Albuquerque, and this, coupled with the fact that he secured from her $500 which she had received from her father, on the pretense of going into business and then lost it by card playing, preyed upon his mind to such an extent that he became temporarily insane and then committed self-destruction.
In regard to several of our gambling resorts, notably the St. Elmo, John Wickstrom, one of the proprietors, informs this CITIZEN that the deceased never lost a cent at gambling in his place, but one afternoon borrowed from the house over $20, which he never paid. Mr. Wickstrom also stated that had he gambled in the St. Elmo, he would have been fully protected.
GOV. STOVER'S VIEWS.
What He gleaned on a visit to the Pecos Valley.
Gov. Stover returned from a short visit to the Pecos valley last Friday, and speaks in glowing terms of that prosperous part of New Mexico. He reports that he rode through miles and miles of groves and young orchards in the vicinity of Roswell, and saw thousands of acres of alfalfa, corn, etc., and considers the Pecos the richest and broadest valley in New Mexico. With reservoirs from ten to thirty miles long and two to six miles wide and three to six feet deep, and tens of thousands of acres of rich lands under cultivation, he is of the opinion that the counties of Chavez and Eddy are soon destined to lead all others in the territory in population and wealth.
To give an idea of the extent of improvements now under way, he says that one company alone is now preparing the grounds for 2,000 acres of apple trees.
All improvements are substantial and first class, and one is not in wonder when he finds such thriving cities and beautiful farms where but a few years ago were only a few wild cattle ranches.
He brought a few specimens of fine apples from the old Chisnold ranch and put them on exhibition at the Commercial club, and reports that the whole crop sold in the orchard for four cents per pound.
While at Roswell he instituted Columbia Chapter, No. 7, Royal Arch Masons, and installed its officers, and speaks in the highest terms of the courtesies extended and generous treatment received from Messrs. Prager, Jaffe and Calson, old Albuquerque friends, and the citizens of that thriving city generally.
He reports himself under special obligations to Capt. D. H. Clark, late of the United States army, who, with a fine span of horses, gave him a view of all the country around Roswell. He says that his faith in New Mexico is much greater since his visit to the grand valley of the Pecos, and that he believes from all reports and indications that Albuquerque will soon be directly connected therewith by the Pecos Valley railway, which shows every indication of at once pushing on through White Oaks to this city.
Taken to Dundee.

Graves, came up with the dead body of his partner, Edward Horn, who was one of the victims of the Magdalena double shooting, as far as this city and registered last night at the European, while his partner, Jack Creighton, continued on with the remains to Dundee, a small town near St. Louis, Mo., for burial. Mr. Graves read the account of the tragedy published in this CITIZEN of yesterday, and states that it is correct in every particular. He is ordered down to-day with his friend, F. M. Waugh, manager of the local business of Gross, Blackwell & Co., and will return home this evening.

JESSE M. WHELOCK.
An Absolute Divorce Granted in His Case.
OTHER COURT MATTERS.
The case of the Territory vs. J. F. Will, charged with shooting A. Meyers, and attorney by the jury, was on trial this morning. The jury has the case.
In the case of Naty M. Wheelock vs. Jesse M. Wheelock, chancery for divorce, the final decree, granting an absolute divorce to the complainant, was entered on yesterday. The master, R. W. D. Bryan, to whom the cause was referred to take the proofs, found that the allegations in the bill of abandonment, etc., on the part of the defendant, were true and recommended that a decree of absolute divorce be granted by the court. There was an agreement entered into between the parties providing for the payment of the support of Mrs. Wheelock, and the master found that this agreement was equitable and just and recommended that it be ratified and confirmed by the court, which was done. This agreement provides and the court orders and adjudge that defendant, the complainant, pay to the complainant $50 per month for each and every month for a period of five years, the said amount to be deposited in some bank or at a place to be designated by the complainant, and at the end of two years a further sum of $500, at the end of three years a further sum of $500, and at the end of five years a further sum of $500, making in addition to the payment of $50 per month the sum of $5,000 as alimony. The defendant has the right at any time to pay the full amount of $5,000, and to be released from the payment of $50 per month and any other sum of money. The defendant was required by the court to secure the payment of the $50 per month alimony, and he was further required to take out a policy of insurance on his life for $5,000, payable to some person whom Mrs. Wheelock would designate, as trustee, to keep the premium paid up, this being an additional security for the payment of the alimony.

There are several candidates out for the position of policeman, a position made vacant by the promotion of Fred Fornoff to the marshaling. Among those whose names are mentioned is that of George Carson. His appointment would meet the approval of many friends.

LON CORRALES ROMANCE.
How a Senorita of Seventeen Jilted a Suitor.
The "upper ten circle" of Los Corrales, the home of the Sandovales and other prosperous people, about ten miles up the river, are in the throes of a beautiful and interesting romance, in which a dark-eyed, lovable senorita, Miss Armita Chavez, by name, toyed with the affection and love of Marcus Armiño, cousin of Mrs. Paula Armiño de Garcia. The story runs in this manner:
About a year ago, when Miss Chavez, who is the daughter of a widowed lady, Mrs. Gabriela Chavez, was sweet sixteen and as pretty as a red apple, she met the jilted lover, Marcus Armiño, at a dance in Los Corrales. At first sight both became deeply in love with each other, and before the dance was concluded Marcus asked Miss Armita to marry him. She readily consented, and there never were two happier beings the remainder of that memorable dance evening a little over a year ago. After the engagement he called frequently to see his love, and after the day for the marriage was set, work being scarce in Los Corrales, he left for Flagstaff where he toiled on the North and South railroad and diligently saved up every cent he earned. Thinking that he had secured enough of the "filthy lucre" to keep him and his lovely prospective bride in opulence for years to come, he returned to Los Corrales to claim the one whom he, on tattered knees, before he left for Flagstaff, swore to "honor, protect and obey" should she have him. But, however, he was doomed to disappointment, for when he arrived at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Paula Armiño de Garcia, the latter broke the news quietly to him that his pretty senorita, during his absence, now grown to be 17 years of age, had learned to love another and had marked his name off her list of admirers. Marcus, although broken hearted, refused to believe the story from other lips besides those of Miss Armita, and thereupon he called upon the young lady. She emphatically, in the sweet Spanish language, with a wave of her soft hand, bade him go hence, for the reason that her love had turned to another and that he was no more the idol of her eyes. Marcus tried his persuasive powers, using all the adjectives known in the Spanish vocabulary, but Miss Armita would not change and thus Marcus left her home a badly jilted old bachelor. He was seen yesterday at Los Corrales, and from his own lips told the story of his love, how hard he toiled on the grade of the North and South railroad, and the miserable end of the whole transaction. He now claims that Miss Armita makes a practice of having a new lover every month.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar, rough cough. Dr. France appointed. This morning Dr. J. F. Pearce received a letter from Hon. Wm. Lochren, commissioner of pensions, informing him of the appointment as examining pension surgeon for this district. The doctor was a little bit surprised at receiving an appointment of any kind from the government without solicitation, but like any other good citizen, he is of course accepted. While that of examining pension surgeon is not a very well paid position, still the government will soon find that it made no mistake in naming Dr. Pearce for the position.
