WHY THEY RETIRED.

Two gentlemen who were playing cards at a club recently were annoyed by other members who stood behind their chairs and interested themselves in the game. Finally one of the players asked a spectator to play the hand for him until he returned.

The spectator took the cards, whereupon the first player left the room. Pretty soon the second player followed the example of the first. The two substitutes played for some time, when one of them asked the waiter where the two original players were.

"They are playing cards in the next room, sir," was the waiter's reply.—Tit Bits.

High Finance.

"Mother," said the 7-year-old son of Gordon Bates—according to his father—"you're poor, ain't you?"

"No, son," answered the fond parent. "I'm rich."

"Have you got a lot of money?"

"Not in cash. But I've got you and the baby, and you're worth $1,000,000 apiece to me."

"Oh! That much?"

"That much and more. Why, son—"

"Couldn't you—now—hypothecate the baby and buy me a football suit?"

HE WAS A DACHSHUND.

Doolan—if your dog's so glad to see you, why don't he wag his tail?

Schneider—Oh, he will alright py unt py; his tail iss a long way off, ain't it?

The Modern Grandma.

When grandmas danced the minuet. From formal grace they'd never slip. Now grandma smokes a cigarette And tries to dance the chicken slip.

At the Ladies' Club.

"So you didn't enjoy the club meeting?"

"No, it was very dull."

"Wasn't there a quorum present?"

"Every member was present."

"I should think that would have meant an interesting meeting."

"Silly. With every member present there was no one for us to talk about."

Artistic Enthusiasm.

"I always have stage fright," apologized Mr. Stormington Barnes, "when I assume a new role."

"Don't get nervous," replied the manager of the Crimson Gulch opera house. "Only don't play anything but comedy. The last time tragedy was tried here the boys got excited and took sides in the fight."

That's So.

"Why do you think married people do not love one another?"

"Because when a man speaks of the time when he was in love you know he means the time before he was married."

An Instance.

"Our modern inventions work miracles."

"Indeed they do. I noticed yesterday that a messenger boy was arrested for speeding."

A SURE WINNER.

Horan—Did yez ever make iny money backin' horses, Doran?

Doran—Sure. Oi made foive hundred wance.

Horan—How did yez do ut?

Doran—Oi backed him down a cillar wn thin sued th' mon for lavin' th' oor open.

Why It Is Scarce.

Fame is a bubble, 'tis said, And we know it. But no one can buy him The right pipe to blow it.

Ready Answer.

Beggar—Can you help a poor gent, mister?

Passerby—Hum! What sort of a gent do you call yourself?

Beggar—A indigent, sir.

Coat and Hat Suitable for Wear on "Semi-Smart" Occasions

SUITED to the matinee and to more or less formal occasions where something in the way of dress is expected, the coat and hat pictures here will prove useful during a great part of the year.

The coat of black charmeuse, lined with emerald green, is draped a little at the front and has a large shawl collar and draped sleeves, finished with tiny covered buttons. For cold weather a muff and scarf of broad tail make just the right accessory to be worn with it for warmth.

The hat of mulline, bordered with velvet, is an unusual achievement of the milliner's art. Many layers of mulline in various colors make an opalescent covering for the frame. Embedded in the mulline are small roses and forget-me-nots, and fine moss, creeping about the brim. There is a twist of velvet at the base of the crown and long ties of velvet, which, of course, are never tied.

Across the underbrim at the back is a half wreath of most beautiful full-blown pink roses and clusters of deep blue forget-me-nots. It is a hat which may actually be relied upon to look well with a gown of any color. It will tax the skill of the milliner who attempts it, but will repay her patient endeavor. Such millinery is necessarily expensive because of the amount and quality of the materials used and the difficult work involved. At the same time it is usually durable and a superb accomplishment, quite as useful as the black satin wrap.

SERVICE DAINTY AND COSTLY

Extravagance Marks Tea Sets Which Modern Hostess Is Willing to Set Before Her Guests.

If afternoon tea sets continue to get more attractive, the services which were considered lovely a few years ago will be relegated to the remotest corners of china closets. All in palest green porcelain is a very dainty set comprising a tea pot, sugar basin, cream pitcher and a half dozen cups and saucers. It sets upon a square tray of green willow. Quite as dainty and only a trifle more costly are tete-a-tete tea sets of white china banded with dark blue or red, edged with a gold vine and standing on an oblong matching tray.

Among the four-piece services are sets of amber porcelain so thin that the beverage seems to color it. These sets stand upon trays of amber crystal having projecting handles of gold metal, set with genuine amber.

Exceedingly pretty tea sets are of silver deposit-velvet white porcelain or comprise a tea pot of silver, sugar bowl silver deposit-velvet white porcelain.

ANGEL SLEEVE HAS RETURNED

Somewhat Different From Those of Another Day, but Practically Along the Same Lines.

Angel sleeves have returned. They are not exactly like the ones of other days. They show grace in the flowing lines and elegance in adjustment, and they also show something new.

The regular set-in sleeve has been supplanted by the loose overdrape. In some cases it is a straight piece of wide lace, caught at the shoulders under clasps, hooked in place after being wound in scroll-like lines over the arms and shoulders. In others it is a sleeve with extremely widening lines, and there need be no seams or gathers. Tassels, weight down the edges, and jeweled hangings, rhinestones being in first favor, edge the gauzy drapery and hold the flowing sleeves in place.

Tulle, mulline, shadow lace and exquisite metallic effects on gauzes and nets are used for angel sleeves, says the New York Press. These are easily incorporated with bodice drapery and arranged over the shoulders to give the grace and use of sleeves without undue material or trouble in construction.

The short kimono sleeve can be successfully hidden by draping transparent net, gauze or chiffon over the top catching the folds by slip stitches here and there.

Pin all drapery first. Arrange the change until the right line is obtained. Then sew and rejoice in one of the new features in evening gowns.

Lip Pomade.

The frosty atmosphere makes the tiny metal cases of lip pomade especially desirable for my lady's handbag, for just a touch of cold cream protects the lips from the dryness of the wind. The metal cases are about two inches long, and are gilt, finished at the top with an imitation jewel, and a ring by which they may be attached to a chain. They are about half an inch in circumference. The pomade is slightly tinted, either flesh or rouge color, so that its use cannot be detected, or, for those who so wish, it may be had in white. These are priced at less than one dollar, according to the make.

Mascot Fashion.

There is a growing demand for "lucky" brooches and pendants. The lucky money spider brooch, the lucky enamel ladybird, lucky wishbones, lucky means, are all popular, and many women have their own special lucky hieroglyphics—Chinese, Indian, Arabian and what-not—inscribed on their jewelry whenever possible.

Medici Collars.

New Medici collars usually have vest-like labors of net or shadow lace. Sashes of bright Roman striped ribbon are pretty on blue serge dresses.
