

GEORGE A. KASEMAN.

George A. Kaseman, nominee of the Republican party for state senator from Bernalillo county, is a man who for many years has been closely identified with the business life of Albuquerque. He can be relied on to safeguard the interests of his constituency, and to stand between the people of any unwise legislation that would be injurious to the business interests of the community.

FIRST GOVERNOR OF STATE ADDRESSES PEOPLE

there are—by these brilliant political publishers—they thought they had got something that they could pin the Republican nominee for governor on—they said that he is against the working man—that he passed the Hawkins bill. Now the truth of the matter is the Republican nominee for governor was not a member of that legislature, he was not even chairman of the territorial committee at that time; he was a very common individual. These gentlemen fail to say that the only legislation that has been passed in New Mexico is that which is contained in your constitution—it is identical with what is known as the Roosevelt Liability and Personal Injury law, was introduced by Mr. Bursam. It was introduced verbatim as requested by the representatives of organized labor in New Mexico; that is what I did when I held an official position, when it came within my power to show what my disposition was towards organized labor in New Mexico. I yield to no man in my respect and my love for those who toil, for I also toiled, and no one has more regard than I have for those who toil, and I would see something better than what is now on the statute books, or rather as contained in your constitution.—I would see the last fragment of controversy between the laborer, between the wage carrier and the employer—I would see every element of strife eliminated.

I believe we ought to have compulsory insurance. Under the present system the companies take out insurance to protect them against damages. Whenever an employe is injured or killed, at once a representative of that company, in some capacity, proposes a settlement. It is but natural that they will whittle these settlements down to the lowest point and if a satisfactory settlement cannot be made they will litigate. There are always more or less—and generally more—of these peanut lawyers waiting around to catch some fellow to get his claim on shares, or a contingent fee, to bring suit. What is the result? Litigation for several years perhaps, and finally after it is too late to do any real good to those dependent and entitled to its benefits, they receive perhaps one-half, perhaps 40 per cent, or maybe a settlement is made on a lesser basis. I say place this burden where it belongs. Make insurance compulsory and let it be paid for by the employer. I refer not only to those who are employed by common carriers, I refer to all those laborers or wage-earners who may be engaged in industrial business, whether it be in the construction of a 10 story building, or whether it be in the factory or the mine. I say, place the burden where it belongs.

Society owes it to those soldiers of industry who have made it possible to ride in Pullman cars with ease and comfort, they owe it to those soldiers of industry who have built up the gigantic industries of this land, to see to it that if accident occurs that those dependent upon them be taken care of, and without the assistance of charity—but that it be as a matter of right.

PLACE THE BURDEN WHERE IT BELONGS.

Let the employer pay the insurance. It will be a part of the fixed charges. The consumer must ultimately pay that burden. That is the best and most equitable way of discharging the burden. You will save the expense of attorney's fees. You will save this eternal strife.

You will save these questions being made the foothold of political demagogues, who would ride into office by stirring up class against class, by seeking to stir up strife between employe and employer.

I sincerely believe it is best for the employer as well as for the employe—that the prosperity of one depends upon the prosperity of the other—that their interests are mutual and that it is only a question of decent treatment besides as a matter of principle why do we have constitutions? It is the fundamental law to restrict the powers of our law-making bodies. The constitution is a restriction placed by the people themselves against the possible tyranny of the majority of the majority. It is a guarantee to the minority of those rights of liberty, rights of property, rights to be tried and before a jury of one's peers. That is the very foundation of this government—that is why we have a constitution and tyranny at the hands of the majority is as burdensome as that of a king or a potentate; it makes no difference.

I am glad to have been here this evening. I am glad to have had this opportunity to talk to you, and even after I have talked to you I suspect that perhaps in the county of Bernalillo there may be one or two Democratic voters east, but I want you to understand, you Democrats, if any of you are here, that after I am elected I shall not consider it a crime that you have voted the Democratic ticket; it is not a crime, but as has been said by a friend of mine, it is a habit, and it is an awful bad habit, and the sooner you stop it the better it will be for the state of New Mexico.

I propose, if elected to be the governor of all the people:

You will all look alike to me; entitled to the same privileges, under the state government, you will all be American citizens, and it matters not whether you speak the Spanish or the English language, you will all have equal rights and equal privileges at my hands.

And whether I am elected or defeated, it shall be my ambition to see New Mexico grow and prosper and it is the greatest hope of my life to see New Mexico one of the great and powerful states of this glorious union.

VARSITY-ROSWELL GAME ENDS IN TIE YESTERDAY

Muddy Field and Single Attack of Poor Judgment All That Kept Varsity From Handing Cadets Package.

Wet, bedraggled, coated with mud, with their faces ghastly from the cold alkali of Traction park, the football eleven of the University and the Military Institute today played to a tie, nothing to nothing, before a good sized and highly enthusiastic crowd. The game was good the entire length, and despite the fact that many of the more excitable spectators, disdainful to use the bleachers, ran through pools of mud and water at all times, everyone who attended was satisfied that he had received his money's worth and that, more important, Coach Hutchinson had made a real team out of the varsity's football squad.

In brief, they played in large circles around the cadets. If the field had been drier, and lacking in obstacles to fast play, it is not too much to say that the University would have won by a decisive score. As it was, a skin-tackle play, a penalty and another tackle play brought the ball within a yard of the institute goal, when the varsity quarterback called for a buck through center. Roswell held like a wall of stone and with the next play punted well out of danger.

The features of the game were the muddy field, a long run around right end by Lemke in the last quarter, a second run of the same sort, when, after being downed, Lemke ran another three or four yards, and team work on the varsity side.

The quarterback for the Roswell team played good ball, but without their monster fullback they would have been lost. Time after time this huge player was called for a line buck and sometimes he made it stick. Roswell played forward passes a good deal, also on-side kicks, until it had been clearly demonstrated that the field was too muddy for that sort of game.

For the University, end and tackle plays, with an occasional and run, were the ground gains. The local kick showed up well, and every Albuquerquean has a right to be proud of the display of skill and cleverness they gave in the face of a team which outweighed them more than 10 pounds to the man.

Speed and class handling of the ball were at a disadvantage, for the field was muddy and the ball as slick as if it had been greased. This sadly handicapped the light and fast varsity team.

It is safe to say that every person who saw this game, will see all the others the University plays at home, and will bring all his friends.

The officials were: Badenoch, referee; Atton, field judge; Conwell, umpire; and Jack LeFrank, head linesman.

The quarters were 15 minutes each.

 - 43—2000 acres upland, very fine soil, with about 20 inches of annual rainfall. This is just the place for dry farming on an extensive scale. Adjoining farms produced 45 bushels of corn per acre this year and other crops in proportion. This entire tract is practically level, but gently rolling, is intersected by a fine mountain stream which, if used judiciously, could easily be utilized for irrigating this entire acreage. Price for a short time only, $10 per acre.
 - 44—220 acres in the famous Pecos valley, three miles from Lake-wood. This land has been especially selected for the quality of its soil and its location is ideal. There is an artesian well on this farm, flowing 1200 gallons per minute, about 100 acres in cultivation, 30 acres in alfalfa; balance could be easily put under plow. Price $100 per acre; $2000 cash, balance terms to suit purchaser. On the south line is a clear stream of never-failing water well stocked with fish. This is all second bottom land and there is no better fruit or alfalfa land to be had anywhere.

 - 46—2200 acres farming, grazing and timber land. It has been estimated that about one thousand acres of this tract is available for farming; about 10 million feet of pine timber. All over the tract is a heavy growth of grass, living water and a shipping station. Right on the edge of the property good wagon roads have been built at considerable expense and cover the tract thoroughly in all directions. Also several good buildings. This would be an ideal place for farming and stock raising combined. Price per acre, $2.00.
 - 47—8000 acres in Old Mexico, 3 1/2 miles from the U. S. boundary and port of entry. Good manufacturing town; good demand for lumber, prices being higher for this product than in any other part of the country. This tract has been gone over thoroughly by three expert cruisers and they report that two hundred and fifty million feet of first class pine lumber can be cut from this property. It also has the advantage of cheap labor and is said to be easy of access. Price per acre, $2.00.

DEMOCRATS LOSE IN MANY AGENTS HERE SANDOVAL COUNTY TO SELL AUTO FIRE WAGON

Court Refuses to Interfere With Action of County Commissioners in Placing Poling Place at La Bajada.

The district court yesterday refused to grant an injunction to the Democrats of Sandoval county, upon the petition of Julius Reigmos, requesting the polling place from La Bajada to Dominga, a distance of several miles. The petition was made on the grounds that the majority of the voters in the precinct lived in such places that it was more convenient to have the polls in Dominga, which is itself boasting a small number of voters.

The court heard evidence in the matter today, and decided that there was not sufficient grounds offered for the district court to interfere in the action of the commissioners of Sandoval county in locating the polling place for that precinct, and as a consequence it will remain at La Bajada.

Representatives of American La France, Robinson and Waters Companies in the City to Close Deal.

There are three representatives of well known fire apparatus manufacturers now in the city to sell the city council a fire wagon which will not need to be pulled by horses.

The agents are all from firms which make a specialty of motor apparatus, and there is little they are leaving undone in their efforts to complete a sale.

The men here are C. E. Thomas of the La France company, from Denver; D. S. Campbell of the Robinson company, from St. Louis; and Julius Pierce of the Waters company, from Denver.

The type of apparatus which the city council has determined to buy is a triple combination pump, hose wagon, and chemical wagon, which is rapidly displacing other apparatus in the larger cities.
