Chicago, Oct. 16.—The fourth rib on Colonel Roosevelt's right side was fractured by the bullet which struck him at Milwaukee Monday night. This became known today after members of his family had visited him. It was also learned that the X-ray photographs taken in Milwaukee failed to reveal the exact location of the bullet. A more minute examination of the plates will be made this afternoon. The fractured rib, it was explained, had caused the patient's pains in breathing previously noted by the surgeons. The following bulletin was issued at 1:30 o'clock by Colonel Roosevelt's physicians: "Pulse, 99; temperature, 98.5 throughout the entire morning. Breathing a little easier. General condition excellent."

It was said that all conditions were favorable to the distinguished patient's recovery, so far as indications have developed thus far but that it was impossible to determine whether blood poisoning would follow.

COLONEL SATISFIED WITH HIS CONDITION.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who with him today rests at greater ease than at any time since the hand of John Schrank was lifted against his life in Milwaukee Monday night. Physicians, examining his wound today and making a complete clinical examination, found his pulse, respiration and temperature nearer normal than at any time since he was shot, and so nearly at usual points that that concern over his condition vanished. Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel and Theodore, Jr., arrived early in the day and went at once to his apartment, with Mrs. Alice Longworth and Dr. Alexander Lambert, the family physician, in New York. "Hello," shouted the colonel gaily, when Mrs. Roosevelt appeared in his doorway laughing. She had been told on the way up to his floor that the colonel's condition had been found exceptionally good in the examination just concluded and her apprehension had vanished. When the other members of the family appeared, the same cheery grin met them at the doorway and he asked them to draw up chairs to his bedside and "Gossip with him."

At the examination made while the wound was being dressed this morning he again looked down at it and discussed its apparent good condition with Dr. Murphy. He was shown the Bulletin issued by the physicians and merely granted a satisfied approval. Mrs. Roosevelt has been provided an apartment adjoining and connected with the patient's room and she will remain there during her stay at Mercy hospital. The following statement was issued by Colonel Roosevelt's physicians at 4:40 a. m. today. "The records show that Colonel Roosevelt passed a very good night; that his temperature and pulse are normal; that his highest pulse since 9 o'clock last night was 90, temperature 98.5, and that his pulse at 4 o'clock this morning was 74 and his temperature 98.5 and respiration 20; that he is having less irritation of the pleura from the injured rib than he did yesterday; that he did not have to have an anodyne for the pain. General condition excellent."

spirits today and the novelty of the situation having worn off, he prepared for the day with the idea of getting done all the work in the way of delayed correspondence and writings he could.

After Mrs. Roosevelt had been with her husband several minutes, the nurse appeared at the door and beckoned to the rest of the party. Dr. Lambert went only far enough to shout good morning to the Colonel. Mrs. Longworth led the others of the party in, and Theodore, Jr., was the last to enter.

of the arrivals, Miss Ethel displayed most concern. Her face was paler than is its wont, and she appeared frightened and nervous at contemplation of being in a hospital. She clung tightly to Mrs. Longworth's arm until they went into her father's room.

Mrs. Longworth who assured herself last night that her father's condition was not serious smiling patted the hand of her sister and showed no anxiety. She had read a copy of the physician's bulletin, which indicated a more improved condition than even the hopeful situation yesterday and told its contents to Miss Ethel while Theodore, Jr., listened attentively.

The reassuring words failed to remove the look of anxiety from the younger girl's face, but after a few words with the colonel and after his cheery greeting and invitation to "Sit down and gossip" with him, Miss Roosevelt's nervousness fled and she laughed with her father and wanted to have him tell her "just how it happened."

"Not now," he replied. "I want first to hear how you folks rested last night. I hope you didn't worry after our message to you."

In an adjoining room Dr. Lambert heard from the physicians who had attended the colonel what had been done and was given a technical description of the course of the wound by the bullet and of its present location. Dr. Lambert was inclined to doubt the necessity or wisdom of an attempt at present to remove the missile. He agreed with the other physicians that the bullet appeared to be causing no more trouble and that it was wiser to leave it there until its use by natural process, when if Colonel Roosevelt, desired, it might be removed with no inconvenience to him.
