THE REPUBLICAN WHEEL.

TROUBLES never come singly. Whether with an individual or a political party, the old adage holds good. Usually they come in greatest force and number following a long period of wrongdoing. Apparently there is no limit to the troubles of the Republican party of New Mexico. Whether these troubles are a just result of past sins, or whether an element of "hard luck" has entered in is a question which those familiar with the old standard machine can best answer for themselves. Certain it is that a once powerful and tremendously efficient political organization is rapidly breaking into fragmentary junk under an unbroken series of scandals and disasters, most of which have had their origin in the very heart of the party.

Naturally, since it was a matter of public record, the Democratic campaign managers were familiar with the investigation in Rio Arriba county in which an apparent discrepancy was found and reported by the traveling auditor's office in the accounts of the county treasurer while Mr. Hernandez exercised in picking a candidate and no matter how little attention they are giving the congressional election—that no matter how bitter the struggle for control of the old Republican machine may be, and how violent the hairpulling within the ranks, that these same Republican bosses are working as a unit to elect machine men to the legislature and bending every effort in the open and under cover to retain their hold on the lower house of the assembly.

It is only necessary to point out here that no matter how little care the bosses who nominated Mr. Hernandez exercised in picking a candidate and no matter how little attention they are giving the congressional election—that no matter how bitter the struggle for control of the old Republican machine may be, and how violent the hairpulling within the ranks, that these same Republican bosses are working as a unit to elect machine men to the legislature and bending every effort in the open and under cover to retain their hold on the lower house of the assembly.

The Republican bosses who caused Mr. Hernandez to be nominated for congress equally as a matter of course, were familiar with this unpleasant matter. It was felt that the insertion in their platform of the plank branding as "offensive and pernicious" the course of Governor McDonald in correcting carelessness, incompetence and worse in county office and the placing of Mr. Hernandez before the people on that plank was an example of nerve or bravado quite without parallel.

Yet, in spite of this bold bid by the Republicans for disaster, it had been the feeling of the Democratic campaign managers that they desired to leave this Rio Arriba county incident and the past record of Mr. Hernandez alone. It was their confident feeling that the glaring unfairness of Mr. Hernandez to represent New Mexico in congress would be quite sufficient to defeat him and his party by an overwhelming majority; especially when the Republican candidate should be measured up by an intelligent people beside the high capacity, long trail and splendid service of Mr. Ferguson. In campaigns not far behind us it has been necessary for the Democrats of New Mexico to expose unwary official records of Republican candidates for office. Sometimes such exposures are a duty, but they are never a pleasant duty to perform; and when the Republicans in their ponderings finally blundered into the nomination of Mr. Hernandez it was felt that in this campaign at least a simple presentation of the candidates, their qualifications and the existing conditions to the people would be enough and that no digging into the grim past record of the Republican state machine or any of its creatures would be necessary.

And it now seems that so far as the Democrats are concerned, historical or archaeological research will not be necessary. The troubles something within the war-torn Republican machine refuse to remain under cover. One after another they burst out and each explosion comes with a louder boom and leaves more serious wreckage within. The struggle for control of the battered old machine is as bitter and determined now, apparently, as it was when proprietorship was worth something more than an exclusive corner on grief and defeat.

It has remained for a Republican newspaper to revive the unpleasant matter of the Rio Arriba county investigation and to recall it in its details to the minds of the people. Our morning contemporary, the Journal, yesterday reprinted parts of the traveling auditor's report on the Rio Arriba county inquiry and at the same time called on Mr. Hernandez to respond from the Republican ticket Mr. Hernandez failing to comply, the resignation of Mr. Ely, his campaign manager, is demanded. The Journal accuses Mr. Ely of previous knowledge of the Rio Arriba county matter; although in just how far that will help Mr. Ely, Mr. Hernandez, their possible successors or their party is not clear.

The Journal, however, is the leading Republican paper of New Mexico. Its demand is strong and definite. The results will be awaited with interest. The Journal favored the nomination of W. H. Andrews for congress on the Republican ticket and made a determined fight which finally gave Andrews the delegation from this county. Why it did not revive the Rio Arriba county report before the convention when it became plain that the machine, directed by Senator Catron and the northern crowd, proposed to nominate Hernandez, is not clear, since it is reasonably certain that such a course would have checked even such ivory-towered nerve as that of the standard bosses.

These, however, are matters entirely within the Republican family circle, the development of which the Democrats can afford to observe with perfect equanimity. So long as Republican leaders and newspapers insist upon the task of bringing out and keeping before the public the party's struggles and scandals, much of unpleasant duty is lifted from the shoulders of the Democratic party. A large majority for Mr. Ferguson has never been in serious question. An overwhelming majority for him is now certain. Naturally the result of the Journal's demands on the machine will be watched with interest and in the result of vacancies there will be lively interest as to who will be found to take up the burden.

It is only necessary to point out here that no matter how little care the bosses who nominated Mr. Hernandez exercised in picking a candidate and no matter how little attention they are giving the congressional election—that no matter how bitter the struggle for control of the old Republican machine may be, and how violent the hairpulling within the ranks, that these same Republican bosses are working as a unit to elect machine men to the legislature and bending every effort in the open and under cover to retain their hold on the lower house of the assembly.

A G. O. P. CALAMITOUS (P. L. Sumner Review.)
 The Evening Herald of Albuquerque says "there is no luck among Republicans this year." The biggest Republican in Fort Sumner agrees with the Herald and his opinion is based on experience. The gentleman weighs close around 550 pounds when his temper is normal. He was walking up a street Sunday, at peace with all the world excepting the Democratic party. He approached a corner, a white calf, its hip smoking from contact with a branding iron, came down the cross street. It was doing its best to get away from the hot iron. The man and the animal turned the corner at the same instant. From opposite directions. Result, a violent impact. The man went down and the calf went on. The calf bawled and the man made some noise himself when he regained his breath, but his remarks are censored. His dignity was shamefully outraged and his person bruised. The last seen of the calf is was crossing the divide, headed towards the Yess. Its owner did everything possible to assuage the injured man's feelings and ruffled condition, but his efforts were not appreciated to any extent. There is only bad luck for the Republicans this year.

Josephine E. McGuinness entered suit for divorce in the district court today against John H. McGuinness. She alleges that her husband's actions forced her to leave him on June 7, on which date they were in El Paso temporarily. She was forced to send to her father, Effeto Baca, she alleges, for money with which to make the journey home. McGuinness' wife alleges, at different times while drunk would threaten to kill himself before her and their two-year-old child, and that on occasions she was forced to leave the house in the middle of the night in consequence of such threats. McGuinness is said to have failed to provide for her and to have refused to pay the rent of their house here, and has, for assistance from her father she would have been dispossessed. The couple were married in this city September 1, 1910. McGuinness, according to the papers in the case, is a bookkeeper and earns $100 a month. CHANGE IN RULES GOVERNING DIPS FOR SHEEP

Board Requires Lime and Sulphur for Infected Stock and Modifies Regulation Regarding Bucks.

One regulation was modified and another tightened by the sheep sanitary board at its meeting in the office of Robert H. Grex, the secretary, in the First National bank building. A regulation adopted at the board at its June meeting required bucks to be dipped twice at the fall dipping. The regulation was changed, so that only one dipping of bucks is required. The other change affects infected stock. The rule now is that infected sheep must be dipped in lime and sulphur. Under the old regulation lime and sulphur was permitted for dipping. Hereafter only lime and sulphur dip is required.

THE FAIR SEASON.

(Springer Stockman)
 New Mexico is advancing rapidly in many respects, and one of the most important evidences of her progress is the fact that most all the counties are to have a fall fair where the people may congregate, exhibit their products and discuss better conditions, better methods and the raising of crops better adapted to the different localities. Fairs enable the people, especially the producers, to get together once a year after the season's work is over, and their exhibits, and their discussions over them, always results in some improvements. An exchange of opinions, where they are from actual experience, most always results in some good, and advancement in some line. In another way the fair is a splendid institution, especially to a country new in its development. Some from other states are generally in attendance, they get an idea what the country produces and they talk about it when they leave, and in this way the locality and district gets a good boost. Fairs, whether county, district or statewide in character, must be classed as among our most important institutions.
