AUTO EXHIBIT IN CONNECTION WITH ROAD MEETING

Automobile Man Makes Suggestion to Add Liveliness to Gathering of Highway Boosters If It Is Held Here.

In connection with the good roads convention, which the Albuquerque local is trying to bring to this city, it has been suggested that an automobile exhibition might be held. The automobile dealers and salesmen of the city have lined up with the roads local and the Commercial club in the effort to land the meeting.

Speaking of the exhibition idea, a dealer said: "I should like to see, as a feature of the good roads convention, a display of cars. Not a regular automobile show, but a general display of autos and accessories. And I would like to see trucks displayed particularly. A light truck on many of the farms in this state would pay for itself within a year. And getting a few more trucks and cars into the rural sections would certainly be a powerful factor in getting the roads improved."

"While we expect to obtain some financial benefit out of having the convention here," one of the local dealers said yesterday, "the main reason we want it is to help Albuquerque and, because the central location of this city will bring many more delegates than could be obtained if it were held elsewhere, to aid the cause of good roads."

"The good roads idea is primarily due to the automobile, but of late years, especially in the rural districts, it has been the means of bringing automobiles and motor trucks into use. The good roads movement is thus repaying the automobile people for the effort they expended to foster it. At the same time the farmers and others are reaping the harvest."

"While good roads mean more money for automobiles, they mean a great many things to those who have no cars. For instance, they make it easier for children to get to school in the country sections; they make it easier for people to get to church; they make shopping easier, and above all, from a financial point of view, they save money in hauling and make it possible for the farmer to get his produce to market at time, before it spoils or the market is glutted. This is a feature that has not been emphasized as it should."

"Though I do not sell trucks myself, I am told by those who ought to know, that since the road north to Alameda has been completed no less than five farmers out in that section have bought trucks and now make daily trips to market with their produce when before they used to make one trip a week, using horses, and then take about all day to do it. All that, they had to get up early to get to market in time."

The snuffbox parade, was rounding the plaza. A leering youth with his velvet hat far back on his head and a pair of large yellow shoes made facetious remarks as the marchers trailed by.
"Back to the cook stove!" he cried.
An elderly man looked around at him.
"Is your mother in the parade?" he asked.
"My mother!" snarled the youth. "Well, I should say not! My mother ain't got time for no such foolin'; she goes out washin'."
