REAL ESTATE WILL GO UNDER HAMMER AT LOW PRICES

Big Auction Sale of Reynolds Addition Lots Begins Thursday at 1 o'clock, Right on the Ground.

Griffith and Havens, real estate experts from Denver, will place on sale Thursday, beginning at 1 o'clock, some three hundred lots in the Reynolds Addition to the city of Albuquerque, the lots to be sold at auction to the highest bidder, ten per cent of the purchase price being asked as the initial payment. Lots will be sold at auction Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The sales will be conducted right on the ground and the auctioneer will indicate the lots offered, so that there will be no misunderstanding on the part of purchasers. Every lot will be tagged with lot and block number and the deed will be made out soon after sale. Auctioning off of lots is a new wrinkle in Albuquerque real estate operations, but no larger a novelty in many other sections of the country. Griffith and Havens, who are to sell the lots, are experienced real estate operators and have conducted five successful lot auctions within the last few months. "Albuquerque looks good to me," said Mr. Griffith today, speaking of the city as a field for investment in real estate. "In my opinion real estate here will increase in price right along. I understand that prices for realty here are on a firm foundation and never go back. This town has prospects not realized even by those who have lived here a number of years. They are too busy to think of getting a broad view of the city a few years hence."

The auction tomorrow will begin promptly at 1 o'clock. The first lots to be offered are those in the vicinity of Reynolds Park, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth on Silver avenue. Colonel Banks will conduct the auction. He is a veteran in the business and everybody is invited to attend and watch him perform.

COUNTRY CLUB HEATING SYSTEM GOES ON STRIKE

The hot water heating system at the Country Club went out of business Sunday night, and the club is temporarily without "automatic" heat. There was no way in which to arrange for necessary repairs in this city, so the club telegraphed for help. Until it comes the house committee will have to warm the club quarters with an open fire or by any other means that suggest themselves to ingenious and efficient committee-men.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE JONES BROTHERS

Some years ago Sam and Bill Jones made $50,000 each from mines at Cripple Creek, Colo. Sam moved to New York City, bought a law boat which he figured would pay him 10 per cent net above all expenses. After allowing him for maintenance, fire insurance and a sinking fund to replace the boat when it wore out, Sam thought he was fixed for life with a comfortable income. But he forgot to take out collision insurance and a big liner cut his boat in two one foggy night. And Sam's fortune and income are in the bottom of the ocean. Bill Jones moved to Denver, bought a pair of corner lots and built an apartment house which is keeping him and his family in comfortable circumstances today.

Bill says his father told him there was only one crop of land and to buy good lots whenever he could get them cheap and he would surely prosper. The big lot sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday offers you an opportunity. Albuquerque is the best city of its size in the world. Get your lots while they are cheap. Lots in a growing city are always increasing in value. And remember the largest fortunes in America have been made in real estate.

SCHOOL PROBLEM IN LODZ PROVES HARD TO SETTLE

Germans Find 80,000 Youngsters and Educational Facilities for Only About a Quarter of Number.

(Associated Press Correspondence.) Lodz, Poland, Dec. 28.—By no means the least of the problems which the Germans have to solve in Lodz is the school question. On their occupation of the city last December, the Germans found hopelessly inadequate school facilities, and, a shortage of teachers so great that it was out of the question to supply entirely the deficiency from Germany.

The city has a youthful population of some 80,000, and facilities for only 25,000 pupils. Some 20,000 of these attend the Polish folk or common schools, where they are instructed by men who themselves have nothing more than a high school education, and practically no pedagogical training. The remaining 5,000 attend private schools, and some, of course, from the better classes of the population.

In all the Polish folk schools, which are terribly overcrowded, there are in all but 150 underground, ill-equipped teachers. Added to in the number of children who attend the public and private schools, there are uncounted hundreds whose only educational opportunities lie in the 300 odd Jewish "cheders."

In company with the educational chief of the city, an Associated Press correspondent recently made a tour through Lodz, specially bent on seeing the "cheders" and their horde of pupils. There was revealed a condition of things almost unbelievable. The first school visited was typical of all the rest. It was in the second story of a building overlooking a stable, and was large enough to accommodate thirty children at the outside. Sixty-seven youngsters, however, were jammed into the little apartment, and sat in each other's laps to avoid standing.

Dirty scraps of bread and pieces of vegetables—remnants of bygone lunches by the children—covered the floor. Each of the children, as was not charged was miserably dirty. The teacher was a middle aged Jew, whose wife teaches on alternate days a class of girls in her bed room under conditions that appear no more favorable than in the boys' school. Each child pays 60 kopeks (10 cents) a month for the instruction, he receives, consisting principally of a smattering of religion. The school inspector had never visited this particular "cheder" before.

but from long experience he lighted a cigarette before entering the room to combat the sickening odor of the overcrowded place. The teacher, used to visits from Russian officials, began at once to protest that he had no money with which to pay tribute, and showed a dejected look when he was assured that no money was desired. His expression changed to wonder, however, when he was sternly ordered to reduce the size of his class, to eliminate all children under seven years old, and to clean up the floors and desks. He promised readily enough, but it was only too plain that he did not at all understand why such measures were necessary.

AMERICANS HELP PRISONERS HELD BY THE GERMANS

Eleven Recreation Halls and Reading Rooms Erected in Camps Throughout Empire to Cheer Captives.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—Through the generosity of Americans, eleven recreation rooms and recreation halls for prisoners of war have been erected in camps throughout Germany. The average cost of these buildings has been 6,000 marks ($1,500) but in many cases camp commanders have added large sums from their personal fortunes in order that the libraries might be more ornate or spacious. The conditions governing the gifts from the Americans have without exception been such that none of the money might be expended for books, and it has been the task therefore of the "Committee for the Erection of Soldiers' Homes in the East and Southeast" to gather literature of all kinds and send it, not only to the eleven halls, but also to the most extended trenches. On the German side at least the war has drawn in men from every walk of life, including students, teachers and others of a very high degree of education. The literary demands from the front therefore have been extremely varied, and the book-suppliers have been put to it to lay their hands on technical works and other volumes. Between France, England and Germany there has existed for some time a sort of working agreement by which books in the three languages are exchanged for the benefit of the prisoners of war in the three countries. Negotiations along the same line are now being conducted with Russia, and a shipment of 2,000 volumes in Russian from the University of Warsaw is soon to be distributed among Russian prisoners of war. The committee already has the names and addresses of 15,000 German soldiers on the various fronts, with whom correspondence has been opened pertaining to special books that are desired. As fast as it is possible to obtain the volumes they are forwarded to the trenches. A feature of the work is so-called wandering libraries, containing books of all sorts for both officers and men, which are sent to one company, read, and sent on to another. There are also a number of so-called field gray books, which have gray paper covers and are adaptable to use in the trenches. The paper which goes into the literature for the front costs about 10,000 marks per shipment, and the postage amounts to another 6,000 marks. The

"NAVY POET" WILL BE HONORED BY MANY

(Associated Press Correspondence) London, Dec. 15.—Patrick McGill, who began life as a laborer, came into fame as the author of "Children of the Dead End" and lately distinguished himself by his bravery at Loos, will have a wedding in London that many aristocrats would envy. Among the guests invited to the luncheon that follows the ceremony are the Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, Viscount Esher, Lady St. Heller and Canon and Lady Dalton, with his publisher, Mr. Herbert Jenkins, as his best man.

McGill is known as the "navy poet," the word "navy" meaning literally a road laborer. When the war broke out he enlisted in the London Irish. When wounded at Loos he was rescued under fire some of his companions who had been shot down. On another occasion a shell burst above his head and killed or wounded every man in his section without giving him a scratch. His own wound in the fleshy part of the arm will soon be healed, when he will return to the firing line. The author's bride is Miss Margaret Gibbons, a grand niece of the poetical and heretofore writer.

Schedules proposing higher rates were ordered cancelled.

Springer, N. M., Dec. 28.—Encouraged by his success this year, the farmers of this district are planning to put in an extra large acreage of wheat this fall. In the irrigated section near here at least half the land is being planted to wheat. The weather so far has been dry but no one is discouraged by this, as it has been shown dry farming will produce good crops here.
