

THE SUB-TREASURY BILL.

THE TWO QUESTIONS ARE: THE TARIFF AND FINANCIAL REFORM.

Our Correspondent Says That the Reform of the Tariff is the Greatest and the Finances Favorably the Sub-Treasury Bill.

There are two questions of vast moment before the American people. The first of these is the most important; but as it is old, and so associated with partisan politics, I despair of saying anything new or useful on the subject. I will, therefore, address myself to the second.

Under this system, which was the admiration of the world, there was built up a commerce that has never been exceeded in Europe. The same system was successful for a long time in Holland.

Then, a mill owner can, under this system, buy $100,000 worth of warehouse receipts, say, for $20,000, and draw his cotton as the demands of his mill require it, and pay for one part of his year's supply out of the proceeds of the other; or if he buys $100,000 worth of cotton outright he can deposit $20,000 worth of it and get eighty cents advance in money to manufacture and sell the $100,000 worth not deposited, and with the proceeds of the sale of that stock as much more from the warehouse as his present needs may demand.

Under this system no unnecessary moving of crops would be effected, for as the receipts would represent the cotton or other produce, the receipts would stay in the warehouse until needed for manufacturing or for use.

In history, we find people in ages of great growth and effort, resorting to other than gold and silver money. In the Augustan age of the Roman Empire, they used even land as a legal tender.

We have already recited the usages of Venice and Holland. In England we find that the foundation of the Bank of England, and its paper currency, are associated in time with the heroic efforts of those princes for liberty, civil and religious, then again, during the gigantic struggle between England and Napoleon we find that specie payment is forbidden by law; this it is said gave to England that strength and endurance which enabled her to cope successfully with this great adversary.

The success of the Revolutionary war, and the yet more heroic efforts of our ancestors in subduing this country were made possible by a paper currency; and Franklin wrote from Paris during the Revolution that our system was the wonder of Europe. The wonderful efforts of the Union and Confederate forces in the late war, with no sinews of war except a paper currency, are a magnificent tribute to the value of paper money.

That in every instance paper money had depreciated, and in some become worthless, is but a confirmation of the statement that gold and silver is too scarce to serve as the only basis of the currency.

The Kabo corset, besides being tough, so tough in its "bones" that they can't be broken or kinked or rolled up or slipped or shifted, has flexible loop eyelets, instead of metal ones which cut the corset laces.

In no respect will the Kabo corset fail in a year, unless the steels break. No way has yet been discovered to make unbreakable corset steels.

If the Kabo "bones" give out in a year, bring it back to us and get every cent of your money.

If, after wearing the Kabo two or three weeks, you don't like it, bring it back and get your money.

We have a primer on Corsets for you at the store.
