

"SOBER" IS NOW

OBSELETE WORD.
Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 31.—Prohibition has rendered obsolete the word "sober," according to the City Council here, and the term has been relegated to the scrap heap officially by that august body. The council recently in considering an automobile ordinance which provided that certain persons must be "sober and of good moral character," was surprised when one member objected strenuously to the inclusion of "sober."
"It is a reflection on the government and the constitution," the member said. "It recognizes a violation of law, and since we have prohibition it has become obsolete."
The objection at first was not taken seriously but upon insistence the term was eliminated by a vote of 12 to 7. One councilman refused to vote, stating that he "didn't know whether a man could be drunk or sober under the new order of things."

counties comprise this, the fifth district.
Rev. H. S. Hartzell, rector of the Episcopal church here, preached his farewell sermon Sunday night before going to Rockingham, where he has accepted work. Rev. Mr. Hartzell has been rector here for more than two years and has made many friends who regret to lose him from the town.
The following announcement has been received by friends in this city:
"Mrs. James P. Ellen announces the marriage of her niece, Rose I. Pope, to Frank Jordan, on Friday, January 27, 1922, Enfield, North Carolina."
Mrs. Jordan lived here for several years, and is well known in the county. She was a trained nurse and for a time was associated with Dr. Thel Hooks.

WHEN IS IT TOO COLD FOR A COCKATOO TO BE OUT
New York, Feb. 1.—Magistrate Dourns was asked today to decide whether it was too cold yesterday for a cockatoo to be out on the streets, but he did not comply. He merely suspended sentence on a fortune teller who owned the cockatoo, which the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals submitted should have been kept indoors in such weather as New York is having. The cockatoo, who lifts cards from a box in assisting his master to tell fortunes, behaved nicely in court.

THE CHRISTMAS SMOKER SAYS "ANYHOW SHE MEANT WELL"
New York, Feb. 1.—The box of cigars given as a Christmas gift usually hangs around a long time, often perhaps because it has not been opened. If it was a gift from a woman, the excuse for the long life "smokes" are enjoying is likely to be that they are too good to be dispatched hurriedly. A Member of the British Parliament, the Right Hon. J. R. Clynes, writing in an unusually charitable vein toward those who inflict their cigar judgment on one at Christmas time, gives some observations on his Christmas cigars,

OCRACOKE HOUSEHOLDERS DO NOT LOCK THEIR DOORS

Ocracoke, N. C., Feb. 2.—Although this little town about a century and a half ago was the rendezvous of one of the world's most daring and famous gang of crooks—Edward Teach (Bluebeard) and his band—it is today one community which the recent crime wave has not reached. There has not been an arrest here in more than ten years and the crimes of robbery, burglary, theft and murder are absolutely unknown to the population, insofar as they refer to Ocracoke.
John O'Neal, after holding office as Justice of the Peace at Ocracoke for eight years, resigned a year or more ago, not having had a criminal case during his administration. A successor has never been elected. Mr. O'Neal, who was born at Ocracoke, says the worst crime he can recall to have occurred at Ocracoke in 50 years was one of assault and battery.
There are only one or two homes here that have locks on the doors and the keys to those that are thus equipped are never used. Most of the houses at Ocracoke were wholly or partially constructed with lumber of ships which were wrecked on the treacherous shoals off the North Carolina coast. Every family here owns their home.
Ocracoke is at the extreme southern end of a little island by the same name, located about 30 miles off the mainland North Carolina, and is unique in many respects. Ocracoke Island, which is part of Hyde county North Carolina, is a little strip of land about 11 miles long and ranges in width from one half to one and half miles. The population of the Island numbers about 700, about 650 of whom live at Ocracoke. Those who do not live in the little town are members of the families of coast guardsmen, who patrol the coast.

As there are no railroads, automobiles, street cars or theatres where motion pictures are shown, many of the inhabitants at Ocracoke have never seen any of these things. With the exception of the men employed by the United States government as coast guardsmen and the few merchants in the little town, all Ocracokes make their living hunting and fishing.
Every person on Ocracoke Island is a Methodist in religion. They are divided, however, as to the sectional branch to which they belong, about half being members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, while the others attend the Northern church.
Ocracoke is one of the oldest settlements in America. The people are believed by many historians to be descendants of the "Lost Colony," of Sir Walter Raleigh.

expressing a few kindly thoughts and discussing bad smokes, in a recent issue of the Liverpool Post and Mercury. Here is what Mr. Clynes says: "The peculiar attribute of the Christmas cigar is that it is so often a present from some one else. That increases its value ten fold. A man must, at this season of festivity have cigars. Is there any man so abandoned as to buy only for himself? At all other times of the year your cigar smokers, regular and irregular, are for the most part smoking cigars to their own taste, purchased with their own money. But at Christmas every man is smoking cigars of some other man's choosing, (or sometimes, some other woman's choosing.)
"If the choice had been guided by the size and flamboyancy of the band, and if the decorative labels upon the lid have been allowed to make up the mind of the purchaser, or if the purchaser has trusted entirely to a salesman who does not smoke cigars himself, those cigars may take a long time to smoke.
"But they will be smoked. Can one let them rot in a cupboard, and become daily more dry and dreadful? Can a man give away a Christmas present? They will be smoked and with the casting of each stump into the fire or the gutter, or wherever may be its last resting place will go the thought, 'Anyhow, she meant well.'"

He was so pleased with the decision that he reached down and gave the boss a love peck.

TOBACCO SALES.
Sales on the local tobacco market yesterday amounted to 150,856 pounds; receipts, 45,263.60; average, 30 cents per pound, according to the report of Mr. H. B. Johnson, secretary of the Wilson tobacco board of trade.

A Prohibition Nut

Prohibition enforcement officers recently seized a shipment of coconuts at Jacksonville, Fla. The shells were filled with 100-proof corn liquor. As you see in the photo, the contents of one coconut almost fills a water tumbler.
