J. L. COLLINS, Chairman. Dallas, Jan. 29th, 1870.

The Prospect.

From every portion of the State comes the glorious news of the certain victory which awaits the Republican party on the 6th of next June. The damnable and cowardly subterfuges to which the opposition press have resorted to carry on the campaign, too clearly indicate what the Democracy expect will be the fate of their candidates. The honest and intelligent citizens of Oregon will just as surely put their stamp of condemnation upon all such acts as the day of election comes. The masses are honest and do not endorse this wholesale attack upon the very best citizens of the country. The Republican candidates for the offices of the State are men of unimpeached and unimpeachable character, and will be elected; and when so elected will do their duty to all citizens irrespective of party.

Judge Wilson will represent the people of Oregon in Congress, where he will have that influence in her behalf which his splendid abilities and the interests of the State demand. He is a good lawyer, gave the utmost and entire satisfaction to the people of the Fifth Judicial District as their Judge, and will give equally as good satisfaction in the halls of Congress.

Gen. Palmer will be our next Governor, and none better could be selected from among the many good men of Oregon for that place. He is the people's man. He has been and is one of them. Coming to Oregon in an early day, he was called upon to help carve out the future greatness of our State, by rugged labor. He has not been one of those "kid-gloved" nabobs who has been afraid of toil. He has rolled up his sleeves and delved into the mighty forests, making sad havoc with the woodman's axe. He has gone into the harvest fields and bound up the rich sheaves of grain, of which Oregon boasts so much. He has engaged in all the industrial pursuits of the State. There is not an honorable vocation in Oregon, however humble, in which Gen. Palmer cannot strike hands with its follower and say with truthfulness that he has engaged in just as humble pursuits.

Workingmen of Oregon, now is the time to strike for the reform which the laboring classes of the country demand. Let no man go to the polls on the first Monday in June and cast his vote for the kid-gloved Grover, who don't even take exercise enough to enjoy good health, and against Palmer, whose hands are calloused with honest toil, and then say that this is a war of capital against labor, unless he wishes to enlist on the side of the money power and against the laboring masses. Laboring men of Oregon, go to the polls and cast your votes for the man for Governor who is one of you, who feels for you, who knows what it is to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, and who is not so far above you in feeling that he would disdain to speak to you after his election. If you fail to look to your interests, now that an opportunity offers, forever after hold your peace.

James Elkins, our next Secretary of State, is a man in every respect fitted for the position. As County Clerk of Linn county, for four years, he gave entire satisfaction to men of all parties. He is also one of the people. He has been reared to believe labor is the highest vocation of man, and he has been consistent in its practice. He is not a second-class lawyer like his opponent. He is a first-class clerk. He is a man of experience and practical sense.

Mr. Hirsch, our State Treasurer, is a business man of long standing in Salem. The fact of his living where the Treasury is kept is enough to weigh decidedly in his favor. If his opponent should be elected, who can tell who would be the Treasurer? Does any one believe that a business man of the city of Portland would move to Salem for $800 per year? He could not afford to do it, unless he expected to draw very heavy on the stealings.

Mr. Kincaid, our State Printer, is a practical printer. That ought to be enough to elect him. His opponent is not; that ought to be enough to beat him. Is there a "print" in Oregon that don't consider it an outrage on the craft to have a man crammed on them who is not a practical printer? Political parties ought to be taught a lesson, and that is to respect the rights of the craft. They owe more to printers than any other class of men. Printers, stand by one another.

WEST SIDE RAILROAD.—While in Portland, the first of the week, we saw a gentleman who is interested in the Portland, Astoria and McMinnville Railroad, who informed us that the company had secured enough iron and rolling stock to complete the road a distance of forty miles. This will bring it up to the neighborhood of McMinnville. It is not the intention of the company to stop at that town, but to push the road forward as fast as possible. It is idle to think for a moment that the road will not be built further than the point named in the bill granting the subsidy. Many object because the bill did not give aid for a road further south than McMinnville, but then they do not consider that the Government had any land beyond that village to give away, for the aid extended to the road on the East Side of the river includes all the vacant land within thirty miles of the road, on both sides, and that distance will go back into the mountains fifteen miles west of this place. But, notwithstanding the Government was unable to help the enterprise in its southern extremity, yet, by reason of the substantial subsidy extended to the northern end of the road, the company will be able to build the road through the whole length of the valley.

It is said that the price of sheep is looking up since a certain individual, who resides at Dixie, is about to remove to the upper country. Ye sheep raisers of east of the mountains, look out for the Willamette Valley varmint. He has been scalped, but, unfortunately, escaped with his life.

We notice that some of our exchanges, in accrediting items to the REPUBLICAN, accredited to the "Polk Co. Republican," instead of the OREGON REPUBLICAN, the true name. We desire our friends to know that our circulation is not confined alone to the narrow confines of a county. We claim the State of Oregon as our theater of action as much as Polk county.

An Association of Gentlemen, So-Called.

At the time the above association took charge of the Salem Press, no one could divine why any and all responsible names should have been suppressed, and the public left in the dark as to the "dad" of the concern; but since it has outraged public decency to such an extent that even the meanest of the party deny its being a party organ, every one can see why the contemptible clique, who grind out a batch of billingsgate every day, should be ashamed to own the bastard thing. Is there an honest Democrat who can or does endorse the villainous sheet?

No wonder that such mean villains should be ashamed to have a decent and honorable community know their names. Men who would thus shield themselves behind the curtains of an editorial sanctum, and spit out their venom and filth upon honest and respectable citizens who are not candidates for office, and who belch out their lies—of the deepest dye—upon those who are candidates, are not too good to steal old Delaney's money, fitch $50,000 from the Government in four years, or repudiate a "sell-out stick" for the whiskey and be very politely invited, by the bar-tender, to not darken the door again, or go to New York with the avowed purpose of business but really to consult a renowned man of physic as to the best cure for a lung disease, or ———.

If the so-called "gents" expect to make votes by their warfare upon good men they had better fortify in something stronger than a glass house. Come out, you villains, and let the public see what kind of animals you be. You are already branded as cowards by an impartial public. Execution follows in your wake.

Candidates for Congress.

The candidates for Congress, Messrs. Wilson and Slater, spoke here last Tuesday. Owing to the press of work with the farmers there was rather a slim turnout from the country, yet the Court House was very well filled. The debate was opened by Judge Wilson in an able, effective and honest speech in defence of the Republican principles as contained in the State platform. He fortified every position with the soundest logic and the most irrefutable history. Our platform was defended with the utmost success. The Democratic platform was thoroughly aired, and its weakness and demagoguism exposed in the most complete manner.

Mr. Slater followed Judge Wilson, and perhaps did as well as any one could under the circumstances. Mr. S. evidently felt that the responsibility of packing the entire obnoxious portion of his platform was upon his shoulders. He is a large man, and yet he worried, sweat and blundered like a tired mule. He evidently felt that he was carrying everything that would in the least hurt Mr. Grover, including repudiation. Poor Slater! he certainly feels that he is overmatched, and his friends—what few he has—evidently feel worse than he does.

Judge Wilson closed the argument in splendid style. He completely riddled the sophistry of Slater; showed up his repudiation dodge, and brought the house down at the close of his short reply. In fact, Wilson was a success and the discussion a triumph for the Republican party. Set down old Polk for Wilson.

Slater quoted from a speech of Thad. Stevens, to show the position occupied by that deceased statesman on a law of Congress, cited by Judge Wilson, which said law was never introduced into Congress till after Stevens had been dead more than six months. We suppose he thought he was giving the Judge "Hark from the tombs."

Four years ago the Republican press of this State charged upon the Democratic party that it was in favor of repudiation. In their platform they denied that the imputation was true. Two years ago the same indictment was drawn up, but again they plead not guilty. But this year the party, in a State platform, has demanded "equitable adjustment," and in several counties have adopted out and out repudiations. Thus is the prediction of Republicans made true.

Political Notes.

A letter from Umatilla dated May 5th, expresses the opinion that Eastern Oregon will give less than five hundred majority for the Democratic State ticket. Another authority says, "not over three hundred." We have such advices as lead us to the conclusion that Jackson county will not go more than one hundred and fifty and Linn not over two hundred majority Democratic. There is everything to encourage us in the belief that, as compared with two years ago the Democratic vote will be relatively reduced greatly in almost every county. To secure a complete Republican triumph in June, it is only necessary that Republicans everywhere unite their efforts and work diligently and persistently through the remainder of the campaign.

There could scarcely be a more significant answer to those who advocate free trade to bring down prices than the memorial recently sent to Congress, signed by over thirty thousand railroad officers, and praying for a specific duty of two cents per pound on steel. These gentlemen set forth that, under the competition with American works erected within a few years past, foreign steel-makers have reduced the price from $150 to less than $79 gold. Could any argument be more conclusive.

The Gazette, speaking of the history of repudiation, says;

It is true enough that the National platforms of 1868-8 have declared against repudiation, as above set forth, but the hour was not then ripe for the damning heresy. Policy and plausibility are the ruling sentiments of the platforms, and the Democracy were wise enough to understand that the patriotic hosts, still warm with the anger of battle, would be kindled into fiery and fatal wrath by the teacherous proposition, come from what source it might. Through all these passing years, however, the party has been counting infamy, and waiting the auspicious moment when, on bended knee before the spectre of national dishonor, its accursed affections might be avowed. That moment had seemingly arrived when Mungen unmasked the corruption of the Democratic heart—soon to be followed by the whining treachery of the Albany lingo. It was thought that the grip of hard necessity, and the ceaseless irritation of the tax law were, in the language of the Democratic platform, a "burden too intolerable to be borne."

Some time since the Albany Democrat made some severe criticisms on the Oregon City Enterprise for advocating repudiation. The Enterprise makes a feeble reply, and introduces the eminent Democratic argument of greenbacks for the soldier, and gold to the bondholder. The Democrat disposes of this by saying:

In answer to the boyish blubber about the wronged soldier, we say this: The soldier knew that he was to get only a certain stipend for his service when he enlisted, and there is nothing wrong in this—it proves nothing. The wail for the widow and orphan that arises from the sympathetic editor of the Enterprise is perhaps creditable to his heart, but illy becomes the head of a man who is the advocate of the most stupendous robbery that ever was attempted to be perpetrated in any age or clime. Sighs, sobs and groans are formidable in the mouths of female valentinaires, but simply ridiculous in the mouths of able bodied men. We do not believe that the honest and sensible portion of the community will show by their votes, next June, that they like such "equitable adjustment," as is advocated by the Enterprise.

The repudiation organ of this city denies, says the Oregonian, that it favors repudiation, or that its party is committed to the doctrine. But Col. Chapman, who is an older and a better Democrat than any one connected with that paper, says that it has "sown the seeds of repudiation broadcast," and that he has tried to "eradicate them from the Democratic mind;" but intimates that he has had poor success. So this point is supported by the very best of Democratic testimony.

HUSH PET.—Bub Grover's Little Tidy seems, lately, to have been washed of its curliness, and the tan-vat bilge-water seems to have been pressed out. The pester is gone; but it is not clean, for it frets, weeps, mules and pukes, like other teething children, and then it scolds and even threatens. "Hush, my dear, lie still and slumber."

COME OUT.—The Salem Press charges that certain men in Dallas are engaged in buying votes outright for the Republican ticket; insinuates who they are, and threatens to expose them. Now we defy that sheet to name the men who are thus engaged, and bring the proof. Come to time, gentlemen, "so-called."
