

The Message.

The President's Message we have received, but is too lengthy for us to publish it entire.

He next recommends an enquiry into, and consideration of, the injuries to the revenue, by the present management of the Mexican Government.

The remainder of the Message is devoted to the usual routine of such documents. Taken altogether, it is a fair statement of the present condition of affairs, and such recommendations as he deems for the best.

He then notices the different proclamations issued from time to time, defining the duties of the United States to prevent the violation of the neutrality laws.

He referred to the massacre of French and Prussian citizens at Tientsin, and the probable causes which led to this, and the manner of its settlement.

The condition of the Cubans is briefly referred to, the extradition treaties, the Venezuelan claims, the disposal of the claims of the Lloyd Aspinwall, and the conference of the Minister of Spain and the allied South American colonies, held in Washington, for the settling of difficulties between their respective Governments, their mutual adjustment and its effects, are briefly noticed, and then the acquisition of San Domingo comes in and receives a very lengthy notice, the pitch of which is, that our interests demand that we should form an alliance, or secure annexation.

We have received a copy of the Pioneer, published by Emily Pitts Stevens, of San Francisco, California. It is devoted to "Human Rights." Judging from the reading, we would suppose it to be devoted to "Women's Rights"—these we had always supposed to be "Divine." May success attend it.

Peter's Musical for Dec. has made its appearance on our table. It is musical, thoroughly so, and contains some fine selections.

From the New York World. "From the official returns it appears that the Republicans have carried everything before them in south Carolina—Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, all four Congressmen, and an overwhelming majority in the Legislature.

The West Side, in its issue of the 13th inst., under heading of "The New Party," uses this, to us, incomprehensible language:

The only common difference between the two great parties to-day, is sustaining the Administration, and obtaining the offices, and the sooner both these are dropped the better."

Does our contemporary mean by this assertion to inculcate the idea that we must "drop" the support of the Administration, for fear of rousing a party spirit, and engendering party strife? And also, that all must "drop" the desire of obtaining office, for fear they be termed political demagogues? Or, what does he mean? Nika wake cumtux.

What We May Depend Upon.

The Herald of Dec. 10th contained an extract from the St. Louis Republican, concerning the recent elections in Missouri, in which the writer, after indulging in severe criticism on the late election there, uses this language:

"The Democracy of Missouri are as completely satisfied with the triumph of B. Gratz Brown, as if he were an avowed Democrat; and it is certain that the insurgent Republicans of 1872 will have quite as good reason to be satisfied with a Democratic leader under whom to fight the Presidential battle of that year."

The first part of this extract is simply a silly, soft-soaping, milk-and-water style of putting up with what is particularly disagreeable, by political demagogues, to draw a blind over the more incredulous, and to hoodwink those who are anyway dissatisfied with the present status of affairs, and, as far as possible, to prepare them for the declaration which immediately follows.

In that assertion, we are given to understand that the Democrats are determined to stand by their "time-honored principles," and that any Republicans who choose to go into the Democratic ranks, must go with the express understanding, that in the Presidential contest of 1872, they must come under a straight out Democratic ticket, mounted upon a true Democratic platform.

Russia, instead of using the watchword of "Alsace and Lorraine," has dropped that, and substituted therefor, "Luxembourg and Holland," and seems to be coming to the conclusion, that she has no business south of the Rhine.

Another New Policy. Grant has inaugurated a new Indian policy—gives the appointments to the churches; consequently, and as a matter of course, our friends Simpson and Lafollette must walk the plank, just at a time when they have things in good trim for prosperity, and the advancement of the poor Indian.

LITTLE BY LITTLE.—Little by little the printer pays out his money. A little for a press, a little for type, a little for paper, a little for rollers, a little for ink, a little for help, a little for rent, a little for wood, a little for this and a little for that; but continually a little never stopping, a constant drain.

MOTHERS, I'VE FOUND IT! FOR YEARS I HAVE SEARCHED FOR a remedy that WOULD cure your children by removing the CAUSE, and at last I can say "Eureka!"

SMALL POX.—Mr. McMahon was taken with the prevailing disease yesterday. He had his family and a portion of his furniture removed to another house.

The Situation in the Old World.

Latest dispatches from the field of war indicate a change of policy on the part of the Prussians. Instead of subduing the French, as was their policy at first, they have inaugurated a new regime, and now propose to treat with the captured Emperor as the leader of the French nation, and then leave him and his people to fight it out in their own way.

This seems to be the probable finale of this great contest. As to the establishment of an empire in France, we are led to believe the scheme at present to be an impracticable one. Never has the French nation been in as favorable a condition for the sustenance of a Republic as at present.
