

The Printer's Toll.

Blow ye stormy winds of winter, Drive the chilly, drifting snow, Closely housed, his busy printer Heeds not how the winds may blow.

ENIGMA No. 9.—I am composed of 24 letters.

My 1, 14, 8, 4, 23, 7, persons often get. My 13, 15, 2, 18, 12, 9, 15, is a near relative.

Answer to No. 8.—SEA SICKNESS.

THE YANKEE FACTORY GIRLS.

In one of the factories in Maine, recently, the proprietors reduced the wages, whereupon there was a general determination to strike; and as they were obliged to give a month's notice before quitting work, they had meanwhile issued a circular to the world at large, in which is the following interesting paragraph: "We are now working out our notice—can turn our hand to most anything—don't like to be idle—but determined not to work for nothing where folks can afford to pay."

LABOR CONDUCTIVE TO LONG LIFE.

In view of the short duration of life entailed by some occupations, it must be regarded as a consoling, yet a sublime fact, that labor in general does not tend to shorten life, but, on the contrary, by strengthening health, lengthens life; while on the other hand, idleness and luxury are productive of the same results as the most unhealthy occupations.

A dandy entered a stationer's shop, and with a very consequential air, inquired, "Hab you a few quires of letter paper of the very best rate, for a gentleman to write lub letters on?"

Facts and Fancies.

A cereous matter—Bees-wax. Switch tenders—hair pins. A dead language—obituaries.

"Well, there is something in that?" as the man said when he tried to put on his boot with a kitten in it.

"What is home without a mother?" as the young lady said when she sent the old lady to chop wood.

A noble Roman being asked why he had put away his wife, she being beautiful and rich, he stretched forth his foot, and showed his buskin. "Is not this," said he, "a handsome and complete shoe?—yet no man but myself knows where it pinches me."

A poetical correspondent of the Lincolnian having commenced some passionate stanzas, addressed to Miss Hays, with the words:—"Sweet minstrel! let me hang upon thy lips," kindly informs us in a note that the expression is put "purely metaphorical."

An Englishman observed a stone roll down a staircase. It bumped on every stair till it came to the bottom; there of course it rested. "That stone," said he, "resembles the national debt of my country; it has bumped on every grade of the community, but its weight rests on the lowest."

"Ah, Eliza," said a Sunday-school teacher, "you should not waste precious time curling your hair; if God intended it to be curled, he would curl it for you." "Indeed," said the witty maid, "I must differ with you; when I was an infant, he curled it for me, but now I am grown up, he thinks I am able to do it myself."

A young Scotch girl inquired of a gentleman, in broad Gaelic, the road to Tremont House. He desired her to follow him, and asked her how long since she arrived from Scotland; "Six weeks yer honor." On her arrival at destination, she very coolly inquired: "Noo, sir, wae ye jast tell me hoo ye kenne'd I was frae Scotland?"

A man of learning was complaining to Voltaire that few followers relished the beauties of Shakespeare. "Sir," replied the wit, "bad translations torment and vex them, and prevent them understanding your great dramatist. A blind, sir, cannot perceive the beauties of the rose; he only picks his fingers with the thorns."

A servant girl, the other day, hearing that a certain advertiser would be happy to give the character of any person on the receipt of a lock of hair and so many postage stamps, actually cut off her finest curls and sent them through the post, with a request that he would give her such a character as would enable her to get a better place than the one she had.

A lecturer at Preston on the English language, Mr. J. G. Cope, spoke of sem de Saxonizing tendencies:—"The affection of Greek and French terminology had attained a nauseous extreme; we were killed with ennui, we wanted something distingue, we dressed a la mode, and so on. Then, as to Greek names; and a more dignified sort of hardy-gurdy was embalmed in the pompous appellation of gastrodiaphanac."

A little boy named Knight, who recently entered a mission school New London, was told by his teacher that he must be a good boy, and when he died he would go to Heaven. The little fellow was pleased with the prospect, and promised to be the best kind of a boy.

The next Sunday he appeared in his place, looking sorrowful, and the teacher asked him if he had been a good boy. "Yes," he replied, "I've tried to be good, but it's no use. The boys say I can't go to Heaven if I am ever so good." "Why do the boys say that?" asked the teacher. "They say," replied the boy, "with the utmost simplicity, 'there'll be no night there.'"

THE BACHELOR JUROR.—A gentleman who is rather given to story telling, relates the following:

When I was a young man I spent several years in the South, residing for a while at Port Hudson on the Mississippi River. A great deal of litigation was going on there about that time, and it was not always an easy matter to obtain a jury. One day I was summoned to get excused.

On my name being called I informed his honor, the Judge, that I was not a freholder, and therefore not qualified to serve.

"I am stopping for the time being at Port Hudson."

"You board at the hotel I presume?"

"I take my meals, but have rooms in another part of the town where I lodge."

"So you keep bachelor's hall?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you lived in that manner?"

"About six months."

"I think you are qualified," gravely remarked the judge; "for I have never known a man to keep bachelor's hall the length of time you name who had not dirt enough in his room to make him a freholder! The Court does not excuse you."
