ALLOYED.

How easy 'tis to wish a lady joy—
Nothing so cheap is offered without fears—
Joy, like rare metals, needs must have alloy
To lend it substance unto useful years:
So thou wilt find no joy unmixed with tears,
There is, I think, in every pleasing note,
Struck from the harp of life, a minor strain,
That keeps it in the memory aloof
Unto a time it may be heard again—
Though angel-welt into a new refrain
Like that rare wax which the perfumers use
To hold in ward each fine and subtle scent,
That otherwise a presence would refuse
In perfect essences, for beauty blent,
All things seem strangely held for good intent.

Sorrow holds joy; the course retains the fine;
Age fosters beauty: Hope is life endured
Unto an ending, which is proof and sign
That by itself its own worst ills are cured—
By earthly things the heavenly are assured!
San Francisco, June 12, 1885. FRANK ROSE STARR.

G. O. P.

The following conversation between the members of the G. O. P. was overheard at the depot a few days since.

"Hello Jones what is the news in Portland?"

"Well I suppose you have heard that our Bosses have decided to have an extra session of the legislature."

"Gee Whilkims an extra sessions of the great 'low not to do it' what have we done to be thus afflicted?"

"Why friend it is for our omissions, our failure to elect a United States Senator that necessitates the extra session. The Bosses say we must have one."

"What! call an extra session, revive the war between the clans, put the State to 30 or 40 thousand dollars expense for the mere chance of electing a United States Senator? Why the democrats will knock us higher than Gilroy's kite at the next general election."

"You are right it is a gloomy outlook. The action of the last legislature has disgusted the people to such an extent that the democrats will doubtless carry the state at the next general election and will of course elect a democrat senator. If the Governor appoints it is only for two years and if he calls the legislature together, establish peace between the different factions, concentrates upon some good man and elects him we have a republican Senator for six years at an expense as you say of thirty or forty thousand dollars. Rather gloomy isn't it?"

"You bet it is; Good bye."

"Good bye."

The Golden Rule and the Rule of Gold.

The N. Y. Tribune has the following short editorial, which conveys a more meaning than a column on the same subject:

A few days ago, a gentleman of this city received by mail a check for five hundred dollars. He deposited it in a bank and went down the street, there to be met by a rumor that sent him back in haste. Just twenty-five minutes had elapsed. The teller's little door was shut. The money was gone. Had it been stolen? Was the banker a swindler? No, he had failed.

About the same time a merchant received a large quantity of goods one day near the close of business hours. He made some commonplace excuse for not making immediate payment, and promised to send a check next morning. He had the goods, but the real owner was without his check. Was the merchant a thief? Ought he have gone to jail? Not at all. He had merely suspended. He was unable to meet his obligations.

Two young men were recently brought into one of our police courts on a charge of stealing shoes from a third avenue store. They were decent in appearance and it was believed by some they had been driven to crime by want. Had they failed, or had they suspended? Or was it because they were unable to meet their obligations? Not at all. They were thieves—common thieves—very common thieves. They were sent to the penitentiary for two months.

The Rev. Herber Newton, in a very sensible sermon upon the conduct of funerals and the attitude of people toward bereavement, puts in a good word against the wearing of mourning, especially by children. To many minds there is great impropriety in advertising a family and personal loss by a peculiarity of garb. Nothing but the tyranny of custom sustains such a usage in the present age, and it is better observed in the breach than in the observance. Mr. Newton makes his protest more especially in behalf of children, many of whom are sensitive beyond our realization to colors. But the whole practice of wearing black is at variance with the teaching of the gospel in regard to the nature of death, and a relic of the prevalence of more gloomy views.

A GENTLEMAN is a rarer thing than some of us think for. Which of us can point out many such in his circle—men whose aims are generous, whose truth is constant and elevated, who can look the world honestly in the face with an equal, manly sympathy for the great and the small? We all know a hundred whose coats are well made, and a score who have excellent manners, but of gentlemen, how many? Let us take a little scrap of paper, and each make his list.—Thackeray.

President Cleveland's Proclamation.

Immediately upon the announcement of the death of General Grant, President Cleveland issued the following address in memory of the great hero, warrior and statesman:

"The President of the United States has just received the sad tidings of the death of that illustrious citizen and ex-President of the United States General Ulysses S. Grant, at Mt. McGregor in the State of New York, to which place he had been removed in endeavors to prolong his life. In making this announcement to the people of the United States, the President is impressed with the magnitude of the public loss of a great military leader, who was in the hour of victory magnanimous, amid disaster serene and self-sustained; who, in every station, whether as a soldier or Chief-Magistrate, twice called to power by his fellow-country men, trod unswervingly the pathway of duty, undeterred by doubt, single-minded and straight-forward. The entire country has witnessed with deep emotion his prolonged and patient struggle with the painful disease, and has watched by his couch of suffering with tearful sympathy. The destined end has come at last, and his spirit has returned to the Creator who sent it forth. The great heart of the nation that followed him when alive, with love and pride, bows now in sorrow above him dead, tenderly mindful of his virtues, of his great patriotic services, and of the loss occasioned by his death. In testimony of the respect to the memory of General Grant, it is ordered that the Executive Mansion and the several departments in Washington, be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and that all public business shall, on the day of the funeral, be suspended, and the secretaries of War and of the Navy will cause orders to be issued for appropriate military and naval honors to be rendered on that day.

In witness whereof, I hereunto have set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington, this twenty-third day of July A. D., one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and independence of the United States one hundred and tenth."

(Signed) GROVER CLEVELAND,
By the President.

T. F. Bayard, Secretary of State.

The Next Encampment.

At the recent meeting of the Grand Army at Portland, Maine, the selection of San Francisco as the next place for holding the encampment gave universal satisfaction. There is no doubt but what a vast number of visitors will be present there next year, even exceeding the attendance at Portland, Maine. G. A. R. men all over the country who have not seen the Pacific coast are already saving their spare money with which to make the trip. Fares will be reduced to such reasonable rates as to induce many thousands to go to San Francisco who would not otherwise do so. That the holding of the encampment on this coast will benefit it very much, is not at all doubtful. The G. A. R. contains within its ranks many of the most distinguished and energetic men of the republic. Thousands will pass through Portland, Oregon, and Seattle, on their way home after the encampment is over, and will carry back with them stories of the rising Pacific northwest. The departments of Washington and Oregon are now considering the advisability of chartering a steamer to convey the delegations and visitors from this section to San Francisco next year when the encampment meets.—Telegraph.

An Extract.

Laugh at it as we may, put it aside as a jest if we will, keep it out of Congress or political campaigns, still, the woman question is rising in our horizon larger than the size of a man's hand; and some solution, ere long, that question must find. I have not yet committed my mind to any formula that embraces the whole question. I halt on the threshold of so great a problem; but there is one point on which I have reached a conclusion, and that is, that this nation must open up new avenues of work and usefulness to the women of the country, so that everywhere they may have something to do. This is, just now, infinitely more valuable to them than the platform or the ballot-box. Whatever conclusions shall be reached on that subject by-and-by, at present the most valuable gift which can be bestowed on women is something to do, which they can do well and worthily and thereby maintain themselves. Therefore I say that every thoughtful statesman will look with satisfaction upon such Business Colleges as are opening a career for our young women. On that score we have special reasons to be thankful for the establishment of these institutions.—Applause.

Princess Beatrice is a year older than the "obscure beggar," Batterberg. From what is said about him by the members of the family into which he had been married, it is plain that the girl could have done better almost anywhere "out west." She might have made a catch of one of the rich cow-boys of Montana or Texas.

THE GENERAL'S THOUGHTS.

An Interesting Document Written for Doctor Douglas on July 2.

Mt. McGregor, July 25.—While in conversation to-day with a correspondent of the Associated Press, Dr. Douglas read the following remarkable document, written by Grant in Douglas presence, July 2:

I ask you not to show this to anyone, unless the physicians you consult with, until the end. Particularly I want it kept from my family. If known to one man the papers will get it, and they (the family) will get it. It would only distress them all beyond endurance to know it, and by reflex would distress me. I have not changed my mind materially since I wrote you before in the same strain. Now, however I know that I gain strength some days but when I do go back it is beyond where I started to improve. I think the chances are decidedly in favor of my being able to keep me alive until the change of weather toward winter. Of course there are contingencies that might arise at any time that might carry me off very suddenly. The most probable of these is choking. Under the circumstances I am very thankful for "thankful" "glad" was written, but scratched out, and "thankful" substituted to have been spared this long, because it has enabled me to practically complete the work in which I take so much interest. I cannot stir up strength enough to review it and make additions and subtractions that would suggest themselves to me and are not likely to suggest themselves to anyone else. Under the circumstances I will be happiest at the main point I can avoid. If there is to be any extraordinary cure, such as some people believe there is to be, it will develop itself. I would say to you and colleagues to make me as comfortable as you can. If it is with in God's providence that I should go now, I am ready to obey his call, without a murmur. I should prefer to go now to enduring my present sufferings for a single day without the hope of recovery.

As I have stated, I am thankful for the providential extension of my time, to enable me to continue my work. I am further thankful, and in a much greater degree, because it has enabled me to see for myself the happy harmony which so suddenly sprang up between those engaged but a few years ago in deadly conflict. It has been an inestimable blessing to me to hear kind expressions toward me in person from all parts of our country, from people of all nationalities, all religions and no religions; of confederates and national troops alike; of soldiers' organizations, of mechanical, scientific, religious and other societies, embracing almost every citizen in the land. They have brought joy to my heart, if they have not effected a cure. So, to you and colleagues, I acknowledge my indebtedness for having brought me through the valley of the shadow of death, to enable me to witness these things. U. S. GRANT.

Proclamation.

STATE OF OREGON, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, SALEM, July 23, '85.

It is my sad duty to announce the death of the ex-chief magistrate of the nation Gen. U. S. Grant, who died to-day at his residence at Mt. McGregor, in the State of New York.

The greater part of his active life having been spent in the service of his country, I trust all of the people of the state of Oregon will do reverence to the memory of the dead hero and suspend their usual labor on the day of his final obsequies and in such way as may seem proper to pay the respect that is due our lamented chieftain.

Z. F. MOODY,
Governor.

Attest:
R. P. EARHART,
Secretary of State.

Relieving His Mind of a Burden.

Minister (to Jeron of the church)—
"I want to refer to a matter, my dear deacon, that has been preying on my mind for some time. I am sure you will overlook any apparent meddling in your affairs, knowing that I only speak for your own good."

Deacon (cordially)—"Certainly, my dear sir; speak your mind freely."

Minister—"I understand you have been speculating a good deal of late. Now, aside from the danger of such a business and the consequent misery it may entail upon your family, do you consider it just the proper thing for a deacon of the—"

Deacon—"Yes, I admit that I have speculated some. I cleared $5,000 only yesterday on a wheat transaction. Minister (astounded)—"No, is that so? What's wheat worth to-day?—Drake's Magazine.

Tit for Tat.

Alumnus (meeting his old professor, after greetings). I'm glad to hear, professor, that you are going to lecture in our town on your favorite old-time topic."

Professor—"Yes, yes. But I have divested it of technicalities—in fact, recast it—so that it will reach persons of very limited acquirements. Hope to see you there."

A Hint to the Young Men.

He—"You don't sing or play. Then I presume you write or print."

She—"Oh no; I'm like the young men we meet in society. I simply sit around and try to look intelligent."
