Aliens for the South.

"If the south wants immigrants she will have to raise wages to the level that prevails in the north and west."

This was the blunt advice given to the southern states immigration commission by Robert Watchorn, commissioner of immigration. He welcomed some thirty members of the new organization to Ellis island the other day, showed them the workings of the place and told them what they would have to expect in the attempt to deflect immigration toward the south, says the New York Times.

"You may think that immigrants come to this country without knowing where they are going," said commissioner Watchorn, "and that you can get them as they land from the boats. It is not so. Out of every 400 that come here 300 know exactly where they are going. If you try to make them change their minds by telling them how superior the south is they are apt to think you are confidence men. If you don't believe it just come downstairs and see how many you can persuade to alter their course."

The commissioner and the visitors trooped into the "railroad room," where dozens of swarthy Europeans were waiting to be shipped off. The Louisiana representative approached a staring Italian, and the other southerners crowded around to listen. "What" is your business? asked the Louisiana man through the interpreter.

"Bricklayer," answered the Italian. Then the southerner began to tell of the manifold advantages of living in Louisiana, how an immigrant could get ten acres of land, a house, farming implements and many other things.

The Italian listened stolidly. When he had heard the tale to the end he said:

"Farming—it is not my business." That was all he had to say. The man from Louisiana said he hadn't had a fair chance. He was looking for a farmer. Commissioner Watchorn found five Greek farmers all in a row.

To one of them, who said he was bound west to meet a cousin, was told the manifold advantages of Louisiana. The interpreter told him about the pigs and the cows and the green grass and the kind treatment he would get. Looking the stout man from Louisiana, the Greek asked abruptly:

"Who are you? Whom do you represent?"

The answer did not make the foreigner enthusiastic.

"I'll go to my cousin," he announced. "That's the way it is with 300 out of 400," said Watchorn. "The best chance you have is to get them after they reach their destination—if they are disillusioned."

Several immigrants who had been excluded by the board of special inquiry were brought in to the commissioner's office on appeal, so that the visitors could see how the system worked. Three little Swedes, a boy of fourteen and twins of eleven, were the first comers. Their brother wanted them in Minnesota, but his affidavit had not satisfied the board. When they filed in a big Georgian said:

"I'll take 'em right now."

"I'll give 'em a home and take care of 'em," volunteered a Tennesseean, though his offers were not in order, though, and the commissioner proceeded to question the children. Finally he decided to overrule the board's decision, and let them go to Minnesota. That pleased the audience, and everybody applauded. The immigrants who followed the Swedes, though, were evidently unfit, and the board's decisions were upheld.

Luncheon was served on the Ellis island roof garden, which is the coolest anywhere round New York city. Then the commissioner told the southern states immigration commission that he would always aid them in their work, and he invited them to visit Ellis island whenever they could. They left vowing that Robert Watchorn was unsurpassed both as an official and a host.—Atchison Globe.

THE NEWEST STATESMAN.

It is admitted that W. J. Bryan will be nominated by the democrats for president. It is probable that W. R. Hearst will be the democratic nominee for vice president. The Kansas City Journal says of him:

"Hearst is an anomaly. Firmly entrenched behind his money bags, and relying upon his gold and his yellow newspapers to accomplish his purposes, he yet advocates social dissolution, and is bending every influence at his command to bring about chaos in this country. He stands as the demigod of destruction. He lends his name to every form of discontent that seeks his patronage. It makes no difference whether it is the 'Municipal Ownership party,' the 'Independent League,' the 'Liberty party,' or plain out-and-out socialism, he is always ready to welcome the leaders to his banner, and all this conglomeration is recognized generally as the 'Hearst party.'"

MADE FROM NATIVE ROOTS.

SAFE AND RELIABLE.

That the roots of many native plants, growing wild in our deserts, forests, possess remarkable properties for the cure of human maladies is well proven. Even the untutored Indian has learned the curative value of some of these and taught the early settlers their uses. The Indian never liked work so he wanted his sweat to get some reason as to why he should do the work and let him live. Therefore, he dug "papoose root" for her, for that was their great remedy for female weakness. Dr. Pierce used the same root—called Blue Cohosh—in his Favorite Prescription. It is fully combined with other agents that make it more effective than any other medicine in curing all the various weaknesses and painful derangements peculiar to women.

Many afflicted women have been saved from the operating table and the surgeon's knife by the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Tenderness over the lower pelvic region, with backache, spells of dizziness, faintness, bearing down pains or distress should go unheeded. A course of "Favorite Prescription" will work marvelous benefit and all generally feel a permanent cure if persisted in for a reasonable length of time. The "Favorite Prescription" is a harmless agent, being wholly prepared from native medicinal roots, without a drop of alcohol in its make up, whereas all other medicines, printed with each bottle warning, are for women's peculiar ailments, contain large quantities of spirituous liquors, which are harmful, especially to delicate women. "Favorite Prescription" contains neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed with each bottle warning, and are powerful invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength in particular to the organs distinctly female. For weak and sickly women, who are "worn-out," or debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office, or school room, who sit at the typewriter, sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, and for nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will prove a daily blessing because of its health-restoring and strength-giving power.

For constipation, the true, scientific cure is Dr. Pierce's Peppermint, Mild, harmless, yet sure.

Abusing Public Utilities.

You abuse the railroads and the refrigerator car lines, and the packing companies, but as a matter of common sense, what would we do without them? Where would the west have been without the railroads? What would become of the farmers of Atchison county if the railroads were to stop hauling their stock to the packing houses? Atchison county cattle are shipped to Kansas City or St. Joe, killed, packed in refrigerator cars and sent to the eastern states for consumption. What would become of the berry raisers around Wathena if there were no railroads equipped with refrigerator cars? Though the winter we eat fresh vegetables and fruits from warmer regions by the grace of refrigerator cars and railroads. Poultry and poultry products never brought better price than they do now, all because the railroads and their refrigerator cars open a market for them. You cuss the sugar trust. The writer remembers very distinctly being sent to a country store with twenty-five cents to buy two pounds of coffee sugar, and it was thought to be very cheap, because not long before that, it was seventeen cents a pound. Don't be a tool about these things. Figure out it and see if you are not a whole lot better off than you imagine you are, and that the railroads and the packing houses are not running the country to the devil near as fast as you think.—Atchison Globe.

ONE ITEM.

From the Echo

When the time came for the arraignment of J. H. Viouxoux on the complaint charging him with misdemeanor, for having sold alcoholic liquor to Eric Schmidt, he appeared in court and said he was not ready to plead, because he desired the advice of his attorney before entering his plea. The court granted him 25 minutes, or until 11 o'clock, in which to communicate with his attorney by phone, ordering the constable to accompany the defendant to the telephone office for that purpose. Constable Kelly returned in a few moments with the message that "they have been calling the judge at the telephone for half an hour!" The court then went to the telephone and in a few minutes returned and stated that a demurrer had been presented by mail by the attorney for the defense, without argument, by stipulation; that the court would rule on the demurrer on Wednesday and notify both attorneys in the case, by mail. On Wednesday the court overruled the demurrer and notified the attorney to that effect. The further hearing on the case will be at a date to be set by the court on hearing from the attorneys in the matter.

CLIMATE AND SPEECH.

Soft Language and Tropical Weather Seem to Go Together.

Cutnairs predominate in Norway and Lunna, whereas far to the southward in sunny Italy there is a profusion of such euphonious names as Palermo, Verona, Campobello, etc. Even in the British Isles, covering so few degrees of latitude, there is a marked difference between the "bur" of the Highlander and the soft speech of the native of southern England.

A theory which may partly account for these climatic effects is based upon the contrast of the stillness which usually prevails in southern lands with the hurly-burly of northern countries. Cloudless skies for months at a time characterize the climates of Italy, while a firmament entirely free from clouds is rare in Norway. It requires, of course, greater effort to be heard in the regions which are swept by winds and storms than in still southern latitudes, and to be heard distinctly amid the noise and confusion of the elements words must be used which contain many consonants.

Among the inhabitants of more tropical climes the tendency is toward soft and musical cadence, and travelers relate that in regions in South America, such as Peru and Venezuela, where atmospheric disturbances are rare, the natives almost chant the phrases of salutation.—London Saturday Review.

BABIES IN HOLES.

Where Uganda Infants Rest While Their Mothers Hoe.

I have gone into a field in Uganda and there found one of our women at work with a hoe, writes a missionary sister in Donalson's. I asked her where her baby Maria was, and she pointed to a spot at some distance where the banana trees were thick. I walked under the shade, and in vain I sought the infant. The mother was greatly surprised and urged me to search further, assuring me that the little one was not far away and was fast asleep. I had to "give up," so the mother took me by the hand and led me to a bit of bark cloth on the ground. Under this rag was the crown of the baby's head, while the body was in a hole deep enough for the feet to rest on the ground. To my surprise and expostulations she said in her own language: "This is a good custom. When a Uganda woman goes to hoe it is not good for her baby to be on the ground, as it might injure itself by rolling, or, if it awoke, it might crawl away. Therefore we make a hole like this and line it with soft, clean leaves and put our baby safely into it so that it can neither crawl nor roll away, and we know exactly where to find it when we come from the fields." She said it was perfectly safe from wild beasts, because it was midday.

In the High Sierras.

Coming down from the high Sierras into the Yosemite valley one passes from almost arctic cold to the warmth of the late spring, and the difference in temperature is easily traceable by the character of the foliage. On the high peaks no green thing flourishes. Gradually stunted pines and tamaracs appear, and still lower the maple and laurel are just beginning to unfold their leaves, and then in a half a day's journey the wild flowers come. Hundreds and hundreds of them of all shapes and colors are found here, and as you approach the rim of the wonderful Yosemite the air is heavy laden with the scent of the azaleas, and the trail is lined with wild lilac, wild cherry and dogwood—a perfect riot of flowering shrubbery.—Recreation.

The Reprover.

During the French revolution a priest rode in a tumbrel to the guillotine with two persons—one a marquis, the other a common thief. The latter, jolted through the crowded streets the citizens shouted maledictions on its occupants. "Down with you, beasts of the aristocracy!" The marquis smiled proudly, but the criminal was vexed. "My good friends," he cried, "I am no aristocrat. I am a thief."

Cesar's Appearance.

Julius Caesar was a thin man, tall and with a very wrinkled, seamy countenance. His forehead was broad and full of wrinkles. His eyes were not large, but described an exceedingly bright and quick. His nose was of more than usual size and his chin full and prominent. He walked with a slight, scholarly stoop in his shoulders. His ears stood out well from his head, and his hair was always cut close. Early in life he became bald.
