For that Dandruff
There is one thing that will cure it—Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is a regular scalp-medicine. It quickly destroys the germs which cause this disease. The unhealthy scalp becomes healthy. The dandruff disappears, had to disappear. A healthy scalp means a great deal to you—healthy hair, no dandruff, no pimples, no eruptions.

A Weak Position.
Jerome A. Hart, a republican editor of much experience, sold the San Francisco Argonaut, and retired from the newspaper field. He gives as the main reason for his retirement, that a republican paper is in duty bound to support the official acts of the head of the party. Not being able conscientiously to do this he laid down his editorial pen and retired. Such an excuse must strike the average editor as preposterous. The proposition laid down was utterly untenable. Such conduct on the part of a journalist is party treachery. Instead of in the line of party duty. If all editors were of the same composition as the late owner of the Argonaut, what a sorry spectacle they would present, as dumb exponents of the greatest political organization on earth. It is not only the privilege, but the solemn duty of the republican press to speak out and protest against any usurpation of authority by party managers or representatives. Only by so doing can the party be kept true to its principles and its glorious past.

There always has been and always will be, a wide divergence of opinions on subordinate questions within the ranks of the republican party. The same is true with regard to other parties. Men can no more think alike or believe alike on a number of political questions, than they can on other subjects. As long as an issue is limited to one subject, partisans must line up on one side or the other. There is no neutral ground. But where the issues are multiplied, it is next to impossible to secure unanimity among the adherents of the same political organization on all the subjects. The republican party does not expect its members to do violence to their convictions on minor questions. Neither are they required to stifle their diverse view under the plea of securing party harmony. No political platform was ever framed that would or could meet the views of every individual member of the party. We are made to differ, and we can agree to differ. We have a right to ventilate our differences. There is no treason to party in so doing. Rather it is a duty we owe to ourselves and the organization to which we belong to criticize what we believe to be wrong in party affairs, whether the mistake be made by the head of the nation, or others in authority. To shrink this duty is cowardly. It is only by a free discussion of questions in issue that any party can move forward in the cause of right and progress.

In another column will be found an advertisement for bids for doing the printing for the city for the ensuing year. A startling feature of this official notice is that the successful bidder is required to furnish a copy of the paper free to each official of the city government—nine persons in all. Maybe, the full import of such a provision never dawned upon the city fathers when they passed up such a resolution to public print. We refrain from extended comment at this time. The board will have an opportunity before next issue to withdraw this peculiar phase of business. But inasmuch, as the notice has been thus scattered broadcast through these columns, we deem it in justice to ourselves to say that we absolutely decline to be made a party to impose upon the city taxpayers in the manner proposed. At a rough estimate, the city printing, under the past year's contract, has amounted to about $100. Estimating the same amount for the coming year—nine free subscriptions as a jinder, would either mean an increase of 25 per cent in the amount of the bid, or a trade concession to that extent to the officials named. We do not believe the officials want any such favors; and for our part, we absolutely refuse to be governed by such a condition. Perhaps, that was the purpose of the condition. A brother journalist, too, joined in the passage of this amazing resolution.

Congressman W. F. Englebright of the first district has been appointed a member of the important committee on mines and mining. This is a very important position for this district, and will put him in the way of doing good service for the mining interests of California.

AUKUM.
The snow at this place is nine inches deep, and clouds hang heavy and threatening above as if it were not over. This is the deepest snow we have had at this place since 1889, when the snow fell 14 inches. Doubtless the snow fall in the mountains will be immense. At Grizzly Flat in 1880, the snow was told by P. Hosking a storekeeper of that place, was such that he walked over this store house where he kept dressed lumber, that was 17 feet high. He told me that the snow was 18 feet deep on a level. The Mills family are selling all personal effects preparatory to moving to Sacramento City, where they are to make their future home. Mrs. Stumpff is now bound at Wigglesworth's, where she was stopped by the storm, when on her way with household goods to Indian Diggins. George James and Bert Doxtator went to San Francisco, to seek employment a few days ago. Daisy Bell, who was going to stay for a month or two with her sister, Mrs. Frank Traganza near Folsom, was temporarily stopped by the storm.

Practically, the local news is "snowed under," when it melts I may be able to dig up a few fossil remains, if not starting in its nature, a little bit damp.
For fear the Oleta correspondent fails to chronicle the Oleta dance, I will mention that it is unique in one particular, for Saturday night last, in absence of the younger men who from some cause were not plentiful, the old men got right in and need it down in grand style. Some who had passed their three score years. Go it gentlemen, you will be as good at the business as the Irishman, who said, "what he did not make up in dancin' he made up in turnin' round". Good luck to you. Giddy Dick.

Mrs Le Doux Interviewed.
Stockton Independent.
Mrs Emma Le Doux, convicted of the murder of Albert N. McVicar of Jamestown, and sentenced to death, was interviewed for the second time yesterday by an independent reporter. It was at the earnest solicitation of sheriff Sibley that several representatives of the local press interviewed the meek, mild, calm woman. Rumor was current for some weeks that she has been mistreated. This particularly angered Sheriff Sibley, and he courted an investigation.
Mrs Le Doux was presented to the members of the press shortly after their arrival at the jail reception room. She stood without a railing and quietly surveyed her "small audience, remaining quite still until sheriff Sibley offered an introduction to the reporters of the afternoon papers, who had never before talked with the woman. She shook hands with all present, with the exception, possibly, of Dr. E. A. Arthur, who was a member of the party. At the invitation of the sheriff, Mrs Le Doux stepped inside the railing and took her seat amongst the small group of reporters. There was no painful silence, for Mrs Le Doux at once informed her auditors that she had never been mistreated, and that it was much of a surprise to learn that people could be so uncharitable to her. It was conceded by all—it was the consensus of opinion that all rumors were based upon fabrication, in an effort, no doubt, to work harm upon those daily attending the woman. Mrs Le Doux, however, took the matter quite lightly, and with the same coolness that distinguished her past career, met and answered every searching question propounded to her. When asked if she still lived in hope of her life being saved from the gallows, she assumed a jaunty air and said: "Why, I never worry—of course I have hopes—while there is life there is hope." She entered into a general conversation with her auditors and attempted to impress upon them the fact that she had been treated with greatest respect by all the officials. Neither did she want anyone, official or other person, to believe that she worried over her misfortune—the sentence of death. She said she was satisfied, she looked the part and acted it well. Imprisonment has improved the appearance of Mrs Le Doux. She is not the thin, puny, sallow woman of last March and August. She is robust and many pounds heavier; tiny wrinkles have fled, color, real normal color, predominates in every feature. A wedding ring upon the finger and a small gold cross holding a golden image was the only jewelry that bedecked her person. She was neat, in fact, richly attired, but without there was a peculiar something which impressed a person with the fact that she was convicted and condemned—that she was still just plain Emma Le Doux.

The Stockton Record says that the sheriff decided to allow the representative of the press to interview the condemned woman in her cell for the purpose of setting at rest scandalous reports that were in circulation in regard to Mrs Le Doux. It is said there is no foundation whatever for the scandal. The first rumors that the condemned woman was executed gained circulation about three months ago. The reports furnished fuel for gossiping tongues for several weeks and finally gained some attention at the hands of the newspapers. Recently, however, the rumors were revived and this time they took the form of a report that a child had been born in the cell of Mrs Le Doux. The rumors were persistent. Where formerly the reports were talked chiefly among the women folk, they now reached the notice and attention of the sterner sex. The story gained in detail with repetition. In the mouths of some, the story was told with embellishments that cast slanderous insinuations. The reports caused Sheriff Sibley and his deputies and the attorneys in the celebrated case considerable annoyance. Finally Sheriff Sibley decided to call in representatives of the local press to interview Mrs Le Doux and set the troublesome rumors at rest.

WILLOW SPRINGS.
Robt. Brown is on the sick list. This vicinity was visited with a heavy snowstorm, which perhaps was the largest for many years. The snow is still laying on some places. Mr Bryson of this place, was called to Michigan Bar on business last Monday. A. L. Wait and family of Oleta, have moved for the winter months on their ranch in this district. Miss Minnie Withrow of San Jose, and Roy Clarke of Sacramento, were visitors in this neighborhood to their many friends. Willard Colburn has left for Sacramento, where he has sought employment. Albert Grelich, who has been home on a vacation during the holidays, has returned to Sacramento, where he attends the Atkinson's Business College. On Saturday last a birthday party was given at the home of John Brown, in honor of his son Frank's birthday. Many of the young men gathered to greet him, and the evening was spent in playing various games, and singing. At midnight a repast was spread and all were invited to partake, and at an early hour all departed for their respective homes, wishing the young man many happy birthdays. Rumors have it that Mr and Mrs John Crocker, formerly employee of the E. S. Barney ranch, will soon leave for Tonopah, Nevada. We wish the young couple prosperity in the new fields. J. E. Grambert fortunately escaped what might have resulted in serious injury. While on his road to Plymouth he met with a runaway team, which came dashing on his rig capsizing his wagon and throwing him to the ground. The other team went on towards Drytown, where it was stopped. No damage was done to either vehicle, except the pole broken out of the Jackson livery rig. On New Year's eve the Slate Creek Social Club held their regular meeting, and also a watch party, to see the old year out. The evening was spent by playing various games and singing. At 12 o'clock the young men shot off several giants, while the ladies spread a delicious luncheon. They also had a New Year's pie, which was the main feature of the evening, everything that is good could be found in it. A few visitors were present besides the club members. They were Miss May Easton and Artie Wild of Plymouth, Miss Minnie Withrow of San Jose, and Roy Clarke of Sacramento. Mrs E. M. Watkins has returned, to resume her duties as teacher in this district.
