To drive out the cold through the bowels. Made in strict conformity to Pure Food and Drugs Law. Recommended and sold by F. W. Ruhser.

Crossed Between Wagons. A young man named Louis Schroeder, a son of Henry Schroeder of Oleta, was badly crushed between two oil wagons at Martell depot early Sunday morning.

He was engaged about the freight department, and in coupling two oil wagons his left leg became jammed between them, catching about the thigh. It was a couple of minutes or more before he could be released. His sufferings were intense. He was brought to town for treatment as soon as possible, and his injuries attended to by Dr. Eudicott. No bones were broken, but the tissues were bruised severely, and it will be some time before he is able to resume work.

The Oil Supply. W. F. Detert went to San Francisco Saturday, among other matters to look into the fuel supply for the Zeila mine. The past week the oil teams have been going through town to the mine at a lively rate, and the stimulus is attributed largely to the visit of the superintendent to headquarters. The Kennedy mine has started work on a pipe line from the oil tanks to the railroad depot. This will enable oil to be pumped from the station to the oil tanks at the mine.

Prize Won by Native of Jackson. President Wheeler, of the state university, announces that he has received from the department of state at Washington the Lalande prize in astronomy, which takes the form of a gold medal, and has been awarded to Dr. R. G. Aitken, assistant astronomer at the Lick observatory. The medal was transmitted to Washington through the American ambassador at Paris.

Prof. Aitken is the oldest son of the late Robert Aitken a pioneer resident of Jackson.

On Strike. It was reported here early in the week that all the miners employed at the Camp Seco copper mine had quit work on a strike. They demanded shorter hours and more pay, which the superintendent was unable to grant without authority from the officials of the company. The men refused to wait, and walked out. Over 100 men are involved. It was not the outcome of any action by a labor organization. There is no miners' union, we are informed at Camp Seco. The men agreed among themselves to go out unless the increased pay and shorter hours were conceded.

Fatal Accident.

Harry McLaurein, a young man 26 years of age, was killed in the Oneida mine Sunday morning by falling 280 feet in the winze. He was skiptender at the 2400 station. In ascending the shaft, he in some unexplained manner lost his balance, fell from the skip, and was instantly killed. Coroner Potter held an inquest the same afternoon, the jury finding that he came to his death by accidentally falling 280 feet, and exonerating the company from all blame in the matter. He was a single man, and had been employed in the Oneida for about two years. His parents live in Alameda.

His father came up from Alameda Monday evening, and it was decided to have the funeral take place here. The burial was Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Foresters of America, deceased being a member of Court Forbestown No. 95 of Butte county. Deceased was well liked by all who knew him, and his untimely end is deeply regretted by all.

The Drowning of Lorenzo J. Oneto. Coroner H. E. Potter held an inquest at Middle Fork district on Friday afternoon on the body of Lorenzo J. Oneto, who lost his life on the evening of the 4th instant, a few steps from his home, by falling headforemost into a shallow stream. The testimony taken at the investigation throw very little light on the matter.

The following comprised the jury: Geo. Poggi, John Cadamortori, Frank Sanguinetti, M. H. Fortner, M. Newman, K. H. Fortner, L. W. Holbrook, H. E. Stowers and Fred LeMoin. The only witness examined was William Schmidt, who found the body as he was returning home from his work of cutting wood. It was about 20 minutes after 5 o'clock in the evening when he saw him lying in the water, he dropped his dinner pail and went to inform his brothers. The victim was 31 years of age, and the jury brought in a verdict of accidental drowning. The young man had been complaining all that day, and had refused food and liquid several times. He did not visit the running stream which proved his death, for the purpose of washing vegetables therein, as was his custom. The supposition is that he went there to wash his hands, and pitched forward while so engaged under an attack of heart trouble, of which he was subject. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon.

Arbor Day Exercises. Exercises in celebration of Arbor day were held under the auspices of Ursula Parlor No. 1 N. S. G. W., yesterday afternoon on the public school grounds. All classes of the school were dismissed at 2 o'clock, the hour set for the exercises, so as to give an opportunity to the children to attend. Outside of the school children about one hundred persons gathered to listen to the program. Mrs. Ella Caminetti presided, and the following exercises were had:

Singing by the glee club. Invocation by Rev. C. E. Winning. Singing by a class of six school girls.

Address, by R. C. Hole, on the importance of tree culture, and the implanting in the minds of the rising generation a reverence for the trees.

Singing by the glee club. Address by Jas. Jay Wright. Singing by a school class composed of five boys and five girls.

Address by school superintendent W. H. Greenhalgh. Vocal solo, by Fred Delama, an Italian boy of about fourteen years, lately from his native land. He sang in Italian very nicely, and without the least prompting by his instructor, Miss Munger.

Judge R. C. Rust, as representative of the Native Sons, was called upon, and made an impromptu speech.

Mrs. Caminetti then made a few closing remarks, stating that the credit for the agitation for tree planting belonged to the Native Daughters. They started the movement several years ago, and it has been growing in popularity ever since. The aim was to replenish the tree growth, to offset the destruction of timber at the demands of commerce. Some two weeks ago the actual tree planting took place, a line of trees being placed on Church street from the school grounds to the junction with the Jackson Gate road.

The exercises closed with the benediction by Rev. C. E. Winning. Receipt books, location blanks, deeds mortgages, promissory notes, etc., for sale; also mining signals on cloth, graduation diplomas, at the Ledger office.

Married in Church.

On Sunday last in St. Patrick's church, Luka Ljubonko and Miss Annie Bangar were united in the bonds of matrimony, by the Rev. Father Kearny. The bride was attended by Mrs. A. Perovich, and the groom by John Leventa. The bride was beautifully attired in white alpaca, with a wreath and veil, and carried white carnations. A banquet was provided after the ceremony at the home of the bride's brother, Nick Bangar. The presents on this happy occasion were many—among which may be mentioned:

Diamond ring, John Leventa; ring, Pete Bangar; ring, Chris Ljubonko; couch, Mrs. A. Perovich; rocker, Giocchico Bros.; rocker, Martin Bunda; clock, Paul Kassica; set silver knives, forks and spoons, Mitchell and Nick Bondish; chamber set, Mrs. Bangar; rug, cups and saucers, Nick Bangar; handpainted lemonade set, Mr. and Mrs. Troyan; rug Mrs. Simcich; rug, Mr. McCutchen; handpainted toilet set, Mitchell Chopich; framed picture, Pete Bunda; water set, Mrs. Bunch; wine set, Mrs. Bann; water set, Mr. Supilio; berry set, Mrs. J. Glavulich; glass set, Mrs. Guras; fancy tea pot, M. Maslach; set silver teaspoons, Martin Chopich; hand-drawn shams, Mrs. John Glavulich; toilet box, Annie and Lucy Perovich; spread, Mrs. Milovich; photograph album, Mrs. Sharich.

They will make their home on Broadway, having rented one of the cottages belonging to Frank Simcich.

Le Doux Appeal Now Perfected. The appeal in the case of the people against Mrs. Emma Le Doux is perfected and, by the close of the week the transcript will be filed with the clerk of the supreme court. Last October Mrs. Le Doux was to have been hanged for the murder of Albert N. McVicar of Jamestown, her ex-husband. Charles H. Fairall, who conducted the defense of the trunk murderer, prayed a stay of execution until such time as he should prepare a bill of exceptions and have transcript printed preparatory to appeal.

Six months have been consumed in making the transcript. Yesterday the bill of exceptions settled by Judge Nutter on February 16th last, was filed with county clerk Graham. The bill is of huge proportion containing 369 pages of typewritten matter. The transcript on appeal is even larger and contains, to be exact, 1161 pages. Accompanying the bill of exceptions filed yesterday was a stipulation signed by attorney Fairall, now engaged in San Francisco, and district attorney G. P. McNohe, agreeing that the transcript is true and correct in all particulars and need not be read over and compared by the county clerk.

This saves much time. The appeal is practically perfected and now the case is at liberty to come up at any time before the highest court in the state. The transcript contains practically all of the expert testimony rendered during the trial. Much space is also taken up by the controversy which arose at the end of the trial, wherein juror August Ritter was cited to appear and answer affidavits of two men who claimed he expressed himself as being biased and unfit to qualify as a juror.—Stockton Independent.

An Old Timer Gone. A well-known character around Jackson, Carlo Brizzolara, died in the county hospital on Saturday morning last. He was familiarly known as the "lottery ticket man"; as he made a living by the sale of tickets in the Mexican lottery. He had been a sufferer from chronic stomach troubles for years, which unfitted him for manual labor. He gradually became worse, although moving around almost up to the last. Saturday morning, it was evident that he was no longer able to care for himself, and so about 10 o'clock he was removed to the county hospital. He died within a couple of hours after his reception therein. He was a native of Italy, about 64 years of age. He had been a resident of this section from the early sixties. A subscription list was started, and enough funds collected to pay the expenses of a decent burial, which took place Monday afternoon, in the Catholic cemetery.

Caved on in Kennedy. Lloyd Russell, a young man employed at the Kennedy, had a narrow escape Tuesday evening. He was employed in the stove at the 2500 level. A small cave occurred, knocking him through the timbers. He was considerably bruised about the breast and neck, and a gash out in his left arm. Fortunately no bones were broken. He was able to be on the street yesterday, with his arm and head bandaged. It will take two or three weeks before he will be able to return to work. Two other miners were working near by, but he was the only one hurt.

Deputy City Marshal. Fred E. Jackson, city marshal left Tuesday morning for Nevada. He appointed Geo. M. Huberty deputy marshal in his absence, and the city trustees held a special meeting Monday evening to approve of the appointment. Jackson does not know whether he will return or not. He is going to Humboldt county, on a prospecting tour. He has friends in that section, and he himself is thoroughly posted on that county, having lived there some time.

Unclaimed Letters. In Jackson post office, April 12, 1907. R. J. Begovich, Nik Bendish, Vincenzo Bonini (p. c.), Chiesa Agostine, Jan Ladi, Mate Mikovich, Giuseppe Orsi, Pasquale Scatena, Battista Tenocello.

LURED FROM HOME.

Country Girl Forced to Marry.

Sacramento Bee, April 8. "My God, is this what I find you in for? I want you to come home, oh, I want you to come home," were the words of a heart-broken mother as she threw herself into the arms of her only daughter, for whom she had been searching for days, and with heart-rending sobs, poured out the flood of her pent-up grief on her daughter's shoulder.

The scene of this pathetic meeting was in a dark hallway in a rooming house at Fourth and J streets, Saturday morning, and was the result of a weary search of many days on the part of Mrs. J. H. White, wife of a ranchman residing near Plymouth, for her minor daughter, Catherine, who she declared had been inveigled to leave school and run away from home with a heartless wretch by the name of William A. Good, who, she says, committed perjury to secure a marriage license and who married the girl against her consent, ostensibly to secure possession of some cattle that the girl owns.

His Story of Substantiated. Good went to Plymouth about three months ago, claiming to hail from San Francisco and stating that he had lost all of his property in the disaster of last spring. Subsequent inquiry revealed that he beat his way to the coast this winter from Elkhart, Indiana. He secured employment in a store at Plymouth and while engaged in this capacity met Catherine McDonald, an innocent-minded school-girl about 17 years of age.

Learning that her father had left her some property at the time of his death, Good set about winning the girl's confidence. He gave up his position in the store, and by working for very low wages, obtained a job on the ranch belonging to the girl's stepfather, J. H. White. After he had become ingratiated with the girl, he came to Sacramento and worked for a few days in a restaurant near the water front.

Inveigles Girl Away. About the 19th of March, he again appeared at the White home and stated that his father and sister were coming from the East for an extended visit and requested Mrs. White to allow Catherine to come to this city to entertain his sister while she was here. To this Mrs. White gave her reluctant consent, with the understanding that the girl should make her home with her aunt, Mrs. E. P. Coyle, who resides at Twenty-third and C streets.

From the time that the girl left home until her Saturday morning, she has been under some mysterious and irresistible influence that she can no more describe than she could resist. Between heartbroken sobs, she stated to a Bee reporter this morning that Good told her before they reached this city that they were going to be married as soon as possible, that he had made all arrangements for a costly furnished home and that he would fix it so that everything would be all right.

Could Not Resist. Upon reaching this city, Good secured a room for the girl on Eighth street and one for himself down near the water-front, taking her girl with him. Early the following morning he appeared at her apartment with a marriage license and commanded her to follow him and do as he told her. Catherine, in her simple, childish way, said: "I knew when we started out to be married that I should refuse, knew some way that what we were doing was not right but I seemed just like some other person. It seemed like I couldn't think straight, I really didn't know what I was doing. And when I was answering the questions, he would tell me what to say, but it seemed like I shouldn't say what he told me to, but I couldn't help it. The first thing I knew we were out on the street again and he told me we were married."

Then he commenced to beg me to write an order to Mr. White and tell him to let Good sell my cattle, but I wouldn't do that, so last Saturday he got me a job on G street and told me that he was going out to Plymouth to collect some money that a man owed him out there. When he came back on Wednesday he told me that he didn't get the money and we would both have to go to work, so he got me a job as chambermaid in a lodging house and he got a job as porter there. Took Child-Wife's Watch. "Wednesday night he picked my watch up off the dresser and said that a friend of his down town wanted to see it. That's the last I ever saw of the watch. He took it down and sold it to some man who works in a restaurant. The watch was one that a friend of mamma's had given me when I was only 6 years old, but I don't suppose I'll ever get it back again. "He got one of my rings, too, and said he was going to trade it for a wedding ring, but he sold that, too, to pay our room rent before I went to work here, and so I never got a wedding ring. He also sold my new pair of shoes and told me these old ones would be good enough for me as long as I was only making beds up here."

Told of Marriage. When Good reached the White home at Plymouth that Saturday, he told Mrs. White that he and Catherine were married, and that he had come out to dispose of the girl's cattle, but refused to divulge the girl's whereabouts. His story was discredited at first, but when he produced the marriage certificate, and the knowledge of the fact that her daughter had been victimized by an unprincipled vagabond dawned upon her, Mrs. White was prostrated with grief and shame.

Good's request was refused and he was ordered from the place. He refused to leave, however, claiming that he had full power and authority to dispose of his wife's property and even went so far as to make several unsuccessful attempts to do so. Frustrated in his malicious plans he satisfied himself with picking up a few articles of wearing apparel about the house that belonged to the girl and took the stage back to this city.

Worked His Father-in-Law. He was the victim of pecuniary prostration to such an extent that to satisfy the demands of the stage driver he was compelled to give him an order on Mr. White for his fare both to and from the White house.

Mrs. White stated that she would not prosecute Good if he gave them no further trouble, provided she was able to regain possession of the watch and ring. This, however, she has been unable to do. The shoes and a pair of costly spectacles that are also missing she will not insist upon being returned.

When Mrs. White and her daughter left the St. George lodging-house, where the heartless husband secured employment for his child wife, Good followed them some distance down the street breathing out dire threats of "suing them both for damages," and "having the marriage certificate annulled," alternating with pleadings to Mrs. White to "be sensible and tell him what all the trouble was about, anyway, he hadn't done anything."

Mrs. White and her daughter returned to their home to-day and Catherine will resume her school duties at once. In the meantime they have been visiting with Mrs. White's sister, Mrs. Coyle.

MINING NOTES.

Lucas.—This mine, on the Mokelumne river near Big Bar bridge, has closed down indefinitely. The recent high water swept the foot bridge across the river, also filled up the ditches, and did such mischief that the parties backing the enterprise concluded to quit. All the men were paid off and discharged.

Bunker Hill.—Notwithstanding the difficulties encountered the past month on account of the weather, this mine made a handsome profit for the month's operations. The mill was operated 20 days, with an output of $11,000. Four dividends have been paid since the commencement of the year, and a substantial balance of over $70,000 remains in the treasury.

Mrs. LeDoux's Brother-in-law Arrested for Forgery.

A press dispatch from Stockton says: J. H. Grande, brother-in-law to Mrs. Le Doux, who was convicted of the murder of her husband some time ago in this city, was arrested last night in Duluth, Minn., on a warrant from this county charging him with forgery. He will be extradited. Grande is the husband of Mrs. Le Doux's sister and he resides in this city for several months up to last September. He was buyer for the Frank Simpson Fruit Company in Los Angeles, and he bought for that company several carloads of potatoes from Hayward & Reed of Sacramento. Checks in payment for potatoes came from the Frank Simpson Fruit Company and Grande, it is alleged, forged Hayward & Reed's name to them and cashed them. The checks amounted to several hundred dollars.

The dwelling house belonging to M. McGary, storekeeper of Jackson, situated in Railroad Flat district, Colaveros county, was totally destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning. A family was lying therein, and the fire occurred about 6 o'clock, supposed to have originated from the stove-pipe. The house was of two stories, and insured in the Franklin Insurance Company, Mrs. L. J. Fontenrose, agent, for the sum of $1500. The adjuster reached Jackson last evening, and in company with Mr. McGary, went up to the scene of the fire to-day.
