AMADOR BRIEFS

June 1.—A. P. Shibley left Saturday morning, May 28th on his vacation, after teaching the higher grades of the Amador public school.

Mrs Culbert, an old resident of Amador county, passed away Sunday evening, after a short time of ill health.

Amador is getting quite popular on ball playing. Two games of ball were played here Sunday, the younger boys of this city playing those of Drytown. I guess Drytown's boys felt dry all right, as they got beat.

Thomas Chichizola returned home Saturday night, after being in the hospital in San Francisco for some time.

Sidney Bennetts is up from Sacramento for a few days, visiting relatives.

Mr Gregory was a visitor of this city Tuesday.

Mrs R. Merwin left this morning for a visit in the cooler region.

Miss May Kelley was a passenger on the outgoing stage this week.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY

May 30.—The picnic given at Bridgeport was a fine affair. A nice program was held by the school children in the morning. In the afternoon dancing and races furnished the amusements. A dance was also given at night.

A game of baseball was played Sunday in Plymouth, between Fairplay and Plymouth, the score being 7 to 19 in favor of Fairplay. The Fairplay boys just received their new baseball suits. That is the reason that they had such success in playing Poor Plymouth is having hard luck, getting beat all around.

Ed, Frank, and Bessie Brumfield were the guests of Mrs McClary on Friday and Saturday last. The young people also attended the picnic and dance at Bridgeport on Friday last.

Mr and Mrs Chas Walton, who have been living in Plymouth for the past few years, have moved to the Copper hill mine to reside for the summer. Mr Walton has secured employment at the mine.

Mr Causcia, a native of Italy, who has been residing near Aukum for the past years, was killed at his home. The murderer is not yet known. The remains were found by Lewis Seeley, and are supposed to have been dead about three weeks, as he had bought some bread from Mrs Seeley about the 11th of May, and that evening on returning to his home, he laid the bread on a shelf outside his door, and began raking some hay near the house. The murderer, as it is supposed, hit him in the head with an axe, as afterwards an axe was found with a few blood stains on it. The sheriffs are trying hard to find the guilty one, and all hope that they will succeed.

Gilbert Cobarubia has secured employment at Wm. Harren's ranch.

Ed Brumfield and Mabel Kretcher took a little spin throughout the valley on Wednesday last. That's right Ed, keep on, for "Riley has a girl."

Mr and Mrs Kretcher have moved to the old Bryson place, which they purchased a short time ago.

Mabel Venniwitz of Aukum was the guest of Florence McClary on Friday last.

Mabel Kretcher has been visiting her sister, Mrs L. Seeley for the past few days.

Frank McClary, who has been working in Lockford for some time has returned to his home.

Sadie Putman, who has been at her home in San Jose for some time is visiting her mother, Mrs Wrigglesworth at Aukum.

COPPER HILL

June 1.—Mr and Mrs Chas Walton, who have been living in Plymouth for the past five years, have moved to the Copper hill mine, where he has secured employment.

Ezra Taylor of Plymouth visited relatives here on Thursday last.

Mrs Monterichard, who has been living here for the past year, has gone to Sacramento.

Lon Votaw, who has been employed here for some time as teamster, has resigned his position and returned to Plymouth.

Messrs Moise and Gabriel Roose of Plymouth visited our little burg on Sunday last, and while here were the guests of Mr and Mrs Chas Walton.

Dr. W. A. Norman, accompanied by Leslie Walton, paid Copper hill a visit last Sunday.

Joe Noe who, is employed here, visited relatives in Plymouth on Thursday last.

There are three shafts at Copper hill mine, but only two are being worked. A new road is being made from here to Carbondale, so the ore can be hauled to the railroad station. This gives employment to a great many men.

Miss Gussie Thompson of Aukum, is visiting Mrs Hendricks of this place. Her father, Mr Thompson, has employment here as teamster, and they intend moving here soon.

A picnic was held on Saturday last about a mile from here on the Cosumnes river. Several people from here attended, and all reported a lovely time.

Buster Brown.

SUTTER CREEK

June 3.—Alexander Menchini passed away at his home early Monday morning, after suffering about two years with consumption. Deceased was a native of Italy, aged 46 years. The funeral services were held in the Catholic church Wednesday afternoon. A widow and two children, two nephews, besides other relatives survive him.

Mrs Frederick Rabb of Sutter Creek is one of the contestants for the goddess on fourth of July. Vote for your choice at Norris and Seibe, or at Walter Lucot's store.

The Sutter Creek and Amador City brass bands will furnish music for the celebration in Sutter Creek on the fourth of July.

Edward C. Jones returned Sunday evening, after several weeks absence in Oakland, where he underwent a surgical operation. He visited a short time in Sacramento with his brother, H. Jones and family on his way home.

G. Schroder arrived in Sutter Creek Monday evening, after several months absence visiting his old home in Germany.

Mrs Elizabeth Davis and little daughter Margaret left Sunday morning to spend several weeks visiting friends in Berkeley and San Francisco. Mrs Davis was accompanied by her friend, Miss Emma Waechter, who is taking a short vacation, and visiting her sister, Miss Mae in Berkeley.

John Daneri returned from San Francisco Monday evening.

Will Liddicoat, who is in the employ of J. Hancock in lone, came up to his home Friday evening, and attended the dance given by the lady Macabees.

Mrs Martin Schanbel and daughter, Miss Doret of Newcastle, arrived here Saturday evening to visit a few weeks with her sister, Mrs Charles Norton.

Mrs Andrew Mello of Sacramento arrived here Monday evening to spend a short time with her mother and sister, Mrs W. Leddicat and daughter, Miss Mabel.

Mrs W. Johns of Sacramento is visiting her parents, Mr and Mrs Cassella.

OUR TRAVELING CORRESPONDENT

In the evening of May 12, after waiting for the up train so as to secure the mail, the train being an hour late, the stage pulled out for Forest Hill 22 miles distant away. The driver proved to be a man that I had seen many times around Emigrant Gap 43 years ago, although I had not had a personal acquaintance with him. He was sulky over his forced wait at the depot for the train. Three men besides myself were passengers on the stage. Down the steep grade the stage went with no comforting thrill to us passengers. Perhaps the stage driver had got used to being thrown about in the stage as an old salt to the plunging of his steamer. Hardly a word was spoken for 2 1/2 miles and then at the bottom of the grade leading down to the forks of American river we made our way up the left fork with steep craggy mountains hanging over our heads. A half mile away a housed bridge could be seen spanning the river. A few minutes only we were crossing the bridge for our ascension up the huge mountain on the other side. We climbed slowly and steadily up the steep grade moulded into shape by hands of pioneer days—men that have long since crossed to the great unknown. Two of the passengers were young men hardly into their majority. They were both collegiates new fledged, both bouyaunt and ambitious in hope of the future. From their conversation they had met by accident, one was going up to where he had some friends working on an electric plant. The other was going up to the Hill and vicinity and from the tenor of his conversation was in the nature of a geologist and was going on an eye inspection of the county. Both men were genial and affable and full of halirious spirit. They had not grown old and gray with disappointment that will follow them like a shadow in the future, for no man escapes it. The other man was a German. Like most Germans, his tongue held him down to his nationality. He was a man of sense and from his conversation was too a man of more than ordinary learning. His whitening hair told him to be passed middle age. He and the two younger men kept up continuous conversation in which I took no part, only as a casual listener. My mind was absorbed in the action of nature that had cut through the great mountains, and left its imprint by the torn craggy sides that hung precipitous above the stream whose silvery gleam moulded its shape far beneath us. When we left it at the bottom it was a river, now it appeared simply a winding brook crossing itself in shadowy shape far below. We were now properly up on top of the Forest Hill divide. On every side of us was steep mountains cut through by deep gorges and canyons with precipitous sides and ragged cliffs standing over them. In a dream I saw nature in her great work of creation when convulsion and earthquake thundered with terrific force in an awful chaos around; where mephitic gases issued from the deep chasms that their force had opened, when the earth in its primal stage knows neither animal nor vegetable life, where all was chaos, all was commotion in inevitable action of nature's endeavors. From my reverie I turned and looked at the setting sun now an orb of gold, now dropping out of sight in the dark blue sea of space in the west. Soon the shadows of night had enveloped the earth, and we were now traveling along at a slow pace with grotesque shadowy shapes arising before us. It was 10:15 at night before the stage held before the door of the hotel that was to shelter us the balance of the night. When I awoke, the glittering shapes of golden sunlight stole their way through the window in my room. I immediately arose, and making my way down the winding stairway, I stepped out upon the street and took a look at the once famous mining camp, once the Golconda of wealth galore. It was a typical mining camp in every particular. No stately houses reared their heads aloft in grandeur of magnificence, but modest in their pretensions, fitful in their construction, they stood as the prototype of bygone days in the shadowy past.

The Forest hill divide as it is known lies between the middle fork and the north fork of the American river. It is high above those streams many thousand feet. It is 40 miles long and from 1 to 10 miles in width. It can boast of more rich mines than any other place of the extent in the state of California. The blue gravel range in Dead river as it is many times called that runs from the lower confines of Mexico to the Arctic regions crosses the upper part of the divide. The American river has cut its way through the ancient bed of blue gravel and has fed the country for miles below with rich deposits of gold. A mile and a half west of north from the heart of the town of Forest Hill is the famous May Flower mine that worked for upward of 40 years giving employment to a great many men and making its owners multimillionaires. Among the other mines of note is the Todd Valley mine, the Dardinella and Forest hill, Whiskey or Turkey hill mine. The Hidden Treasure, Damascus, Golden river or Red Point that had worked 4 miles of the channel with good results. The Hidden Treasure has been working since 1876. This mine now takes its cars in and out the mine by electricity. It is a noteworthy fact that most of the mining has been done upon the rims. It is not generally known too that a great deal of unprospected land in its actual virgin state awaits the capital to develop them. They are deep propositions and one too that is certain to turn out in the future—more gold than has been taken out in the past. This is not visionary, but is practical for the divide properly has been worked along the ruins with the results of untold millions in the past. Now, it is deep minning. It means development by means of capital. No place in my estimation is a place more certain to bring dividend results to the men that put their money in for the development of these mines. The Blue Gravel range, like the great mother lode of quartz stands as the primitive gold producers of the state of California. The little off shoots from this famous range has poured its millions gathered up as pennies, so to speak in the various rivers, gulches, flats and hills of gold production. In my next letter I will tell of the agricultural region between Auburn and Sacramento, built up not so much by its actual intrinsic resources, as by the great continental railroad formerly known as the Central Pacific, but now merged into the Southern Pacific, and known by that name, giving them an unlimited market for their fruits that they principally depended on, and has brought many a man an ample competence by his labor.
