Bresséd Turkhys. Miss Sallie Blake, who lived in Calvert county, Md., some years ago, was in the habit of gathering chicken grapes in the autumn and making them into medicine by preserving them in It happened once, after the contents of a jar containing the decoction had been exhausted, that Miss Blake emptied liquor soaked grapes on the ground. Here her fine brood of turkeys quickly gobbled them. Presently Miss Blake found the turkeys lying on the ground, and not realizing the cause of their stupor she thought they were dead. In order to ly, as you lie face downward on the realize something from the feathers. she had the turkeys picked. The carcasses were thrown outdoors. The next morning there was a great hue and cry from the servants in the back yard, and, looking out of the window, Miss Blake saw her turkeys walking about absolutely bare except for a few tail and wing feathers.

In order to protect them from the cold, the good woman bought enough red flannel to make each turkey a comfortable garment. Very soon, to the wonder of the neighbors far and wide, Miss Blake's turkeys stalked abroad, wearing their red coats with the same easy grace with which they had worn their feathers.-Youth's Companion.

Queer Revenge.

"Speaking of queer revenge," said an Englishman, "I remember how, according to a friend of mine, the natives of certain villages in India treat their enemies.

"Do you know what they do? They just get a few handfuls of rice and sprinkle it on the roofs of the people they hate.

"Then what do you think happens? Why, then the monkeys come flocking down from all the trees on to that roof after the rice. They eat all there is on the surface of the roof, and then, to get at the stray grains that have lodged in the crannies, they begin to pull the shingles off. Wherever there is a grain to be seen far down in some crack or other place they pull the roof up to get at it, and finally, lo and behold, there is no roof left! The monkeys have torn it all away. Then the man who spread the rice laughs subtly, for he has had his revenge, and yet no one knows and be cannot be punished."

A Bath at Tillia.

To take a bath at Tims is to court a wonderful experience. Abundant springs of water, strongly impregnated with sulphureted hydrogen, supply the building, and in its vaulted chambers, far below the street, there is no sound but the splash of the fountain and the rolling echo of one's own voice. Henry Norman gives a description of the masseur who presides over the bath and makes its most eccentife feature. "He is a Persian, who speaks but a word or two of Russian. His head is shaved, a rag is twisted round his waist, and his feet are dyed orange.

At length they reached the foot of a flight of steps, up which the guide led the way, and at the top the visitor found himself out upon the roof, a height of more than a hundred feet from the ground.

As they gazed below his companion startled him suddenly by proposing to see who could jump farthest toward the grounds! Not until then had it dawned upon the visitor that his guide was mad. Merefully, he was a man of ready wit, and his wit saved the madtop." The madman thought it a good idea, and, retracing their steps, the two began their jump from the earth instead of from the roof.

Why the Stomach Lasts. An old question which has long puszled physiologists is, Why does not the stomber digest itself? The walls of the stomach are in substance not unlike the food which they contain and which is digested by the peptic fluid. The stomach is able to digest proteid food when introduced into it, yet it does not

The reason for this has been shown "You relish them, my master?" asked by Weinland.
