LEXINGTON IN 1842.

Of this week. Cool the earthquake shake you up? Details at Winkler Furniture Co. Baity carriages, at Winkler Furniture Co. The Knights of Pythias building has a new roof.

"Dress Making" is a prominent sign of this school town. Enough rain fell Sunday and Monday to lay a part of the city under water.

John Hanson has moved into his new cottage home on Third street.

James R. Moorehead is building a four room cottage in College Park.

Mr. John Reid's new $1,000 carriage arrived Wednesday. It is a beauty.

The Intelligencer's "boom" edition will commence nearly a year of paper.

Physicians endorse and use Hall's Hair Renewer to cure gray and faded hair.

The mountain region is working nicely, and trans-shipment business has been brisk.

Where did you get those nice shoes at, such a low price? Why at Frank Krich's.

Joe Long is building a neat cottage on Third street, on the lot adjoining John Hanson's.

Shoes, shoes, shoes at F. Krich's on Frank Avenue. Go and see them, very cheap for cash.

The Intelligencer's job press has been running steadily all week, on local commercial work.

Tom Fletcher and a party of friends caught a fine lot of fish on the north side of the river Monday.

The hot water was succeeded by a light shower Sunday and Monday, and a decided fall in the temperature Monday night.

More than four columns of fresh live advertisements from Kansas City speak volumes for the INTELLIGENCER'S circulation.

The Old Men's Club of Lafayette to Meet Here in May.

MR. WENTWORTH THE PRESIDENT

Full Report of the Meeting at the Residence of Mr. Gladish Memorial on the Death of Two Members.

It was the pleasure of the editor to attend the "old-timers" meeting at the residence of Mr. J. E. Gladish, vice president of Higginbotham, last Saturday, and right royally did he enjoy it.

There he met some of the earliest settlers of this section of the county, and they wrought their imprint on and field, on the social, moral and political character of the county.

There were men whose sturdy limbs felt the primal forests of Missouri, men whose ploughshares were first to turn the virgin soil, and who first gathered the golden grain the Indians had produced.

These old men, heroes in their humble way, came to Missouri when much of it was a wilderness, and they were the first to cross the Mississippi. When they came, the graceful deer and stealthy gray wolf were undisturbed in their possession of forest and meadow, and when they were the pioneers were glorious in their wealth of verdure and bloom.

Had they had come seeking homes and peaceful domains, they would have found land which they have made still more glorious by their industry, and to-day they gaze upon scenes which their wildest dreams could not then have conjured.

They have seen the forest land and heard the wild birds and the deer, and their sons and daughters have grown up around them, and prattling grandchildren fondle their stiffening knees.
