DOINGS AT CHICAGO.

The Agony at Chicago.—A hard Fight, But no Success.

Grant Forcing the Fighting and Has the Moral Victory at the Close.

The Continued Opposition to Grant Adjourned to Prevent a Panic and the Nomination of the General.

The Triumvirate, Conkling, Cameron and Logan Stand as a Standstill.

Special to the Gazette: Chicago, Ill., 7.—Balloting commenced at 11 a. m. and continued till nearly 4 p. m. 18th ballot being taken. Grant led off with 304, Blaine with 284, Sherman, 93, Edmunds, 34, Washburne, 30 and Windom, 10. No material change took place. At the close of the 19th ballot Grant had gained 1, Blaine lost 1, and Edmunds and Washburne had gained 5 each.

Conkling has had a hard struggle to keep the New York delegation in line 308 was the highest vote Grant got, and 304 the lowest. Blaine's lowest was 280. G. K. Chicago, June 7.—The convention was called to order in the evening session at 7:15, but it was ten minutes later before the delegates settled in their seats to await the opening of business. A communication was received from Joseph Root calling attention to the historical associations connected with the revel, used by the presiding officer of the convention. Its head is made from a piece of wood, taken from the home of Abraham Lincoln, and the handle from a cane grown on the Mount Vernon estate at the house of Washington. The presiding officer is asked to accept it as a memento of one of the most interesting conventions in the history of the republican party. Hale, of Maine, moved that a roll of the states be called for, and an announcement of the names of the members of the republican national committee in order that they might be read; it was agreed upon, and the roll was called accordingly, which showed the following: Alabama, Paul Strawberry; Arkansas, S. W. Dorsey; California, Harold Davis; Colorado, James L. Reunt; Connecticut, Marshal Jewett; Delaware, Christian Fobeyer; Florida, William W. Hick; Georgia, James D. Deveraux; Illinois, John A. Logan; Indiana, John C. New; Iowa, John F. Kennedy; Kansas, James A. Martin; Kentucky, W. O. Bradley; Louisiana, H. C. Warmouth; Maine, William T. Fry; Maryland, James A. Gray; Massachusetts, John M. Ford; Michigan, John H. Sloan; Minnesota, E. M. Sabine; Mississippi, George McKee; Missouri, C. J. Filley; Nebraska, G. W. Davis; Nevada, John W. Mackey; New Hampshire, W. E. Chandler; New Jersey, George A. Halsey; New York, Thomas C. Platt; North Carolina, W. P. Canaday; Ohio, W. C. Cooper; Oregon, D. A. Ireland; Pennsylvania, J. D. Cameron; Rhode Island, W. C. Pettice; South Carolina, Sam Lee; Tennessee, William Hale; Texas, Maready; Vermont, George W. Hooker; Virginia, Sam W. Jones; West Virginia, J. W. Mason; Wisconsin, Elihu Emis; Arizona, R. C. McCormick; Idaho, George W. Slup; Montana, A. H. Beatty; New Mexico, S. T. Ellis; Utah, W. Bennet; Washington Territory, T. T. Minor; Wyoming, James L. Caryxos.

The two delegates from Dakota were unable to agree. Conger moved that the national convention should fill the vacancy. Conkling objected. The Chair ruled the motion in order, and it was adopted. Drake, of Minnesota, offered the following: Resolved, That in case of the death, or resignation of any member of the national convention, the vacancy may be filled by the appointment of the central committee, of a delegate from the State, Territory, or district that they may represent. Adopted. much delay it was so ordered.

Hale, of Maine, moved to call a roll of the States in alphabetical order and that when a State is reached which has a nomination to present, it must be presented under the rule as already adopted.

Mr. Logan inquired how many were allowed to second nominations. The chairman said the rule made no provisions for speeches, in seconding nominations, but allowed ten minutes for the presentation of each candidate.

Hale's motion was then agreed upon, and the roll was called. When Michigan was called, James F. Jay then took the platform in response to numerous calls. After some reference to the public life of his proposed nominee for the presidency, he presented to them James G. Blaine.

The mention of the name was received with grand demonstrations of applause among the audience all over the hall. The nominating speech was not inspiring in its delivery and the demonstrations of applause which interrupted must be attributed to its subject alone. The renewed mention of Blaine's name at the conclusion of Jay's speech was the signal for another wild scene of confusion and excitement, the larger half of the audience and all the Blaine delegates rising and cheering vociferously, waving flags, fans, hats, umbrellas, etc., most frantically. The lady who was so conspicuous in the remarkable scene of last night is said to be Mrs. Chas. F. Deans of New York, widow of a soldier, and the flag which she displayed is said to have been Lincoln's. Again tonight she was prominent on the platform, swinging her flag in one hand and fan in the other and cheering like mad until bystanders pulled her down to her seat and jore the flag into tatters in their efforts to take it from her, while she folded it about her person and struggled for its possession. The confusion continued for full ten minutes when a loud voiced delegate succeeded in attracting attention and demanded to know whether the convention wasn't capable of protecting itself from movement in the galleries.

Pixley, of California, seconded the nomination of Blaine. The speech was repeatedly interrupted by applause and at the close it was followed by another burst of cheers.

Frye, of Maine, asked and obtained five minutes in which he gave utterance to an electric speech which set his hearers wild.

When New York was called Conkling rose and mounted the reporters stool. He too was received with long continued and vociferous though not as much general or apparently spontaneous cheering. Conkling spoke with great deliberation, in clear tones and in his usually impressive manner. His mention of the name of Grant was received with demonstrations lasting 2 or 3 minutes. The speech was an eloquent panegyric of the life and services of Grant and the need of the hour. He said Grant was not a candidate who can carry states which are sure republican but a candidate who can carry the doubtful south as well as the north. Grant could carry the doubtful state of New York and several in the south [Applause.] Calumny against him had all been exploded, the powder already burned, and left his name un tarnished. When those who tried to tarnish that name should have mounded in forgotten graves. [Applause.] Grants fame will remain pure and bright in the hearts of the people. Never elated in success he has manifested the very genius of success. He commenced his civil policy in international arbitration and opposing inflation and paying the way for specie resumption. To him more than any other is due the fact that every paper dollar is as good as gold. With him as a leader we should have no defensive campaign [Applause.] nothing to explain away and no apologies to make. The shafts and arrows have all been aimed at him and lie broken at his feet. He briefly reviewed the third term objections to Grant and urged that it was no objection to any man that he had been weighed in the balance and not found wanting or that he had obtained experience which rendered him better fitted for all duties confided to him.

Minnesota being called E. F. Drake presented the name of Windom of that state. He also received great but speedily subsiding applause. He referred to him as a statesman of wide experience who had served thirty years in public life and always with acceptability. He pledged the vote of Minnesota for whoever should be the nominee of this convention. There was no seconding speech for Windom.

Frank Pixley, of California, seconded the nomination of Blaine and said: Mr. President and delegates, I have been assigned the performance of prominent duty by choice of my colleagues, and the courtesy of the friends of Mr. Blaine. I have been accorded the privilege of seconding his nomination as the candidate of the republican party for president of the United States.

All the delegates of the Territories of Washington, Idaho and Arizona, and the states of Oregon, Nevada and California, constitutes the empire of the Pacific, a grander and prouder than the sun elsewhere never shines upon, unite with me in the pleasure of this opportunity to second the nomination of Mr. Blaine and will supplement the compliment by casting for him the united votes of all the delegates of all the states and territories of the Pacific coast. Our delegation limited in number, represents an empire broad in territorial area, extending with Alaska, from the external ice of the north, to the semi tropical belt, from the wave washed golden sounds of the western sea to the Rocky Mountains that separate but do not divide us from our eastern friends embracing a present wealth of gold and grain and wine and wool and incalculable future wealth that will astonish the world. Its broad and splendid domain its western shores look eastward to eastern lands and its golden gates stand wide ajar to admit the rich commerce of the Orient and to welcome intercourse necessary to its enjoyment. Its the future home of your children, the inheritance of your sons, the rich dower of your daughters and because we think, and all our Republican people think that the nomination of James G. Blaine by this convention will result in his becoming President of the United States, and because we think and all our Republican people think that as President he will help guard this rich empire from invasion and that he will keep and guard it as the house and inheritance and dower of all our sons and daughters of this Christian commonwealth, Washington Territory, Idaho, Arizona, Oregon, Nevada and Colorado have sent us, as a united delegation, to cast our unbroken vote for the distinguished statesman and senator from Maine. In him we see distinguished ability, the unflinching nerve which is often demanded in the performance of public duties, the possession of an unstained name which partisan watch has been unable to blacken, the possession of a brave heart that embraces in its sympathy all his countrymen who love their country, her gifted and her brave, patriotic, honest and true. He has been trusted in long public service and may be trusted. He will carry with his great office no personal and party resentments, will bring to the discharge of his duties no local nor sectional prejudice. He is broad minded and generous in the exercise of an undaunted moral courage. He will dare to defy base political elements and delight to surround himself with the best and ablest men of the Nation. He will call into the councils of his administration loved, honored and honest men of his party. He will assert to the fullest the power and prerogatives of the Presidential office to the humblest citizen. In the protection of law he will in the performance of his duties shirk no responsibility nor seek to avoid any duty required of him by the Constitution and law. His nomination will violate none of the time honored traditions of the country that in their long continued existence and force have become the unwritten law of the land; traditions that ought to be more invaluable than formulated laws; and as sacred as the written Constitution of our forefathers. This nomination is demanded by the majority of the delegates from a solid republican north and ought to be conceded by a solid south that has everything to receive and nothing to give and that in the coming campaign has everything to lose but honor. Give us this gentleman and we of the uttermost west pledge to you the service of a gallant band of Republican soldiers, that has now these twenty years held and guarded the frontier outposts of your republican army. We have never been surprised, or have been off duty. We never flinched in a fight, or lost a presidents battle. We have never allowed a democratic electoral vote to be deposited in the electoral urn since we have been welcomed to the sisterhood of states.

The delegates from Massachusetts moved an adjournment until tomorrow. Carried. Division being demanded, the roll of the states on motion to adjourn was called. The vote on a motion to adjourn, resulted in favor of, 447 for, to 304 against.

INDIAN MATTERS. Santa Fe, June 7.—General Hatch telegraphs from Fort Craig, June 1st, that he has four companies, and his troops are reduced to 100 men. The Indian scouts are in pursuit of Indians going to Gray county. There is about one hundred warriors in the party. The Indians are probably Mexican Indians, and not Victorio's, as was supposed by Lieut. Morrow. They have many wounded. The General in concluding says he may catch them before they reach the line. My orders are so I can follow no further and must look out for bands in the mountains. Casack with four companies of one hundred and twenty men is doing hard scouting and good work east of Rio Grande and should give me fifty Indian scouts, who are more valuable than four times the number of recruits. The surprise made by the scout on the 24th inst. is more serious to the hostiles than was supposed.

—Handkerchief dresses have been in vogue, and now the latest innovation of fashion in town is towel sun-bonnets with deep fringe and oriental border. They are the noisiest head dress in the business.
