OUTLOOK BRIGHT IN MARKET FOR WOOL

While the wool trade in the west has not assumed the proportions thus far this year as confidently expected at the start of the season, the general opinion is that there is nothing in the situation to cause a very pessimistic feeling in regard to prices. At the third series of colonial wool sales in London recently there was an advance of from 5 to 10 per cent in prices over the previous sale, with competition very keen. Remarking about the situation in Wyoming, where growers are firm in the belief that there is a combination among buyers to restrain advances, and most of the crop is being held, J. M. Wilson, vice president of the National Wool Growers' association and leader among the Wyoming growers, said at Denver:

"We have had an offer from a reliable man to handle our wool for us for 25 per cent of what he saves us over present prices, we to be the judge of what he saves. This would indicate that the attempt of the buyers to force prices down is not warranted by the situation and that they are in a combine to secure our wool below its value. We do not propose to be lunched this way and are taking steps to protect ourselves."

On the Hurricane Deck of a Quay County Bronk

"Dobe" Williams, the queen bee of all the cow punchers for miles around, anchored himself on the hurricane deck of "Geronimo," the chief buckler of all the tribe of Quay County bronks, out in front of the livery stable Thursday, to the great enjoyment of a large crowd of lovers of aerial sports. The bronk was one given John Henry by an enemy who hoped to hear of his being kicked to death, but John got wise to the revolutions of the white of the bronk's eye, and decided to ride by proxy, "Dobe" undertaking the job for a purse. While "Dobe" was enroute to the look out, "Geronimo" sailed straight up through seven strata of thin air, then turned earthward, snubmissive to gravity, and after a time hit the earth at an angle of fifteen degrees, making only one track, that showing a nose and two claws. By this time "Dobe" had his cigarette lighted, and the voyage began proper. There was a rough sea and a touch of sea sickness, but "Dobe" was aboard for the trip; the cargo was neither misplaced nor injured. The bronk brought up amazed and deeply chagrined that anything but hair could stick to his back.

"Dobe" and "Geronimo" will make an ascension here the night of the Fourth, and "Dobe" will pull off the fire works from the saddle, shoot the shoot, loop the loop, and wind up with the great sea dive of fifteen feet under the earth in the McGee addition.
