On motion the temporary organization was made permanent, following which the establishing of a number of new precincts was discussed and the convention favored new polling places at different

Chalk Talks.

Mrs. Maud L. Greene the noted crayon artist and lecturer will give one of her interesting Chalk Talks at the Baptist church next Sunday night. No admission will be charged but a collection will be taken at the close of the services. She comes in the interest of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Greene is especially happy in her methods of work among children, being one of the most successful artists with chalk, pen and voice. She has an innate sense of humor, combined with true devotion to principle, and her "talks" are as pointed as her "chalks." Under the nom de plume of "Ivan Inkling," her pen has won her a place in the hearts of many readers.—From Thumb-Nail Sketches of White Ribbon Women.

Mrs. Greene drew in colors with a rapid and artistic hand. * * * The object lesson was very interesting, and made a deep impression.—American, (Baltimore Md.)
