THE VICTORIES OF THE ROMAN AN ABLE ARTICLE ON RAPID STRIDES OF THE CHURCH.

She Has Withstood the Intrigues and Plots of the Most Powerful Potentates in the World's History.

BY H. D. SEDGWICK, JR. An article in the Atlantic Monthly this month has attracted considerable attention. The author, H. D. Sedgwick, Jr., has certainly treated the subject in a novel as well as a readable manner.

By the time the United States shall be acknowledged to be the richest and most powerful nation in the world, the attitude of the papacy will already have been long determined.

These lines are only a portion of this extensive article of Mr. Sedgwick, but most profitable to the reader in general.

There have been great crises in her history. She might have been destroyed when she had been in the infancy of her existence.

The Roman church has always been cosmopolitan. The years have passed from England, Holland, Germany, France, Spain and Italy.

Moreover, the city of Rome is the only city in which the spiritual head of a great church could live without exciting national jealousies elsewhere.

Even the strong Protestant sects of the Methodists and Baptists are growing less antagonistic to the Church of Rome.

The meeting of the great American democracy and the Roman church will not be a hostile meeting. There will be no jealousy, no rivalry.

The church looks very pretty and comfortable since the new matting has been laid in the aisles.

There will be a Requiem High Mass on Thursday, Nov. 2, offered for the departed of the relatives and friends of the congregation.

The Sisters of Mercy are building quite an addition to the convent, demanded by the increase of pupils this year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Archuta of Edith, Colo., spent a couple of days in Durango last week visiting her mother, Mrs. C. F. Stollsteimer.

Miss Della Stollsteimer has returned to Durango for the winter.

As far as the Irish people in America are concerned, they are practically a unit in opposing an entangling alliance with England.

England, with her centuries of infamous oppression, her greed for gold, her blood-red history, shall never beguile the American people and mislead them, as she has so frequently done to other nations in the past.

Let the politicians favor it if they will; an alliance whose only motive is plunder will not be sanctioned by the American people.

IRISH SYMPATHY FOR BOERS NEVERTHESS THEY TAKE UP ARMS AGAINST BURGHERS.

It is Painful and Humiliating to Note the Number of Irish Enlisting in the Army of Her Enemy.

In this crisis, when the hearts of all true Irishmen burn with sympathy and hope for the gallant Boers on the eve of their heroic death-struggle for independence, it is a source of deep and bitter humiliation to us to read in the papers to which we eagerly turn for news of the Transvaal that regiments with Irish names are going out to South Africa, not to be the armed and living expression of the will of the Irish nation, but to fight in opposition to the national will, as servants of our deadly enemy.

It is such a humiliating and painful subject that I have long hesitated before writing on it, but it is not by hiding facts, however, or by shutting our eyes to them, that a remedy can ever be found.

The Boers and the Munster Fusiliers are not entirely composed of Irishmen. They may have been once, they are not today; recruiting in Ireland I am glad to say, has since that time been an English general is falling out of the world that there are still Irishmen so devoid of dignity that they will wear the sworn of their opponents.

But though the number of Irish recruits for the English army is diminishing, there are a large number of young Irishmen wearing the shameful uniform of servitude. Let us examine for a moment the causes.

The Irish are essentially a military race, debared from a military career in their own land; they have furnished distinguished soldiers in most of the wars of Europe, and in the Crimea, in a great measure, their independence to the bravery of the Irishmen who fought for her.

I am sure that he must have said to me at times, as I often said to mine, "I beg to beg, for you will curse me to curse me, for you will curse me whether I permit you or not, but I only announce to you that in five years you will be blessing me." At this point he asked: "Where are those who were scolding at my name?" and they say they are not to be found.

The idea of Catholic colonization is one of the most fruitful that ever descended to the minds of Americans, and Gallitzin was the pioneer of it.

Chaplain and Admiral. Father Reaney gave Dewey a Painting Obtained in Rome.

W. T. Dewey, a Montpelier, Vt., nephew of Admiral Dewey, tells an interesting incident in connection with the painting of the late Admiral Dewey.

When the Olympia arrived in New York, the admiral's baggage included a picture of the admiral's fondness for pets, presented to him a fine lion cub.

The admiral noticed this preference shown by the chaplain of his gift of a lion cub to the admiral's young son.

While the majority of Irishmen are acting under the shame of feeling regiments with Irish names, such as the Dublin and the Munster fusiliers, sent out to fight against the Boers, the time is opportune to call attention to this very serious subject, and point out clearly to the people that the Irishman who joins the English army or navy would be the right and noble thing for him to do.

It is a matter of such national importance to Ireland that I would like to see resolutions warning the people against enlisting passed at every meeting, both in Ireland, England or Scotland, where Irishmen come together for any purpose whatsoever.

AS A SINGLE OPPORTUNITY to make "al-lusion" to the "broader aspects" of all questions which are involving, prom- pently today, the British policy in Ire- land, in Africa and in America as well.

IT IS A MATTER OF SINCERE CONGRATULATION that the Irish and Germans in America, together with a large element of all other nationalities, are resolutely and uncompromisingly opposed to the alliance, expressed or implied, which a certain clique in America would bring about.

SOME LONG DELINQUENT subscriber who sent back his Richmond Conservator marked "refused" the old day, without having squared up the old account, is the subject of the following blessing in the current issue of Colored Trian's paper.

"I have come, Rachel," he said, tenderly, to ask you for this little hand. Not and he reached for the one that had the rings on it.
