CITY AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

Karl Mayer carried a large bear in City Creek canyon a short distance from the city limits Monday.

Three new letter carriers will be added to the business district force on Oct. 1. They will be $200 a year. There will then be forty-one regular carriers in the city, which is double the force of four years ago.

James T. Woods, a well known citizen, was taken to the Holy Cross hospital Monday night to undergo an operation. Mr. Woods went through an operation but a short time ago, but a second one was found necessary.

James A. Semple, one of the pioneer railway passenger agents of the United States, died in Denver Monday, at the home of his son, Frank E. Semple, city passenger agent of the Rio Grande system. He was known throughout the country as an expert on rates, and was the originator of many of the sheets in use by passenger rate clerks.

W. D. Livingston of Sanpete county left for New York Monday to place $200,000 worth of bonds of the Mammoth Reservoir company. The bonds were issued to redeem 25,000 acres of arid land in Sanpete and Juab counties. The work will cost $500,000, of which $200,000 will be realized on the sale of these bonds and $300,000 will be contributed in labor by those living in the vicinity of the field of operations.

Utah beet sugar has a rival on the market. It is the California beet sugar, which is being placed here by J. W. Heywood, the local representative of the Western Sugar Refining company of San Francisco. Mr. Heywood says the Utah sugar had the best of the market here for some time, but that now his company proposes to enter the field with a product of 100 on granulated beet sugar from California and a price of $4 on cane granulated sugar. He expects a shipment of the sugar here within the next few days. The minimum market has now been reduced from 30,000 pounds to 24,000 pounds, as it was formerly.

Engineer H. M. McCartney of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad, has received some blue prints to pass upon of a bridge that is to be thrown across the Santa Ana river in Los Angeles county, California. The blue prints are the outcome of a conference held with Senator Clark. They have been prepared by Chief Engineer H. H. Hawgood and all indications are that they will be adopted. The scheme is to build a huge bridge of solid concrete, which when completed will be the largest bridge of its kind in the world. By taking local points in demonstration the bridge would extend from the McCormick block at the corner of First South, to the entrance of the Kenyon hotel, a block below on East Temple street.

From all indications the coming season will be the banner year for the best sugar industry in Utah. Last season the Utah Sugar company company turned out over 18,000,000 pounds, the Ogden Sugar company over 8,000,000, and the Logan company about 5,000,000. The present expectations are that the Utah company will exceed last year's record anywhere from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. Ogden beets are hardly coming to the expectations, and the yield there may not exceed last year's run, but the capacity of the Logan factory has been increased and a big advance is certain at that place.

The resignation of J. E. Dooly from the chairmanship of the board of public works which was filed with those of many other officials when the new city government went into office, has at last been accepted by Mayor Thompson, and it is reported that Mr. Dooly's successor, Mr. Dooly recently went east to Chicago to place his daughters in school, and is expected to return early next week. The board of public works will be reorganized when the mayor acts.

The Rev. Jacob Heath, father of Perry S. Heath of Salt Lake, is dangerously ill at his home in Muncie, Ind. The Rev. Mr. Heath has been an invalid for two years and during the past three months has been confined to his bed. Mrs. Perry S. Heath is now in Muncie, and Mr. Heath expects to be summoned any day.

Fred Griffith, a veteran of the gridiron, has been engaged to coach the All Hallows team this season. Mr. Griffith gained most of his football experience on the Notre Dame team in which he was a strong player for two seasons. Last year he played halfback on the University of Idaho eleven.

"We will have one of the grandest milling plants in the world when we get our improvements completed and machinery installed," said President Simon Bamberger of the Bamberger-Lamar Gold Mines company the other day. President Bamberger has just returned from an inspection of the great mines and milling plant at De Lamar, Nev., and is thoroughly pleased with the outlook.

Be your own banker. How? By building your own securities. You can become your own bank. How? By writing for McGurkin's list of securities. Get a postal card, simply write: "Send list of small securities." They will do the rest. Then your monthly savings are perfectly secured by gilt-edged collateral. You are your own banker and it is done by mail. Interest 6 per cent, compounded every six months. McGurkin & Co., Salt Lake.

Obituary.

McDonough. On Saturday last Lawrence McDonough, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McDonough, passed into the realms of eternal light after an illness of several months. Lawrence was a particularly bright and lovable lad and his death was a sad blow to his parents. The funeral occurred on Sunday. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The pallbearers were E. H. Holden, D. E. Williamson, C. L. Whitener, H. A. Morrison, Frank P. Ellis and H. A. Stone.

The Intermountain Catholic extends to the parents earnest sympathy in their bereavement.

Lions. The angel of death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyons last week and took away their lovable, winsome daughter, Leona. Her death was a great shock, as she was only ill a few days. The sympathy of hosts of friends is extended to the bereaved parents. May they be comforted with the thought that their winsome little daughter has returned in all the sweetness of babyhood to the care of God and His angels.

Ogden. W. J. Manning of Ogden is temporarily installed as transfer clerk at the Rio Grande.

George Kelly has returned from the east.

Gala Time at Kearns' St. Ann's Orphanage.

On last Sunday night Senator and Mrs. Thomas Kearns were the guests of honor at the Kearns' St. Ann's Orphanage. The children of St. Ann's entertained their generous benefactors with a very excellent musical and literary programme, which won hearty praise and applause from all present. The home coming of Mrs. Kearns has been the topic at St. Ann's for many months. The charming, noble-hearted wife of Utah's junior senator counts her friends by the hundreds, but the love and gratitude felt for her in the sweet, childish hearts of the St. Ann's children surpasses all the admiration and love of her friends.

Prominent among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Kearns and their three children, Perry S. Heath, Joseph Lippman and number of others who enjoyed heartily in the informal pleasures of the evening. Bishop Scanlan concluded the reception with a few words, thanking the children for Mrs. Kearns and mentioning with slight detail the work that was being done at the orphanage. By far the most appreciated part of the evening was the programme, which was arranged and executed entirely by the inmates of the institution. And eclipsing all the other features was the address of welcome to their benefactors by Martin Glasett, a 12-year-old lad, who spoke in behalf of his associates. He was frequently interrupted in the course of his remarks by a hearty laugh from those who thoroughly enjoyed the childish report of the happenings, which were told with a frankness characteristic of his age. Martin showed no favorites, but told of the faults and misdeeds of all. His speech was prepared and delivered by himself.

Why are we children happy today? It is because we are in a happy home, smiling faces, some may not be happy, and there is a reason for that, too. We are happy because after nearly two years absence of our best friend is home again. Some of us never saw Mrs. Kearns, and some of us never saw her to the new arrivals they wanted to know how she looked. We told those little strangers that Mrs. Kearns was a very nice woman, whose smiling face always cheered us; that she was the Santa Claus that brought us presents every one so happy. They asked if she looked like any other woman; she dressed like a woman, and they told them that they must wait; when she comes to Salt Lake you will see. She will come out here to see us. And they were all dying to see Mrs. Kearns.

that has induced the public spirited men to be so generous. It was a happy choice that led Father Elliott, though much against his own preferences, to assume the responsibility of inaugurating the work. He is the real father of the movement, and a number of the archbishops urged his appointment. The mission house will offer to diocesan priests a special course in the methods of giving missions to non-Catholics, the best way of answering questions from the question box, etc., all with the view of instituting and continuing diocesan missions as they are already established in many of the dioceses in the United States. In order to secure the permanency of this work it is necessary that the apostolic mission house be endowed. Twenty-five thousand dollars will secure for it an adequate endowment. It will not be difficult to secure this amount. Nicholas Devereux announced that he would be one of a hundred to give $1,000 each for the American college at Rome, and the other ninety-nine were readily found. Already a number of public spirited Catholics are subscribing to the apostolic mission house in the same way. A. R. DOYLE.

Mr. J. S. Ferris was up from the metropolis for a few days last week.

Mrs. W. W. Armstrong visited in Salt Lake for a few days last week.

Miss Maggie Donovan departed Tuesday for Ogden, where she intends to visit with friends.

Mrs. D. C. McLaughlin paid a short visit here last week.

APOSTOLIC MISSION HOUSE. Praiseworthy Plan to Train Priests For Non-Catholic Missions. Editor Intermountain Catholic: It is a good little bit of ecclesiastical history to remember that practically the originator of the American college at Rome was Nicholas Devereux of Utes, N. Y., who authorized Mr. McMaster, the editor of the Freeman's Journal, to state publicly that he would be one of a hundred Catholics to give $1,000 to start such a college.

Such a public spirited act was not without its imitators, and in a short while money enough was secured to start the college on the great career it has had since. The good the American college has done in cementing the relations between the church in this country and the holy see is incalculable. This little incident is apropos of the inauguration of another project which is in as great possibility for the good of the church as any other that has been started within the generation. On Wednesday last, the Catholic Missionary Union gave existence to the new Apostolic Mission House, and appointed Rev. Walter Elliott to be its first rector.

The situation was simply this: A year ago at the conference of missionaries in Kansas began in Winchester, Tenn., the project of a mission house which would have for its direct purpose the training of diocesan priests to undertake the work of giving missions to non-Catholics was conceived. It was submitted to the archbishops at their meeting last November, and they commended it in the following resolution: "Be it resolved, that we regard the project with warm approval, and will give it all possible aid and encouragement when it shall have assumed practical shape."

An announcement was made of the attitude of the hierarchy toward the project, and immediately donations of land and money began to pour into the Catholic Missionary Union, the corporation which is financing the project. Bishop Harkins of Providence, R. I., gave his check for $1,000. Fathers Coyte, Fitzsimmons and Stang, three of the priests of the Providence diocese, gave $1,000 each. Archbishop Farley subscribed $500 at the meeting of the Catholic Missionary Union last Wednesday. Mr. Michael Cuddihy gave $5,000, with a promise of $5,000 more as soon as the ground was broken for the new building. Mr. Zachariah Jaques, who had been a warm friend of the non-Catholic mission movement from its inception, left $1,500 in his will, and a number of other donations were made. With scarcely any effort at collection, the Catholic Missionary Union finds itself with over $100,000 in hand.

The Catholic university at Washington offers the new mission house a home in Kansas, and there are from ten to fifteen priest students asking entrance. There was nothing to be done under these circumstances but to open immediately. There is no better commendation of the apostolic mission house than the way in which it has been received by the country at large. The work of giving missions to non-Catholics has demonstrated its utility and its ability to secure results. Thousands of converts have been brought into the church by means of these missions. It is this fact
