THINKS WE GO TOO FAST. Business in the United States as Seen by an Englishman.

London, Sept. 22.—In the course of a two-column article from an occasional American correspondent, the London Times today printed an interesting review of the development of business in the United States. The writer, who "returned home after an absence of nearly two years," took an extended trip through "half the states in the Union." He says:

"Never were my countrymen so devoted to business. The average man in the United States is giving at least an hour more per day to his business concerns than he did ten or twelve years ago."
