lorem duties. To the treasury this change alone probably means more than the average annual deficit of fifty millions. No other change could be of greater importance to the revenue, and as Chairman Dingley states, it is also a change which has been most urgently desired by the better class of importers. So many of them have been nearly driven out of their own business by the frauds which they were not ready to perpetrate, but which the act of 1894 made it the chief business of a horde of so-called importers to contrive, that the change will be to them a blessing far outweighing any disadvantage resulting from mere increase of duties. To the American producers it means all the difference between genuine protection and wholesale prostration of manufactures by false oaths and unrestricted imports.

Chairman Dingley shows that a large increase of revenues is sought by transferring lumber, opium, argois, art works, straw goods, buriaps and some other articles from the free to the dutiable list, by increasing duties on farm products now affected by Canadian competition, and on such luxuries as liquors, tobacco, silks and laces, and especially by increasing the duty on raw sugar in the belief that its production in this country can be successfully encouraged. He explains with care the conflicting influences which will tend to affect the estimates, but concludes that a net increase of $70,000,000 more would be realized if the bill would be passed with reasonable promptness. The wool and woollen schedule should increase the revenue $25,000,000, even with decrease of half in the enormous imports of 1896, and the added duty on sugar $20,000,000. The agricultural schedule is expected to yield $6,300,000 more revenue, the linen and jute $7,800,000, and each of the metals, tobacco and earthen and glass schedules $4,000,000 more, while from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 each is expected from the liquors, lumber, cotton and silk schedules.

DEATH OF GEN. JAMES M. WARNER.

The community was shocked to learn Wednesday morning of the sudden death of Gen. James M. Warner in New York the previous evening. He was here last week to attend the wedding of his son and appeared to be in excellent health. The interment will be in the family lot in the West cemetery here this (Friday) afternoon. The remains will arrive on the mail train at 3:10 o'clock. The only service in Middlebury will be that at the grave. Of the circumstances of his death the New York Sun of Wednesday says: James M. Warner, president of the Albany Card and Paper company, arrived in this city yesterday from Philadelphia, where he had been on business for the concert, and went to the Manhattan hotel at Forty-second street and Madison avenue, where his son is staying. After dinner he went to the theatre to see "The Tenth Man." Mr. Warner would not let the young man call a cab to take them to the theatre, saying that he felt in excellent health and wanted to walk. They took seats in the orchestra. The curtain had been up about five minutes when Mr. Warner fell forward on the spot, his head striking the seat in front of him. He was carried by the ushers and his son to the lobby, and Dr. Rogers of the Manhattan Life at once gave a receipt for the removal of the body to an undertaker, and young Mr. Warner notified his mother and sister of Mr. Warner's death.

The main facts of Mr. Warner's life are thus given by an exchange: Gen. Warner was one of Albany's foremost and ablest statesmen under President Harrison. He was born at Middlebury in 1836, and when 19 years old entered West Point in the same class with Gen. Wilson, Gen. Merritt and Gen. Horace Porter.
