THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y. Editor of the New York State Grange Review

GRANGE AND EDUCATION.

The Massachusetts Fund—Rural Schools Discovered.

State Master Gardner of Massachusetts told the assembled grangers at a Pomona field day meeting that the grange educational fund to help rural boys and girls to get an education was being liberally supported and that the Great Barrington grange had made the largest contribution to the fund of any grange in the state. Hinsdale grange of Berkshire county was the first to enter into the contest among granges for greatest advancement in community work.

At the same meeting Rev. Margaret Barnard of Rowe, Mass., leading community service worker, said: "We must bring the school, the church and the grange together in this work of helping the community and promoting its interests. The rural districts must stand together and work for their own interests."

Dr. David Snedden of the state board of education spoke on the educational factors of the state. He remarked that the state had now only an indirect control of the rural schools. He stated as his belief that the country ought to have a system where the teachers will become permanent residents of the community after a time. "We need a permanent teaching service so far as possible," said he, "and composed almost entirely of men." He explained that men, when they marry, usually settle down and grow up with the community, whereas it is not so much so with the female teachers. Another matter discussed by this speaker was the community agricultural college. He believed that the present educational system was not reaching the farmers or those who are to be the farmers of the future.

The agricultural college is teaching those who will be the advisers of the farmers of the future, but not so much the ground tillers. The state board is investigating how far it can go toward establishing local public schools for boys of fourteen years or over who are fitted to take a three or four years' course in agriculture only. The legislature of Massachusetts has made possible the establishment of eight rural and two county agricultural schools of this type, and it is now watching results with interest.

Greatest Farmers' Organization.

The grange is growing in membership rapidly, but sanely. There is nothing of the mushroom variety in this growth. It is based on good foundations and largely because farmers are coming to see that organization is as necessary for them as it is for men engaged in any other form of labor. The grange offers the opportunity the farmers are seeking. It is the greatest farmers' organization in the world, in that it seeks to help the farmer along educational and social lines as well as financial simply, and its present membership of about 1,000,000 makes it a force with which those who make our laws must reckon. In the first nine months of the present year 365 new granges were organized, and 18 were reorganized, and, says a good authority, "as nearly as can be compiled at one set time there are now fully 1,000,000 grange members in the United States." There are approximately 7,000 local or subordinate granges, holding about 112,000 meetings each year, whose total audience amounts up to more than 7,000,000 people in the year. Discussions in these many meetings of those questions that bear most directly on the farmers' interests cannot fail to have a deep and lasting influence in molding public opinion and therefore state and national legislation along those lines that make for the welfare of the tiller of the soil.

A Children's Evening.

We have nowhere seen a more effective employment of children in an evening's program for the grange than that at Lyme, N. H. The various schools in town furnished the program, which consisted of songs, recitations, dialogues, flag drills, etc. Five schools were represented by ninety children, and 200 grangers and guests enjoyed the program. After the exercises the hall was cleared, and a series of marches and drills was given by the children. The teachers heartily co-operated with the lecturer of the grange in making the evening's program a success.

Maine's Grange Halls.

Maine granges are well equipped with grange halls of their own. A recent census of this feature of grange enterprise shows that out of the 430 granges in that state more than 90 per cent own their own halls. Furthermore, the inventoried property of these granges amounts to more than a million and a quarter of dollars. It is owing to these conditions that the granges of the Pine Tree State are rated as the most prosperous and substantial in the entire country. It is a record of which they may well be proud.

Grange Day at the Dairy Show.

The national dairy show which is to be held in Chicago from Oct. 23 to Nov. 1 has set apart one day—Friday, Oct. 24—as "grange day." The management advertises that it will make arrangements for hotel rates and tickets for delegations coming together for a visit to the show on that date.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

CROUP AND COUGH REMEDY.

Croup is a terrible disease, it attacks children so suddenly they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Dr. King's New Discovery, Lewis Chamberlain of Manchester, Ohio, writes about his children: "Sometimes in severe attacks we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is we have no fear." We rely on it for croup, coughs and colds." So can you. 50c and $1.00. A bottle should be in every home. At all Druggists. H. E. BUCKLEN & CO., PHILA., ST. LOUIS, adv.
