THIS KIDNEY REMEDY A GREAT HEALER

For a number of years I was troubled with my kidneys, condition so serious that part of the time I was unable to work. Tried several remedies, also different physicians without relief. A sample of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root was left at my house. I commenced to take it and continued it until I had taken several bottles and am now cured. Am sixty-two years of age and able to work every day. I attribute my cure to the use of my Swamp-Root.

My wife also was cured by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Symptoms were very serious, including hemorrhages, great pain and distress. I commenced giving her Swamp-Root and it was just as healing in her case. We can heartily recommend your Swamp-Root to all kidney sufferers.

Very truly yours,
H. C. GRIFFITH,
Mexico, Texas.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public, this 8th day of April, 1913.

Regularity in time of feeding should be observed with fowls and stock, the same as with folks.

Unless the lawn has been fertilized lately it is a good idea to let remain as a much the grass as it is cut from time to time.

The slugs that infest pear trees and rosebushes may be put out of business by dusting the trees or bushes with fine road dust when the dew is on.

The largest strawberry beds in the world are in Hampshire, England. From this one district 1,300 tons of berries were shipped last year.

Experience shows that a cement hog trough is not only cheap and easy to make, but also easy to clean and disinfect and does not get out of order.

A minimum estimate of from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 horsepower is placed on the water power that is now going to waste in the Appalachian mountains.

The trellis should be ready for the sweet peas soon after they come up, as the tendrils do not take hold so well if the vines are allowed to grow some time without a support.

Lubricating oil not only saves wear and tear on the axles of vehicles and machinery, but it reduces pulling strain to a minimum. The rule for oiling should be "little and often."

More small chicks suffer from over-feeding than from underfeeding. The little fellows' gizzards are pretty small, and for this reason they should be fed frequently, but rather sparingly.

If stinky bushes are desired the new raspberry canes should be pruned off when they have reached the right height. Such pruning also tends to produce more bearing wood for the coming season.

With good steak retailing at all the way from 20 to 30 cents a pound there ought to be little question that there will be good money in the cattle business for any farmer who will follow it consistently.

Johnny bread and milk is a balanced ration. It is good for the kiddies and their parents and is one of the cheapest as well as most nutritious rations that can be prepared. More folks ought to eat Johnny bread and milk.

They are poor and sorry folks indeed to whom the woods with their flowers and birds have no deep charm. Perhaps a love of the outdoors can be cultivated in just the same way that it can be crowded out and smothered. Anyway, it is worth trying to develop it as one has opportunity.

Some rape should be sowed in a portion of the cornfield just before the last cultivation. Three or four pounds to the acre should be enough. The land might just as well be growing rape as weeds, and the rape will furnish a fine pasture in the fall, particularly if a portion of the field is fenced off and hogged down.

The Nebraska experiment station has issued a bulletin on underground silos which should be of value to all farmers interested in this cheap method of saving fodder. In the main, the underground silo seems to give good results where the soil is well drained and is of such consistency that there is not serious trouble from cave-ins.

Fewer sheep were produced in the United States last year than the year before and fewer the year before than during the preceding year. In the face of this decreasing supply of mutton the demand for meat products has been increasing. This ought to mean a safe margin of profit for any who engage in the sheep raising industry in the coming years.

A friend who has an alfalfa field that has been established twelve years brought the writer on May 8 a sprig of one of the plants that measures thirteen inches long, showing a most vigorous vitality. Living as they do year after year, alfalfa plants develop immense root systems, starting growth early in the season, and are able to withstand extreme drought.

A farmer whose chicks were bothered by a good deal by hawks devised a plan which enabled him to trap thirty of the marauders during a single season. He killed a good sized rabbit, staking the carcass down securely by anchoring it to a couple of stakes. He then set two or three steel traps at intervals about and close to the bait. In walking around their prey the hawks would get their feet caught in the traps.

Your Pocket-Knife, the Best Tobacco-Cutting Machine

Because it cuts the tobacco off the plug as you use it—insuring you fresh tobacco for every pipeful. When machines chop up tobacco months before it reaches your pipe, the little pieces of tobacco lose their aroma. When you smoke them, they burn fast and hot, and bite your tongue.

All the natural moisture, flavor and fragrance of the tobacco are pressed into the Sickle Plug, and kept there by nature's own protector—the natural leaf wrapper. It only takes a couple of minutes to whittle off a pipeful—and you are rewarded by a cool, sweet, satisfying smoke that no ready-cut-up tobacco in the world can give you.

Convenient—no bulge in your pocket. Economical—no package to pay for—no loose tobacco to get spilled and wasted. Get a plug of Sickle at your dealer's today.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.
The story comes from Reading, Pa., that a rooster, tied up in a bag, escaped from a wagon and drew a whole mile inside the bag before it was bagged again. Must have been an awful big bag.

It is wise occasionally to stir around the pigeons' nests. Mice will sometimes nest in the bottom of them. It's a nice warm place for a mouse nest, but often explains why parent pigeons desert their eggs and squabs.

The Argus pheasant runs up and down the scale on his flute, and his whistle at night can be heard a mile. That's almost as much noise as some "bad sports" make at a show knocking the judge.

When you are feeding rats poison don't put it on anything they can drag around. It is liable to be dragged out where fowls and domestic animals can get it and that means funerals.

The Reeves pheasant has a tail seven feet long. It can jump eight feet and can fly thirty miles at a mile a minute clip. If you think you're a good shot maybe you won't after you shoot at one of these long tailed sky rockets.

Squabs twelve hours old are called "peepers," twenty-four hours old "squakers" and a month old "squawlers." Some humans start as squawlers and end as kickers, and it would be better for the world if they had been stillborn.

Groundhogs are so plentiful in some parts of Pennsylvania that some farmers shoot and trap them and feed them to the chickens. A young groundhog well
