ALGIE MEYER SAW THE HANSOME

A DeLand Man Claims to Have Been Near When Caesar Young was Killed.

For the past few weeks the antics of Cassie Chadwick and the trial of Nan Patterson for the murder of Caesar Young, the New York bookmaker, have been the all absorbing topics discussed by the metropolitan newspapers. Now that Nan's jury have disagreed and a new trial is probable, the fact that an important witness resides in Volusia county may prove of interest to the readers of the DAILY NEWS.

Algernon C. Meyer, a young man of DeLand, claims to have been standing on the curb in New York, when the cab that contained Nan Patterson and Caesar Young drove by, and just as the fatal shot was fired.

For some time the name of Meyer was confused with a similar name of a gentleman residing in Savannah, Ga. Meyer, of DeLand, insists that he was in New York when the tragedy occurred, that he witnessed the shooting, and further, that he told what he knew about the matter to District Attorney Jerome, which testimony, he says, corresponds very closely with the story related by Nan Patterson.

Last season Meyer was employed by W. C. Cannon, the DeLand liveryman.

Novelty Works Claim.

In an article in The DAILY NEWS of Tuesday we stated that some of the men left the employ of McClellan & Edwards because it was declared an open shop.

McClellan & Edwards assured a representative of this paper that this is not correct. They declined to operate their mill eight hours and determined to continue the old schedule of nine hours a day. The union men declined to work the old number of hours and McClellan & Edwards then declared to run their plant as an open shop.

Mr. McClellan states that it is impossible for his firm to operate the mill on a paying basis at the shorter hours as he is willing to prove by his books to any man interested. He has been asked why not raise the price of the product of his mill. To this he replies that in that case similar products from mills located elsewhere would be sold on the market here at the prices now prevailing which would virtually knock them out of business.

The firm ask the privilege of running nine hours and agree to pay the same wages as heretofore. They are willing and desire their old employes to return if they are allowed to do so on the old basis.

Fine Poultry Farm.

G. B. Seaman has determined to become known as a breeder of fancy poultry. With that end in view he has built several runways on his South Ridgewood property and has portable colony coops in each, flowing water and every modern convenience for their successful raising.

White Plymouth Rock, White Leghorn, Barred Plymouth Rock, White Wyandottes and Black Minorcas, all of the best and purest breeds, are to be found there now.

A Daily News reporter was courteously shown over the farm yesterday by Mr. Seaman and the plans and breeds explained for him. The finest lot are the White Plymouth Rocks. These are of large size and absolutely pure breed.

The hens will average from 5 to 6 pounds in weight while the cockerels will run 10 pounds, all exceedingly tame.

An object lesson of this kind in poultry raising ought to prove of benefit. Ninety percent of the poultry and eggs used here come from Tennessee and other points. This invariably arrives in poor condition and costs to the consumer far more than it ought to. Poultry and its product, eggs, can be raised here profitably if intelligent methods are pursued.

THE PALMETTO CLUB MEETS.

A Very Interesting Meeting of this Popular Club. A Fine Program Presented.

The regular meeting of the Palmetto Club was held in the opera house, Thursday. The afternoon was in charge of the History Class, the room was very prettily arranged with rugs, divans, sofa-cushions, draperies, etc.

The first on the program was a song, "The Village Blacksmith," by Prof. Blount.

Mrs. M. De C. Williams, chairman of the department, then announced that the afternoon would be on American literature, giving some interesting remarks or short sketches of each, in her pleasant and attractive manner, of the most well known, as they were to be presented to us by the different members of the class.

The first was William Cullen Bryant, and Mrs. Thusnela Harris read "The Flight of the Bird." Emerson was next, and Mrs. May E. Thompson read "Each and All," written by him. Mrs. M. C. Moore then sang, "I Drink the Fragrance of the Rose," and her full, rich tones filled the room and gave pleasure to all who heard her. Whitier was the next poet to whom attention was called and Miss Celia Harris read his poem, "In the Old South Church," in a very impressive manner. Longfellow came next in order. Prof. Blount sang his poem, "The Wreck of the Hesperus." Mrs. Ida L. Niver then recited "The Courtin'," by James Russel Lowell, in a very amusing way. "The Bells," by Edgar Allen Poe, was recited by Mrs. Lena M. Thompson, who held the attention of her listeners and was loudly applauded.

The program closed with another song from Mrs. Moore, "Little Boy Blue." Afternoon tea was then served, after which a business meeting was called and the following ladies' names were voted upon and elected to active membership: Mrs. Eva C. Sartwell, Minnie H. Pennock, Miss Miriam Johnston, Miss Emma Johnston and Mrs. Elizabeth White.

As the Guide Understood It.

A party of hunters in the wilds of North Carolina, wishing to cross the lake upon the banks of which they were encamped, made the necessary preparations. Then they asked the guide if he could row.

"Ro?" he queried in answer. "Ro! No, I reck'n not. Reck'n I never tried it."

Under these circumstances the party made arrangements to do the rowing themselves, and were consequently astonished when the guide, stepping into the boat, seated himself at the oars and prepared to be the motive power.

"Why," exclaimed one of the party, "I thought you said you couldn't row?" The guide was plainly puzzled and could be heard to repeat to himself several times "Ro! Ro!" "I reck'n'd you all meant ro' like a hon. I can't do that. But pull an o', why, I've done that all my life. I shorely can pull an o'."—Louisville Courier-Journal.
