

DECORATION DAY.

An Address Delivered May 30, 1895, by CAPT. H. MOTT.

The scenes and exercises of this day irresistibly recall to our minds the stirring times of '61 and '63, the results of which we meet to-day under one flag and in a country undivided.

In all its courses the nation to-day stands still and in the quiet spirit of springtime bestows with flowers the turf that lies its soldier dead. The avenues of trade are closed, the marts of commerce silent. Patriotism, with its kindling memories of the days of strife leads the children out from home and school into this Sabbath of patriotism, that all may commune with those shadowless sleepers who died that man might be free and his union saved. The day is solemn and sacred. No tinge of bitterness fills the bosoms of American people who observe aright this time and its lessons. For the veteran, who long since shared in the struggle, now rejoices in the fallacies of success, and the young man, in a land of brothers, lets the past bury its dead animosities and ferocities. It is not now the solemn feast of a nation, it is an anniversary of the land. They buried our anger forever when they garlanded the graves of our dead, and no voice of discord or of hate or revenge can now disturb the sepulchred sleepers, once fallen in the land that all their children love from snowy border to southern shore, and to us all survive the glorious deeds of warrior kin and the just triumph of that righteousness that becomes a nation. No where else on this round world keeps any nation such a Sabbath day, and never before has the same generation that waged brutal and devastating war provided and accepted full fraternal peace, not before has the land that wielded the sword at once repaired its ravages and so without tribute restored to the full luster of citizenship and the full dignity of self government those opposed to national unity.

And it is first of the lives of these sleeping soldiers and of their comrades that beholds us to speak. They went forth to battle were the young dedicated with more than Jewish fervor to the cause of the country, and after their death the stalwart fathers whose hearts yearned for their brave boys in the field yet agonized for wives and children. I know of no sadder character than the American husband of 1861-63, turning from the quiet and plenty his own industry had gathered, the home which was filled with the reward of his toil, the summer of woman's love and the prattle of baby voices. Away from the city, the village street or the fragrant solitude of the farm, away from the society of domestic joy to the roar of camp and the whirlwind of war, standing in battle by his veteran son, folding him wounded in his arms, father and comrade at once, laying him down among the slain when the horrible day was done to rest in the long trenches under the stars and the flag—still and glorious forever, then while the man within him cried out for his mate far away and his young hero gone, to turn to steel in the presence of duty and solemnly as brave a man renew the onward march to triumph or perchance to death. No heralding service this, no substitute work for country doted by the coward to the valiant, no Hessian greed that matched blood against gold, but manhood's work sweet and becoming for the land of his love. This is the great character—the American father and husband turned to the volunteer. Compared with this all others in our history are colorless and uninteresting, and as we grow our education will increase and broaden, it will take on tenderer tones and he will appear more and more majestic.

The final typical group of the war has not yet been fixed in marble or bronze, when it shall be we will have this figure sketched in the hour of his parting. By his side will stand the beloved of his life, his wife, with holding and over all the solemn genius of home and country pointing onward where the flag waves in the thunder storm of war.

How great has been the work these sleepers accomplished! I will not dwell on its national features; on a land at peace and filled with labor which has its reward, on wealth incalculable in its extent; on the highways opened from sea to sea; on the bewildering growth of cities and on the multiplied positions of freedom. Back of all this is the spirit of liberty and law which these sleepers made regent over our mighty union. These made free the minds of all the countless myriads of the world; free with that greater freedom than the unchained soul—the freedom of thought the equality of soul. They raised the trumpet to the lips of fate, whose blasts aroused the echoes in every dungeon where feeble righteousness lay bound, they aroused a spirit which has challenged arrogant wrong in all its citadels. The "Battle Hymn of the Republic" with its chorus sung by all men softer, deeper and holier than the Masselmeise it sweeps around the world. From unshod lips its stirring notes arouse those who sing and those who listen to the existence of freedom, of justice and of immortal purpose, and as a witness to its power I here declare that its high declaration of that freedom of God whose right our sentence written in laws of burnished brass "ye shall deal with my enemies so my grace with you shall deal" filled with solemn resolution the highest acts of the mortal soldiers of the republic. Its exultation was theirs; it made privation trivial, it made the march to death a triumph, it turned the cross of strife to voices of inspiration and gave the fervor of martyrdom to the pains of gashed and broken bodies. In the souls of those who slumber it was light and calm. The pens of poets and history will forever be busy with the names of our immortals. While men draw the sword they will remember the greatest of our generals, the most sagacious chief, the bravest of riders, whose names a common consent blends together as the triumvirate of war and around

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.

Washington, D. C., May 24, 1895.
The Supreme Court of the United States on the 20th inst. by a vote of 5 to 4, declared every section of the Income Tax Law unconstitutional. This decision causes somewhat in the nature of a surprise. It does not seem likely, however, that an extra session of Congress will be called, except some unlooked for contingency arises to make it unavoidable.

The country now seems thoroughly awakened to the importance of settling the silver question. Meetings in the different states are being held, and but recently one of the Southern States—North Carolina—by its Democratic State Committee endorsed the Illinois Platform in favor of the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. It is simply a matter of time before all the states will be declaring themselves upon this question, and it is not unlikely that the South will surprise many at the next Presidential election. It seems as though there can be but two platforms and from the sentiment as expressed silver will win the day.

Secretary Carlisle left here on the 16, inst. for a southern tour to make addresses in support of the sound money policy. He claims to be making this trip simply as a private citizen, and in his speeches he favors a single gold standard. This policy, however, does not seem to be meeting with full approbation by our southern friends.

All rumors concerning the war in the East between Japan and China seem to indicate that matters are very near an end. President Marti, the Chief of the Cuban Revolutionary Party is reported to have been killed in a recent engagement in eastern Cuba.

A new scientific, educational and literary magazine entitled "The Epoch" has recently made its debut here. It is a monthly magazine and will in time be one of the leading editions. Professors Lee Davis Lodge, Howard Gore and Andrew P. Montague, of the Columbia University of this city, compose the editorial staff and any enterprise in which these gentlemen are concerned will no doubt be a great success as they are leading authorities of our country.

Representative William Cogswell, of Massachusetts, died at 1:15 Wednesday morning at his apartments in this city. It is reported that Lord Alfred Douglas had attacked the Marquis of Queensberry, his father, on the streets of London, but was warmly repulsed, with considerable personal damage including a discolored eye.

From a casual observance it might appear that there is likely to be a Harrison-Morton boom in New York, but as yet the Ex-President has not declared himself upon the silver question, although, it is stated, Senator Carter made a call upon the Ex-President but his answers to questions on the subject were not satisfactory.

We have heard nothing recently from Hon. Joseph Sibley, of Penn., but there is little that when the question is brought to a test we will have heard from him and his many admirers will swarm around him and it is most likely that he will cut an important figure in the next presidential race.

Marriages seem to be the order of the day here as in the past week there have been between two and three hundred couples united, the majority, of course, being colored.

SCRATCHED 3 YEARS

Suffered, Scratched, and Bled. Doctors No Relief. Cured by Two Sets Cuticura Remedies.

I wish to express my thanks for the benefit I have derived from using CUTICURA REMEDIES. Nothing like them was ever manufactured. For three years I have been afflicted with a skin disease which I would break out all over my head with pimples which would form a watery matter, and I would have to scratch until I would bleed. After doctoring with two doctors for three years, more or less, I finally made up my mind to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES. With result entirely satisfactory to me. After using two sets of CUTICURA REMEDIES, I am entirely cured. I have given him the privilege of using my name as proof of my efficiency. I enclose my portrait.

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vital energy necessary to keep them active and healthy. As it supplies the various organs of the body, it is the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As it supplies the various organs of the body, it is the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy.

Physically fail to recognize the importance of this fact, but treat the "nervous system" as a mere accessory, and as such, give the greater part of his life to the study of the "nervous system," and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the carefully prepared and tested preparation of the nerve fluid, is the only preparation of the nerve fluid that is tested by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, and all nervous disorders. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs. It is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists and is sold by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, 15c. per bottle, six bottles for $8, express prepaid.
