M., by Otha Carmichael, contestee, in which it is alleged that said entryman never established and maintained a bona fide residence on said land sufficient to make Final Five Year Proof; that his residence was in the nature of occasional visits, and that the proof testimony as to his actual residence on said land is untrue as to the period of time indicated by the testimony and the absence of the entryman therefrom; that said entryman's actual residence on said land for the period of five years would not exceed one year in actual presence on the land counting his visits thereto collectively; that he has repeatedly offered same for sale, attempting commutation proof under contract to convey the land, and since making Final Five Year Proof has sold said place; said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegation at 10 o'clock a. m., on June 21st, 1910, before Samuel Ecker, U. Emergency Puffs.
"For a dessert try Emergency Puffs: Drain canned peaches from their syrup and cut fruit in quarters," says Fannie Meritt Farmer in Woman's Home Companion for June. Mix and sift one cupful of bread flour, one half teaspoonful of salt and two table-spoonfuls of baking-powder level measurements. Moisten to a soft dough with milk. Butter individual moulds and drop a spoonful of the mixture in each, place a piece of peach in each and cover peach with another spoonful of dough. Steam ten minutes and serve at once. Notice what a large quantity of baking-powder is used in this receipt, two table-spoonfuls, not two teaspoonfuls.
"Remove puffs from molds and serve with peach-sauce: To drained syrup add one-third of a cup full of sugar and a few grains of salt. Bring to the boiling-point and let simmer until the syrup is thick. In strawberry season sweetened crushed strawberries are delicious to serve with these little puffs; in raspberry season, sweetened crushed raspberries may be substituted with delightful results."

"More Business and Less Politics."

"In my travels over the state," said Joseph W. McNeal, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor "I realize for the first time how the passing of years is thinning the ranks of our old pioneer settlers, both in old Oklahoma and what was Indian Territory. When I reach this town or that town and ask for my old-time friends, only to find that they have laid their burdens aside and gone to their final reward, the truth dawns upon me that all these last pioneers to subdue a wilderness and turn it to the ways of progress and civilization will soon have passed away. Death is taking them one by one, almost without our knowing it. Then I look back and remember what we used to talk about in those first days; of how we planned for the future; of the greatness that would come to our state and its people; of the desire that the boys and girls growing into manhood and womanhood should be surrounded with everything that made for decency, thrift and honesty and high citizenship. We believed then, as I believe now, that the proper development of the vast natural resources of Oklahoma would make this an ideal commonwealth, where the usefulness of men and women in their community and to their country would not be measured by their wealth and fine clothes, but by their patriotism, their zeal for the common good, and their ability to think right and act right. I intend now, as I did then, to work to that end, publicly and privately. I feel that it is keeping faith with myself and with those old pioneers. That's why I talk about, "More business and less politics" in Oklahoma. I ask no man to vote for me who believes that such a course is against his welfare and that of his neighbors."
