SEVERE COLD QUICKLY CURED.
"On December first I had a very severe cold or attack of the grip as it may be, and was nearly down sick in bed," writes O. J. Metcalf, Weatherby, Mo. "I bought two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it was only a few days until I was completely restored to health. I firmly believe that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is one of the very best medicines and will know what to do when I have another cold." For sale by Davis Drug Co.

FRANCIS J. GABLE, POETIC LECTURER

Laughilosophy.
If you've a chance to right a wrong—
And take the chance;
And meet your troubles with a song
Or laughing glance;
And if, in fact, you lessen strife, Lay down your hammer and your knife, It's plain enough to see That you've a heart that rules your life
By Laughilosophy.

If you can lend a helping hand—
And make the loan;
And by your own convictions stand,
Though left alone;
If then your passions you'll subdue,
Be honest, upright, staunch and true,
And in all good concur,
'Twill be no task to make of you A Laughilosopher.
—Francis J. Gable.

A Small Audience.
The smallest audience Francis J.
Gable ever addressed was in a town in British Columbia a few years ago.
The man who introduced him, who weighed close to 300 pounds and looked heavier; said in his introduction:
"Today we have a large and enthusiastic audience; I'm large, and you're enthusiastic." Needless to say, the audience lived up to the prediction in a hearty manner.

A Queer Hall.
"About as queer a hall as I ever appeared in," says Francis J. Gable, "was in a town in Missouri. It was a small room over a furniture store, on one side was piled rugs, carpets and mattresses, on the other were bedsteads and sanitary couches, while the rear of the room was lined with coffins. It was about as inviting a place for the audience to sleep in as I ever saw, but somehow most of them managed to stay awake."

A Thanksgiving Dinner.
The Francis J. Gable Poetic Lectures are like the old fashioned Thanksgiving dinners we used to get at grandmother's house: plenty of meat, lots of sauce, and a wonderful variety of dessert. The everyday truths he utters provide the wholesome food, his epigrams and well told stories make piquant sauce, and the entertaining manner in which he reads his own poems constitute the richest kind of dessert, while the whole is so temptingly served in well chosen language that it whets the appetite of even a mental dyspeptic.

The Small House Came Down.
One night at Stromsburg, Neb., just after Francis J. Gable had started speaking, a big fellow came in and took one of the few remaining seats in the rear of the opera house, and as he sat down, his weight proved too much for the chair and he went through to the floor with a crash. Atter the noise and laughter had subsided, Gable remarked that he had hoped to bring down the house, but had not expected to do it so early in the evening.

A Wonderful Voice.
One of the most pleasing features of the Poetic Lectures given by Francis J. Gable is the exceptional quality of his voice. So capable is he of expressing almost every emotion by the power of his voice alone, that on two occasions when he has been left in darkness by the failure of the lighting plant he has held his hearers in as rapt attention as though the interruption had not occurred.

We reported in our items about Mr.
Winslow being sick. The writer was misinformed when they stated that he was at his daughter's, Mrs. E. A. Swigers, as Mr. and Mrs. Swiger were at Winslow's, where he was sick. They think Mr. Winslow is still improving.

Mrs. J. B. Coulter has been quite sick but seems to be improving.

Glen Crocker has been helping build Glen Mavly's house.

News is scarce this week.

Mrs. R. C. Nichols has been quite sick for some time. Lillian and Gladys have also been sick.

F. O. Stevens and family, while returning from New Mexico, had the misfortune to overturn their car, injuring Mrs. Stevens internally and fracturing the collar bone of their daughter Ellen. Mr. Stevens and the other two children escaped with hardly a scratch. Mrs. Stevens is in the Dalhart hospital at present, and the extent of her injuries is hardly known yet Mr Stevens' brothers, Elmer and Grover, drove over to the scene of the accident, bringing back the children with them. The Stevens boys are cousins of Mrs. Arthur Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Cale Murray, with quite a crowd of other young people,
