The veterans, at their last regular meeting, adopted some pertinent resolutions endorsing the movement for a soldiers' home. The idea is taking hold everywhere but seemingly no more interest is being manifested anywhere than by the veterans of Pickens county. Read the resolutions and think seriously about the wisdom of the plan. Read the resolutions.

John Hendricks came in last Thursday from the Oklahoma country where he went to take a chance in the late government division of new lands opened up for settlers. The division was made by drawings but Mr. Hendricks was not fortunate enough to hold a winning card. He saw much of the Western country during his trip of about a month and speaks favorably of it.

Solicitor Julius E. Boggs has been seriously ill since last Thursday. He was compelled to take his bed and after consultation among the physicians in charge it was decided to transfer him to a sanitarium in Greenville, where better facilities were available for treating his case. His suffering has been intense, but the latest reports indicate that he is recovering and hopes are entertained for his speedy restoration to accustomed health. His friends everywhere will be grieved to learn of his sickness and every body wishes for him an early recovery.

On Saturday, Aug. 31st, revival services were commenced at Twelve Mile at the morning hour and continued through Sunday, closing the following Thursday. It was a meeting in which all seemed truly revived, rivaling in earnestness the camp-meeting services held on those grounds in the best days of the camp meeting times. There were nine conversions, two of whom united with the Baptist church, with as many or more conversions. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. R. Dagnall, assisted by Rev. W. E. Wiggins, of Easley. It was a truly good meeting and through it the church has been wonderfully uplifted.

Last Saturday evening, Henry Hendricks, in charge of the Gilstrap farm, four miles below Pickens became involved in a dispute with some tenants (Lollie) on the place, one of them a woman, respecting the division of some of the crops when in an unexpected moment he was attacked by the woman and a grown boy, who succeeded in cutting him severely with a razor and knife, holding him at the time. Mr. Hendricks managed to free himself from their hold and securing his pistol which he carried as a means of guarding, convicts, fired three shots at his assailants wounding one, two balls taking effect, one in the right breast, going diagonally through the negro's body, the other entering through the hand. The negro is expected to recover as no vital parts have been injured. Mr. Hendricks is painfully but not dangerously wounded.

At the time of going to press the condition of Solicitor Boggs was not quite so good.

All communications should be in by Tuesday noon for their appearance in THE JOURNAL of that week.

Help the band movement. It is an effort which, if successful, will give prestige to the town and entertainment to the people. The promoters are encouraged by the liberal contributions already made, but they need a little more help to place them on solid basis.

On last Sunday, at Griffin church, there were five candidates for baptism to whom this impressive ordinance was administered in the presence of a large gathering of people of all denominations. The candidates were young people who united with the Baptist church during the recent revival services conducted at that place by Rev. McDaniel.

Coroner Parsons was called to the residence of B. L. Waters, near Flat Rock, about inst to hold an inquest over the dead body of his son Joseph Waters, a lad about fourteen years of age. He was found in a deep well, holding several feet of water, about one o'clock the night before. The jury returned a verdict in effect that death was the result of an accident with no suspicion of foul play or suicidal intent.

Absalom Roper died at his home near Field last Saturday night aged 84 years, and was buried at the family burying ground near by on Monday following, the funeral services being conducted in the presence of a large gathering of friends. Mr. Roper leaves surviving only his widow and one son, John Roper. He was thrice married. He was one of the old time, substantial citizen unostentatious but a thorough man and christian gentleman.

Recent developments have brought to light interesting details concerning the disappearance of Tom Alexander, son of the late Elisha Alexander of this county, who disappeared from this county in 1842, when quite a child. Fruitless search was made for him and all reasonable effort exhausted in the search. It was a thorough mystery until recently when it was learned that he is now and for many years has been living in Georgia where he married and has reared a family. It appears that he was stolen, sold as a slave and so served until the close of the war.

Those who want some evidence of what can be done in the way of bringing up old fields as cotton land can find an excellent object lesson by looking over some of the crops of Henry Hendricks on the old Gilstrap place. By scientific methods and judicious plowing he has brought up, among other worn-out land, a field of thirty acres which will at a reasonable estimate make a bale of cotton to the acre. This same field would not average half a bale to the acre when Mr. Hendricks took charge. This land is now in such condition that with reasonable attention it will continue to improve. While the cost of improvement so far has been through, it has not been unusually expensive.

Monday, the first day of the Teachers' Institute passed off pleasantly. Teachers to the number of eighteen or twenty being in attendance. Tuesday, a large number came in and under Superintendent McMahon and Prof. Dominick's supervision the Institute has already begun to show its beneficial effects upon its attendants. Looking upon the youthfulness of the large number of attendants of the Institute, an old-timer said, "This is essentially a young folks' age. And I often ponder the effect which their influence and teachings will have upon the religious and political creeds and opinions of the future. Sometimes I think that the majority of them sacrifice the endurance and lasting qualities of 'the will' to the hurried impatience of 'the now.' Where this spirit will cease and what its effects will produce is hard to foresee. It may in its own hurried impatience destroy the foundations of that which it generates, but I entertain grave doubts about these lines." This statement is worth serious consideration.

LIBERTY.

The three new brick buildings in town are about ready for the roofs; several other buildings are also being pushed lively.

One week put to good use by the farmers, the sunshine has enabled them to get a quantity of hay and hay in good condition. Upland corn is better than usual. Cotton is opening some, not enough to pick. Old cotton is fairly fruited, while the late cotton has run to weeds and the bolls are scattering; most of the crop is late in this section. Peas vines are fine and generally fruiting well. There is a fair prospect of a good hay crop being saved this year as there has been a number of mowing machines sold and the hay is good. We had the best melon crop this year that we have ever had. They are getting scarce though now.

The public roads were never in such a condition in the summer, in places they are a succession of gullies and mudholes, some of the holes having been dug there on since the rain. Our people had as well begin to study the road problem as will sometime have to be done. Some suggest letting the roads out by contract, say a contractor for each township and let him make that his business; to keep the roads in shape. Others suggest the North-western system, viz., let every man keep up the roads through his farm, without regard to age or condition and allow all tenants to either pay commutation tax, as now, to be applied on roads through the farms where they live or work as may suit them best. We would soon have much better roads under this system, no doubt. Every man who would keep his roads in good shape the year round by doing the work in season.

EXCURSION TO SAVANNAH.

SOME SUGGESTIONS TO SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The most difficult question to be solved by the district school trustees appears to be whether they shall run their schools continuously till their money is exhausted or when funds are available sufficient to employ a teacher more than three or four months to divide the time between the summer and winter seasons.

From my observation and experience, I unqualifiedly urge, when it is possible that it is much better to continue the school in an unbroken session, because the advancement made in a short term is lost in great measure during a long vacation and must be made up before any real progress can be made the next term.

By continuing the school for the full limit of time the progress of children is also continuous and especially so with the primary pupils who are unable to continue their studies in the second session where they were at the beginning of the first, while if they are carried ahead through all the time allowed during one whole year some substantial progress might be made from which they might help themselves to further development. I think it a wise plan to run the schools just as long as possible, and if funds are not at hand to run them a profitable length of time, it would prove economy and a step of wisdom to discontinue the schools altogether until enough money accumulates to run them long enough, with a competent teacher, to do permanent good.

Y M C A PROGRAM.
