

TREASURES TO TRADE

Enormous Stocks In All Departments.

Never before have the trade of Greenville and surrounding country had such magnificent stocks from which to make their fall purchases as we are showing this season. Now don't take this information with "a grain of salt" as you do a good many "ads." Just a peep on the inside of this big store will soon convince you—a careful investigation of stocks and prices will enthrall you to the buying point. You do not have to make your selections from a mere handful, but a large variety of styles and prices. Again, this is a store of many departments, You don't have to run all over town to get fixed up. We carry everything from Shoes to Millinery—in other words, we are head to foot outfitters. To those who are contemplating taking a sail in the matrimonial craft upon the sea of life, come here to purchase. Our Silks, Dress Goods, Wraps, Shoes and Millinery will fill the bill.

The Suit and Wrap Department.

There are cities twice the size of Greenville that cannot show such stocks as we are showing in ready-to-wear-garments. We have a large out-of-town trade who come to us for ready-to-wear garments. Why not you? The styles and qualities all that you could ask, and prices extremely economical.

Magnificent Millinery Display.

It will pay any woman whether far or near to come to this store to purchase her fall and winter Hats. No such a stock of Hat beauty, quality or style to be found in upper Carolina as you will find here. Nobby Ready-to-Wear Hats for street use. While not expensive, yet they have that touch of style—price 1.50, 1.98, 2.50, 5.00, 7.50 to 10.00.

Beautiful creations in Dressy Hats, suitable for all occasions, all the new colorings and materials; any shapes combined in these Hats. No better styles. No better qualities, and the prices are extremely moderate.

Shoe Values That Have No Equal.

The values in our Shoe Department stand out pre-eminently alone. They cannot be compared with those offered at strictly Shoe Stores, for the fact that our Shoe Department only has to bear a small portion of the expense of this business, while it's different with shoe stores—they have to make it all on shoes. Our lines represent the very flower of shoe making; In being able to buy everything you need under one roof, means that you can save both time and money by doing so. This is one of the few stores in the State where you can satisfy all your wearing apparel needs under one roof.

THIS IS IMPORTANT.

That Arnold does not handle trash. The prices quoted are upon absolutely reliable, first-class merchandise. It's the kind we have built our reputation on. It's the only kind you can afford to buy. You don't run any risk here. No old stock, job lots, mill-dewed, "outlawed" in style merchandise, old enough to vote, to palm off on you. You won't be ashamed to tell your neighbors where you got your new dress when she asks you, which she's sure to do if you buy it here.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Twisted Animals.
Here is a game that everybody would enjoy. It has one advantage that should commend it to young and old alike; it may be made quite simple and easy to play or quite difficult if so desired—that is to say, you may use a list of animals, such as we give here in illustration, or a list of phrases or sentences, the latter being of course the more difficult to "untwist."

In preparing for the game you write a list like the following, all the names being twisted, or "pied," as the printers say, with the letters arranged in complete disorder; it is much better to make a typewritten list, for ordinary handwriting would not be plain enough:

Peesh.	Almcoeh.
Dugop.	Graded.
Roast Blab.	Retiver.
Leap Phen.	Parti.
Pirfage.	Kacoep.
Torte.	Bosomp.
Rugsa.	Unogp.

Give one of these lists to each player, with a duplicate list of the numbers at the bottom of the sheet, and having fixed a time limit, say, of half an hour, offer a prize to the player who first succeeds in writing the real names opposite to the numbers.

Here is the "untwisted" list:

Sheep.	Chamois.
Tug dog.	Badger.
Albatross.	Tortier.
Elephant.	Tiger.
Bison.	Peacock.
Otter.	Opossum.
Jaguar.	Penguin.

Ants on "Horseback."

A French traveler has discovered a new species of ant in Siam, or at least a new trait that he has never before seen recorded. The creatures were very small, of a gray color and lived in damp places. They traveled often and in troops, which seemed to be under the direction of a commander, who rode on "horseback." M. Melissen, the Frenchman who noticed this peculiarity, was attracted to these groups by discovering that each company contained a large ant that traveled more rapidly than the others. Observing them more closely, he noted that each large ant always carried a small gray ant upon its back, though the remainder of the troop were on foot. This mounted ant would ride out from the line, travel swiftly along the column from head to rear and apparently overlook their maneuvers. M. Melissen concluded from what he saw that this species of ant while on its travels is under the direction of a commander, though such "ant horses" as the general rules must be rare and valuable, for he scarcely ever found more than one mounted ant in a colony.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Left Handed Animals.

It may seem queer to speak of an animal or a bird as left handed, but the naturalists say that term in discussing the question, just as they do in speaking of human beings. Many of them claim that all animals and birds are left handed. Livingston, the famous African explorer, was among these. One of his illustrations is the habit of the lion in always striking with its left paw. Parrots are probably left handed, too, for they nearly always take with the left claw anything that may be handed to them. A student of parrot habits says, however, that this may be accounted for by the fact that people use the right hand in giving anything to a parrot, and the bird naturally extends the claw that is nearer the object.

Don'ts For Scholars.
Don't think your object in studying is to please your teacher, for her life is not affected by your future successes or failure. The education she is trying to help you to get is wholly for your own benefit.

Don't cheat at your exams. If you do, the day will come when you will regret it, for youth and early opportunity come but once, and when neglected there is no means of reparation.

Don't make a tiresome task of your study, but engage in it with the right spirit which belongs to the delightful pastime of acquiring knowledge.

"Walking Stick Insect."
The "walking stick insect" of Brazil is one which has attracted a good deal of notice among students of natural history. This huge insect can scarcely be called a freak since it is a species of which thousands may be found in certain parts of Brazil.

It is very difficult to obtain, however, because it so nearly resembles the twig of a tree in appearance that one could easily pass hundreds of them and never know it. It is about eighteen inches long.

The Autumn Fairies.

So many little fairies are kept busy in the fall, I wonder how the fairy queen can supervise them all.

Why, a million fairy artists, each one with his paint and brush.

Are out at early dawn light when the woods are wrapped in hush.

There each tiny fairy artist gets astride a little stem.

And works away for dear life, with no critic to condemn.

He mixes up his colors and adorns each fairy leaf.

Here a touch of scarlet glory or a purple hint of grief.

Or a golden gleam of sunshine that will just when sunset fades.

No one but a master artist could so fling the lovely shades.

There are dainty witching fairies working busily all day.

Tossing fruits to bushing beauty, tearing chestnut burs away.

Brightening up the fat young pumpkins fit for jack-o' lantern time.

Don't you wonder, little children, how they ever find their way?

Round the earth, so busy striving for your pleasure every day?

What! You don't believe in fairies? And you say it's only frost?

Why, my poor, poor little wise heads, What a lovely world you've lost!

—Washington Star.

SIXTEEN BUSHELS PER ACRE.

There were thrashed this year from a 100 acre field of oats located on a farm but a few miles from the writer's home 1,600 bushels of grain of inferior quality, or an average of just sixteen bushels per acre. This fact is not mentioned with a view to causing surprise because of the size of the yield, but simply as the basis of a comment or two on the beneficial effect of the system of yearly rental of farm property. This farm is in a fertile section of the county, capable with decent treatment of producing seventy-five bushels of corn, fifty bushels of oats and three tons of clover hay per acre. The pitiable showing mentioned above is the result of years of shiftless management on the part of the landlord, coupled with a system of tenancy which has consisted in selling the fertility from the farm in the shape of grain and hay, with the result that today the farm is an agricultural bankrupt, fertility lost, credit gone and reputation badly damaged. As might be expected under such a system of management, quick grass has gained such a foothold that neighbors estimate that if it were all in one patch it would cover from forty to sixty acres of the total area. As a consequence no self respecting and prudent tenant will rent the farm on any terms; hence the other kind get it, and quite naturally the deplorable conditions mentioned tend to grow cumulatively worse. Such handling of fertile, responsive soil is no less than an agricultural crime, whose punishment is just as sure as that following transgression in the palm of human affairs. Reformation can only be accomplished at the expense of long continued care and effort. If regeneration of such a farm is effected it will come through a radical change in methods—stock raising instead of grain selling, a five year system of rental and the raising of clover and application of other fertilizers instead of the gradual soil robbery which has gone on for twenty years past. It is a matter of congratulation that such farms as the one described are comparatively few, but deplorable that the methods which prevail in the management of so many farms point to the same direction.

AN EDUCATION Beautiful and Instructive Exhibits AT THE STATE FAIR

The state fair at Columbia this year—October 22 to 27—will be more educational than ever before. This, like any other exposition, is a source of instruction and a source of knowledge to every one who goes there. The exhibits this year will be of the highest type. Nearly all of the floor space and outdoor space available has already been assigned and the exhibits include nearly every line of new contrivance. There are new gas and steam engines and labor saving devices, machinery for farm and plant, automobiles, steam plows, dairy utensils, mineral waters and many other interesting and economic articles.

The Midway.
The fair authorities were fortunate enough to get in with a number of the officers of other southern state fairs and become part of a circuit. In this way finer shows have been obtained at the same rate heretofore charged. This will make the midway one continuous round of genuine fun. The best midway ever seen here. More fun than ever. The railroad rates will be cheaper than ever.

If you haven't written your friends and relatives about South Carolina's great home-coming week, do so right now. Write them to come home, combined rates on all interested railroads. One fare round trip. Columbia will give them as warm a welcome as you will. Ten-day limit. Write them all today and send their names to Mr. A. W. Love, secretary, Columbia, S. C., so that he can write them, too.

ALCOHOL FROM POTATOES.

Professor H. S. Wiley, chemist of the department of agriculture, has recently made public some interesting facts connected with the manufacture of alcohol from corn and potatoes. He states that at present most of the alcohol produced in the country is made from Indian corn, while the next most abundant possible source is the potato—white, sweet or the yam. Some one of these is grown in almost every part of the United States, and they constitute a cheap yet convenient source of manufacture. In the manufacture of alcohol from potatoes the tubers are first reduced to a fine pulp, mixed with water and the starch converted into sugary matter by heating with an acid. After the conversion of starch into sugar, fermentation takes place. This is usually conducted in large wooden vats of a size to correspond to the magnitude of the distillery. Once started, fermentation proceeds rapidly and is usually completed within forty-eight or seventy-two hours. From this point the alcohol is distilled in the same manner as that derived from corn or other products. Professor Wiley warns against individual attempts to manufacture alcohol and expresses the opinion that the manufacture will have to be carried on by distilleries located at points easily accessible to those raising large quantities of corn, potatoes and other raw materials.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the great, known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach. GRAUSTARK

We have a good one for our readers now—GRAUSTARK, THE STORY OF A LOVE BEHIND A THRONE, BY GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON.

Marie Bankhead Owen, reviewing the story in the Bookworm, says: "A practical bookman has just said, 'no book since Tribby has taken so great a hold on the popular fancy as Graustark.'"

Being a story of love behind a throne, it teems with scenes of adventure and impassioned romance.

The author, George Barr McCutcheon, himself an American, has given the reader a noble example of an ideal American as hero.

The plot is thrilling and well sustained, the story being told in vivid, terse English.

The motive of the story is the love of a man and a woman, and what that love emboldens them to venture, to dare, to renounce, to endure!

It is beyond the province of the reviewer to reduce the plot of a masterpiece of fiction to a compressed summary of the story. A zealous story reader delights in the discovery of what happened next as well as to revel in the style and the literary atmosphere.

I would as soon be given a glass of skimmed milk or a squeezed lemon as a book of fiction accompanied with a synopsis of its contents. Graustark I leave therefore to the pleasure of the prospective reader.
