MANY ENTRIES ARE EXPECTED TUESDAY

Indications are That Poultry Fanciers Will Show At Least 400 Birds on Poultry Day

Poultry Day Tuesday, at the rooms of the local Chamber of Commerce, is expected to draw one of the biggest crowds in the Trades Day movement. Inquiry at the offices of the Chamber yesterday brought out the fact that at least 250 to 400 birds will probably enter the various classes in the poultry contest, and be placed on exhibition. The show opens promptly at 11 a. m. All chickens will be entered by 12 o'clock noon.

Following is the amended and complete program as given out officially yesterday:

Chairman—Hon. J. L. McGeary of Starr.

Invocation—Rev. S. T. Blackman of Honea Path.

Address, "Poultry"—Jas. S. Hare, United States Government Poultry expert.

GET CORN BULLETIN.

The Soil Improvement Committee of the Southern Fertilizer Company, located at Atlanta, Ga., have issued a bulletin on corn, prepared by R. J. H. DeLoach, director of the Georgia Experiment Station. The bulletin contains much valuable information relative to the corn crop of the country, and should be read by every corn grower. In addition to some statistics giving the amount of corn needed by the world, some valuable information is given relative to fertilizer and cultivation. This bulletin can be obtained free by applying to the above address.

Atlanta Letter

Atlanta, Feb. 13.—The expected pardon by Governor Slaton of James Jolly of DeKalb county, a white convict, who has served 34 years of a life sentence for the murder of a beautiful country girl on the road to Atlanta, recalls the most remarkable case of circumstantial evidence in the history of Georgia.

Jolly was convicted on a perfectly woven chain of circumstantial evidence, of a crime of which, if he was guilty, death on the gallows could have been the only adequate punishment. But there was nothing but circumstantial evidence and court officials, who had participated in the trial, so the old story goes, were never fully satisfied about the case. So Jolly got a life term instead. During the 34 years he has served on the chain-gang he has been a model prisoner, but to this very day he persists that he was innocent of the crime. Efforts of guards and fellow convicts to get him to confess his guilt have all been fruitless.

According to the remarkable story that Jolly told in his defense he and the girl were riding toward Atlanta in a wagon. He put his arm around her and made improper proposals to her. The girl, he said, leaped out of the wagon and in falling struck her head against the wheel and was killed.

Frightened almost to death he buried the body in a swamp and told the girl's relatives that she had gone to Alabama. Later the body was found and Jolly was accused of murder.

The state contended that Jolly had clubbed her to death. There was no witness, and there was very little evidence except Jolly's own story, the girl's fatal wound in the head.

After these 34 years have passed Judge Hill who was the prosecuting attorney in the case, has lent his voice to a recommendation for pardon, which is predicted today Governor Slaton will sign.

Hawthorne's Story.

That the imprisonment of William Hawthorne in the Atlanta federal penitentiary was probably the most fortunate and providential imprisonment ever made by the United States officials is declared by Editor Jonathan B. Frost in a leading article in the current issue of "The Call of the South."

Putting aside all question of whether Hawthorne was guilty or not guilty, of whether he suffered justly or unjustly, Mr. Frost predicts that from Hawthorne's imprisonment and subsequent revelations there will date the greatest movement for prison reform, prison methods and prison economy in the history of this country.

The uncouth control of the Atlanta penitentiary is all too evident," Mr. Frost declares. Guards with regard for the decency due a dog would not be guilty of the little, inconsiderate, cruel and at times brutal things which have been reported. Friends of the warden know nothing about the control of this prison. They are in no position to know. Their statements, letters and resolutions are devoid of sincerity for they are without the moral right to resort to such expression. They have not investigated and cannot investigate. It is useless to doubt the general truth of what Hawthorne has depicted."

The Governor's Decision.

That a recommendation by the state prison commission, does not always mean that a condemned man will escape the gallows, is shown today by the action of Governor Slaton in refusing to commute the sentence of W. M. Duncan, a Houston county negro, who is sentenced to be hanged in the jail at Perry, and whom the commission recommended for life imprisonment.

Motion Picture Censors.

The municipal board of motion picture censors has just made a report that the motion picture films shown in Atlanta are clean and wholesome. The report was made following the monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of Carnegie Library, of which Chairman Marvin Underwood, in which the censors' board is an official part.

Reported that he had received gratifying co-operation on the part of the motion picture managers. Many of the pictures the committee found but they did not encounter a single immoral scene, or a single film plot calculated to undermine morals.

While most pictures and stories of crime, the censor found, were still popular, in some theatres, but when properly produced they failed to see the melodrama in the movies was any more improper than a melodrama on the regular stage or between the covers of a popular novel.

Not Daunted By Weather.

Notwithstanding the fact that the weather Friday night made the great parade, which was to have been held in connection with the Sunday School convention, an impossibility, C. A. said yesterday that the parade would yet be held, some time in the early spring. It is planned to have a county convention at that time and Mr. Burnett advises that all banners, flags, etc., prepared for the parade of Friday night, should be kept and preserved for use on the latter occasion.

Cold Weather Is Passing.

There was a perceptible change in the temperature yesterday and last night the weather was much warmer than it had been for the last two days. Evidently the elements had concluded that the coal and wood men had had their innings long enough and determined to have pity on those Anderson people who could afford but little of either commodity. The snow which fell Friday morning has almost disappeared in a number of places and all of it will probably be gone by tonight.

Another New School For Anderson.

Another new school house is now being planned for Anderson county and this building is to be just a little bit better, just a little bit more convenient and just a little bit more handsome in every respect than any other rural school in the county. According to the statement made by Prof. Coleman principal of the Lebanon school, Prof. Coleman says that the people of the Lebanon section are determined to have a school that will surpass any other school in the rural sections of the county "and if you know" the Lebanon people" said Mr. Coleman, "you know that when they make up their minds to do a thing it is done."

Every Teacher Has a Chance.

J. B. Felton, superintendent of education for Anderson county, said yesterday that he had recommended to the county board a holiday of three days, March 19-20-21, in order to allow any teacher who so desired, to attend the meeting of the State Teachers' Association in Spartanburg on these dates. Mr. Felton said that this would of course apply only to those teachers who desired to go, and at those schools where the teachers do not go, the school work will be continued. The superintendent said that he had little doubt about the board granting his request in this matter and that he fully expected to see at least 100 Anderson county school teachers at the association. He is of the opinion that all who go can gain much valuable information from the sessions of the educational body.

The Kind Used 100 Years Ago.

Col. L. E. Campbell of the Eureka section, brought to Anderson yesterday a miniature school house which had been built by his two grandsons, Lewis and Walter Gambrell, aged 10 and 12 years. The schoolhouse is of the type in use over 100 years ago and is built without a nail, all of the joining pieces being put together with dove-tailed ends. Inside the school house is found the two long benches, the dune stool and everything that went to make up the old time school house. The structure is now on exhibition in the office of J. B. Felton at the court house and will be kept there until March 19, when it will be taken to the State Teachers' Association in Spartanburg. Those who saw it yesterday, were much interested and praised the work highly.

Baseball Game Per Field Day.

It has been announced that an interesting feature of Field Day to be held in Anderson county on March 27, will be a baseball game between two teams picked from the entire county. This should be a drawing card and should attract a large crowd. That a good game will be played is a certainty, since there is at least one good player in every school and with all the schools in the county to select from the two aggregations which will combat on field day are sure to be composed of splendid players. Some of the principals of various schools in the city yesterday, heartily endorsed the idea and each of them promised to furnish one "good ball player" at least.

Editors Go to Richmond.

E. C. McCants, superintendent of the Anderson public schools, and J. B. Felton, county superintendent of education, are planning to go to Richmond, Va., on Feb. 22, where they will attend the National Teachers meeting, one of the greatest meetings of educators to be held in the United States this year. The meeting will begin on the 23rd, and will continue throughout the 24th and 25th, and indications are that some of the greatest educators of the country will be in attendance to participate in the exercises.

Smith was charged with assault and battery, and aggravated nature while his son faced a simple case of assault. Anderson Boy is
