GREAT SPEAKERS EXPECTED FOR TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Spartanburg, March 12.—The forty-second annual convention of the State Teachers' association of South Carolina which meets in this city next week, beginning on March 19 and ending on March 21, will be one of the largest gatherings of this nature ever held in the state. Fully 1,000 educators are expected and adequate arrangements and accommodations have been made for their reception and entertainment.

Prominent Speakers The program, which has just been announced, is one of unusual interest. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, will address the association of national issues and politics in education. Miss Cora Wilson Stewart will relate the inspiring story of the elimination of illiteracy in Rowan county, Kentucky, where her moonlight schools were attended by pupils ranging from 6 to 82 years. Just west of Richmond, her vast audience was swept with a flame of enthusiasm. P. H. McMaster, state insurance commissioner, will discuss pensions and will present a practical plan for teachers' insurance. Dr. Reed Smith, professor of English at the University of South Carolina folklore and ballads. To illustrate the lecture, the University quartette will sing several of the old ballads. W. H. Hand, state supervisor of high schools, who was recently elected president of Anderson college will discuss the status of the teaching profession in South Carolina.

Reduced Rates The railroad rates will give reduced rates. The local committee on arrangements contemplates giving the visitors a sight-seeing ride to the city of Greenville on the new interurban, which it is thought will be completed by next week. A public reception will be given by the citizens of Spartanburg and a concert by the city schools and Converse college.

One of the educational features of the convention which will attract attention will be the exhibits from various schools of the state, many of which are already received. The headquarters for the teachers will be the Gresham hotel, at which place a bureau of information will be operated with the Spartanburg troop of Boy Scouts as messengers. One of the features of the convention will be joint meetings of the auxiliary associations affiliated with the state association. The Association of Town and City Superintendents, the Association of County Superintendents, the South Carolina school improvement association and the association of elementary schools will convene.

At Wofford and Converse The general sessions of the convention will be held in the auditorium of Converse college and the meetings of the auxiliary sessions will convene at Wofford college. The following is the program of the state teachers' convention, the meetings of which will be held in the auditorium of Converse college:

THE DAY IN CONGRESS MARCH 12, 1914. (By Associate Press.) Senate—Met at Noon. Passed a resolution by Senator Chamberlain calling on Ambassador Walter H. Page for an explanation of his Panama canal speech in London last night. Immigration committee agreed to report the Burnett bill favorably, including the literacy law. C. W. DeKnight, a lawyer, told the lobby committee he had been paid by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company to work for the Panama tolls exemption. Adjourned at 5:45 to noon tomorrow.

House—Met at Noon. William J. Schroeder, of Cincinnati, former United States attorney, charged a series of price fixing among corporations as an exercise of socialist power and a blow to the public. Rules committee authorized favorable report on Adamson resolution for a rule to consider Panama tolls exemption repeal immediately after disposition of the rivers and harbors bill. W. J. Hunt, Cleveland, and W. H. Crowley, Boston, opened the Latolette Seaman's bill. Adjourned at 5:25 to noon Friday.

THE CONTEST WAS CONCLUDED WITH A GREAT DELUGE OF VOTES

COMMITTEE WAS UNTIL NEARLY MIDNIGHT MAKING THE COUNT OF THE MILLIONS—THIS PAPER NOW ON A SOLID FOUNDATION

The contest for prizes to increase the circulation of the Daily Intelligencer, inaugurated by the business office of this paper, came to a close last night in a deluge of votes. Interest had been running high for some time and the favorites received immense bundles of votes at the close, some running from a couple of hundred thousands into the millions. The contestants and their friends worked hard and have the thanks of the contest management. As a result of their efforts the Daily Intelligencer has added considerably over one thousand new names to its mailing list. The circulation of this paper is entirely satisfactory to the management, considering that the paper is but two months old, and the future of the paper is assured. The winners of the contest are announced elsewhere. The committee of judges consisted of Messrs. Roscoe Moseley of the Citizens' National Bank, Fred M. Burnett, secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association and T. Frank Watkins of the Anderson office. The office of the Intelligencer was crowded all day long with contestants and their friends, and the finish found an anxious throng awaiting

The effort at all times has been to preserve absolute impartiality among all of the candidates, and in a contest such as this, it is not such an easy matter. The only ripple on the surface was just at the close. One of the contestants was a minute late with a big lot of votes, but Mr. Joyce, manager of the Joyce contest syndicate, ruled the time was out and the votes could not be received. The count of the ballots showed that the contestant would not have been benefited if the votes had been counted, and the paper is out just that much, and the contestant has no cause for worry. As there were two close contests there were only about 40,000 votes difference in each of two cases, the committee will go carefully over every step of the contest today and check up every item, but it is believed that the above is absolutely correct. The entire list of votes cannot be published this morning because the committee left the books in the vault at the bank, and the names of all candidates and their standing could not be had last night. The committee was engaged until nearly midnight in making up the final count for the leaders.

BURNETT, T. F. WATKINS, Anderson, S. C. March 12, 1914.

TILLMAN OFFERS SENATE ADVICE

Thinks He Could Lengthen Members' Lives—Question of Eating Washington, March 12.—Senators today were discussing with unusual interest Senator Tillman's declaration in his address on his non-smoking resolution, that he believed he could lengthen the life of every man in the chamber "if I could only get them to believe what I tell them and follow my advice." The South Carolina senator asserted his colleagues ate too much: "Since I have been paralyzed four years ago and read my own obituary," he said, "I have known 21 senators, including Vice President Sherman, most of them younger than I, have died." A fitting epitaph, he said for senators who have died in service would be: "He lived not wisely but too well, and killed himself eating." "There is no doubt in my mind that this great mortality among us is due to the way we live in Washington," declared Mr. Tillman. "There is a continued procession of banquets, dinners and receptions. Automobiles and street cars are used by senators instead of walking and pure air and sunshine are things of which we get too little." Continuing, Senator Tillman said: "Tobacco, I have been told by physicians, is a narcotic or sedative, while whiskey is a stimulant as every one knows. Many men use both and are constantly on the journey from the garret to the cellar and back being whipped and their nerves racked by the constant conflict going on in their system, while the stimulant and the sedative contend for mastery. It is the abuse, not the use, of whiskey and tobacco that is dangerous to health, for in moderation they are both harmless, I think." "Since my illness four years ago I have learned more about the human body than during all the balance of my life put together, and I am sure I discovered some of the secrets of nature and laws of health of which most men know nothing whatever. The pity of it is that I had to ruin my health before I discovered these things and learned how to live rationally. Had I lived ten years ago as I am living now my health never would have broken down at all. I have made a great degree of recovery and I am constantly being told I look a great deal better—and I know it is so—to will power and self-control in eating—the will power to exercise my own will and nerves sufficiently to give them tone, and keep the rest out of the joints. But the greatest help to my health arises from the self control, which enables me to keep from eating things I ought not to." Senator Tillman's resolution, unanimously adopted, forbids smoking during executive sessions. He said he had been in forced to leave the chamber
