J. L. MINAUGH,
Leader of Low Prices.

A cow belonging to Mr. James A. Brice, in endeavoring to squeeze through a barbed wire fence, injured her leg so seriously that she died on Tuesday. An agricultural journal says that these wire fences should always be surmounted by a board, in order to prevent stock from running against the fence and snarling themselves. The board will give them warning.

A difficulty occurred on Tuesday between Mr. J. A. Caldwell, and a colored man named Jake, his wagoner, in which the latter struck Mr. Caldwell on the arm with a large stone, inflicting a serious bruise, and received in return a flesh wound in the shoulder from a pistol. Mr. Caldwell found the man asleep in his wagon, and leaving a small boy to drive it. On being wakened and ordered to drive him, Jake was very insolent, and finally drew a knife, and threw several stones at Mr. Caldwell, when he was shot. He had always been a favored employe, and on Sunday Mr. Caldwell lent him a horse and buggy to go church. The wound was not serious, but the man took out a warrant against Mr. Caldwell.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

Further Incidents and Anecdotes of its Olden Time.

ROCK CREEK, July 26.—In my haste I had forgotten to record the memory of my old friend and neighbor, Capt. Wm. Osborne, and others. He came to Fairfield about 1818 from Mecklenburg county N. C., and married in 1827 the daughter of Ephraim Lyles, who shot the Tory across Broad River during the Revolutionary war. He and James Bennett and Simon Ashford and their sons, George, Robert J., William and Robert H., were honest, industrious and economical farmers. Capt. Edward, Mrs. David C. and Robert, Beverly W. and Thos. C. Means deserve a niche in the annals of Western Fairfield as intelligent and useful members of society. Higher up on Broad River lived and died Kelleys, William, Cornelius and Benjamin, Nevills, Thomas and his son, Wm. J. Shelton, Wm. Chapman and sons, Dr. Newbill and Andrew McConnell, all worthy citizens. Andrew McConnell deserves notice as an exemplar to our young men of this fast and idle age. His life proves the old adage "where there's a will there's a way." He told me that his first start in life was as a plow and hoe, which his father loaned him while working for him, allowing him to cut down and cultivate a poor piece of land, which he did mostly after night had set in, by the light of the brand he had cut off the land. He was allowed to cultivate it, while laboring for his father a few years, when he married and continued to labor on a little farm with a hired hand or two, until he had the means to purchase a negro man. By industry and economy he had accumulated a valuable property at the age of fifty, when he died. No truer friend to the poor ever lived. He died after a short illness about 1860-65. His loss was lamented by his friends and neighbors. His only two sons fell in battle late in our civil war. His worthy daughters are mothers of respectable families of children.

Capt. Edward J. Means, whose death was lately mourned, lived an exemplary Christian life. After leaving the Naval School at Annapolis, he entered the United States Naval service in the African Squadron, to suppress the nefarious slave trade on the western coast of Africa, Island of Madeira and the West Indies. He was in service six years, and was wrecked on board the Yorktown, off the coast of the Island Maybo. He served as captain in the late Confederate war, with his brother Beverly W. Means, who fell while battling for his country in Virginia. Edward J. Means was at one time captain of a gun boat during the Confederate contest, was superintendent of the Confederate Navy Yard on the Pedee, and remained in service till the war closed. He was a true patriot. He held the office of ruling elder in the church of Salem. His death is of recent date and a loss to his numerous friends and to his pious family. I should have recorded the worth of Thos. Conlter Means first, as he was the eldest. Space forbids more than a passing tribute to his memory. Suffice it to say, that he was a practical farmer, and useful citizen, a warm and sincere friend and obliging neighbor, charitable to the poor, and to noblest work of God, an honest man. Dr. David C. Means, whose sad death we had lately to deplore, was so well known, that I feel unable to do justice to his memory. No better man, I ever knew. Kind, attentive and skillful in the practice of his profession, he also combined all the qualities of a noble heart, of husband, neighbor and citizen.

When a boy I recollect seeing old Billy McGraw, and old Jimmy Newton, both soldiers in the Revolutionary war, at old Rock Creek Church, from 1813 to '18. A story was told of old Billy McGraw, a staunch Whig, during the Revolutionary war. When asked by another Whig—What of the news? He replied: "Glorious news! glorious news! Col. Lyles has killed Dohleridge, a notorious, nasty, stinking Tory." Old Jimmy Newton killed the last elk that was ever heard of in the State, as is related in Mills' statistics of South Carolina. He calls him the true Nimrod of his age.

In my last I stated that I would say something of my own family, by way of closing these feeble and imperfect sketches. What little I know of my ancestry is from my father and others who emigrated from Virginia, as also from correspondence I held with an intelligent gentleman, I met at the Warm Springs Va., who married one of our family, and whose letters were replete with my dwelling by the savages Yankees in 1865. It seems from these sources that either my grandfather, William Edgington, or his ancestor, emigrated to Virginia, then a colony from Wales in its early settlement, and settled in King George, and afterward removed to Stafford county, that he was a wealthy farmer and a member of the House of Burgesses for some time. He married a Miss Ichus, who was connected by family to the Fitz Hughes, Ficklins, Tylers, and I think Metcals, and others whom I have forgotten. My grandfather rode out to South Carolina, and entered a large tract of land on Rock Creek some time before the Revolutionary war, in what was then called the Craven county, as I noticed by his old titles and maps, which my father held. After returning to Virginia he died, and my grandmother moved to South Carolina and settled on his lands about 1774-5. Some of her sons, and all other daughters moved with her. All the sons, of whom my father was the youngest, served in the Revolutionary war to its termination. Some of them removed to Kentucky to raise tobacco on Green River, about 1805. My cousin Henry Edgington, remained with his father, William, in Virginia, until after the surrender of Cornwallis at York Town October 19th 1781, and was battling in that siege until the surrender of the British forces to General Washington, which terminated our struggle for independence. After the war he removed with his father and family to South Carolina, and settled on Rock Creek. He was noted for his piety and exemplary life as Baptist Deacon, which office he held forty years, until his death in 1836. The pastor of Rock Creek Church, of which H. E. was Deacon, was heard to say of him: "The pillar of Rock Creek Church has fallen." My father adhered to the Episcopal faith and doctrine, of which church my grandfather was a member in Virginia. He died in 1821. I know of nothing more of my family worthy of record, only that they were noted for honesty, independence of character, industry, candor and integrity, and were all farmers in the full sense of that term, produced their own family supplies, and all their stock, &c., and were good, honest and true men.

We had a fine rain on the 23d inst., the first since May the 3d. I hope our planters will sow plenty of turnip seed, and produce turnips for their poor cattle and sheep, for winter feed. They keep well during the winter in bays, cellars, or in houses, covered with straw or cotton seed. Pough them up and put them away in the last of October or November. W. E.

P. S.—As the rite or ceremony of Feet washing in some churches has become nearly obsolete, I will relate an incident as to how old Dr. Woodward put a stop to it in his church, the old Rock Creek meeting house, located on my uncle Henry E's land, near Maj. W. T. Lyles' old place, and to which I used to ride on horseback, but not my mother, before the war of 1812. It seems the question arose in the church as to whether Feet washing should be observed or used any longer in that Baptist church. One of the members, and quite an officious one—old Benny May—urged the continuance of it. Old Billy Woodward, the doctor and pastor, who was a kind of a joke, was called on, and arose and objected to the church: "Brethren and sisters, I know the reason why brother May wants to keep up this feet washing here. It is because he wants to see sister M's legs." This threw cold water on it, and I heard the doctor say feet washing fell into disuse, and was never mentioned again in that church. I forgot to mention Col. David Province, who died not long since. He was a native of Kentucky, removed to Florida many years ago, where he practiced the profession of law, until he married a lady of our State, and removed to Fairfield county, and settled on Terrible Creek. He again removed to Arkansas and served as an officer in the western campaign with distinction, and was taken a prisoner of war and sent to Rock Island, where he suffered untold cruelties, and he told me, until exchanged after the close of the war. He returned to his home and was a practical planter until his death, which occurred but a few years since. Colonel Province inherited a sound, practical mind, was a useful citizen, and left an intelligent and amiable family at his death. W. E.

AN EARNEST APPEAL.

DEAR READER: Do not throw this down until you have read and closely considered. The good Lord being our judge, we desire nothing above your salvation. We care not to what church you belong or may desire to be joined. But are you "born again?" Do you believe that God for Christ's sake has forgiven your sins? Have you a scriptural hope of Heaven? Who are you? Where are you? Where are you going? We are sent to invite you to Heaven's joys. Will you go? We do not ask you to join any particular church, but we ask you to be saved. "As though God did beseech you by us we pray you in Christ's stead be ye reconciled to God." We ask all true Christians, of whatever name or order, to join us in this work—work not for churches but for the salvation of souls "for whom Christ died."

The Rev. J. B. K. Smith will preach in the Methodist church to-night. Brothers, sisters, friends, we ask you as though present with you, will you not "come up to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty?"

A QUERY ON THE CODE.

Messrs. Editors:—I am a strong advocate of the code of honor, and think it the proper rule and guide of conduct for gentlemen. I regard myself as a gentleman of the first water, and can not brook an insult.

Now, I find on inspection of the records, (yes, it is recorded against me,) of a case by the Planters' Bank of Fairfield against me on a note for money loaned me, and which I never defended, in what is called the Declaration, the following words of me, the defendant: "Yet the said defendant, not regarding his said several premises and undertakings, made in form aforesaid but contriving and fraudulently intending craftily and subtly to deceive and defraud the said plaintiff in this behalf, has not as yet paid the said several sums of money, or either of them, or any part thereof to the said plaintiff; although often requested to do so."

The question I wish to ask you (for of course you will agree that this was an insult of the most aggravated character,) is, whether—twenty-one years having elapsed since this vile slander was perpetrated—I can now properly challenge the bank; and if so, what particular officer shall I challenge? Again, if the proper officer be dead, can I challenge his administrator?

Yours truly,
B. F. FUSCO.

P. S. & N. B.—This is a private letter, and not for publication.

[We can find no information on this point in our Cyclopaedia. The statute of limitation might be pleaded, unless the maxim "nudum tempus occurrat regi," applies to the Code. As the form in question was printed, the printer might be held responsible. The death of the Planter's Bank is a serious obstacle; but the Receiver got its assets and he should satisfy all claims, certainly this one, if he makes himself privy by collecting the money. Otherwise, the Winnsboro National Bank, as successor, comes in. We would not go for an administrator. Administrators have a rough enough time any how. Ed.]

"Ten times make one dollar," said the schoolmaster. "Now, go on, sir. Ten dollars make one—what?" They make one mighty glad these things, replied the boy; and the teacher, who hadn't got his last month's salary yet, concluded that the boy was about right.
