

THE NEWS AND HERALD.

WINNSBORO, S. C.

TUESDAY, October 23, 1883.

JNO. S. REYNOLDS, Editor.
CHAS. A. DOUGLASS, Editor.

This Russian Government has a national debt of over $4,000,000,000, and is now making desperate efforts to borrow $65,000,000. It is claimed that Russia will make an assignment in the course of a few years.

The appeal case of Thomas Shields for the murder of Joseph G. Sitton, will be heard in the North Carolina Supreme Court in the early part of November next. The 12th day of October was the day fixed for the execution, but it was postponed on account of the pending appeal.

CONSIDERABLE excitement has been aroused at Texarkana by the filing of deeds in the name of J. F. and J. C. Kerley to 241 acres of land, including most of the land on which the Arkansas side of Texarkana is built. The deeds are filed under an old swamp land grant and it is understood suit for possession will be begun.

GOVERNOR BUTLER said in a recent agricultural address at Attleboro, Mass., that ninety-two per cent. of every one hundred of the population of that State do not go to school after they are fifteen years of age, because they have to quit school and go to work. The educational system of progressive Massachusetts is not so far in advance of ours after all.

LORD COLERIDGE is quoted by a New York paper as saying an absence of hardly two months from his native land has served to win him the standard of English loveliness, and can conscientiously champion only the American type of beauty. Wherever he went the American lady was the same charming personage, and the American girl the same self-possessed bundle of independent anomalies. He could not sufficiently praise the fresh complexions, the charming manners and the independence that marked the ladies he counted himself fortunate in meeting.

We are much pleased to notice that the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher received no glorification at the hands of the good people of Charleston. Many of them, no doubt, went to hear him talk—just as they would have gone to any other show—but this seems to have been all the recognition he had. It was certainly all he deserved. Mr. Beecher is no model for reputable men and women to follow. The laxity of his morals—his low standard of propriety and his actions have time and again shocked the moral sense of the country, and done dishonor to the religion of which he professes to be a teacher. His undoubtedly great intellect has been used for purposes totally foreign to his calling, and he has been always more politician than clergyman. He certainly has no proper place in the Christian church. His hatred of the South and his wanton, cowardly and indecent abuse of Southern people, ought not soon to be forgotten. We hope the Plymouth preacher will receive, as he deserves, a still reception all over the South.

THE READING ROOM.

An Explanation from the President of the Literary Club.

Messrs. Editors: In Saturday's issue of your paper I noticed a call upon the chairman for an explanation or a plan to prevent the retention of books out of the reading room longer than the time prescribed by the rules. I am glad that some notice has been taken of the practice, and I hope that your squib on the subject will attract the attention of delinquents and render them more careful in the future. This borrowing of books, however, and retaining them indefinitely, or altogether, is of no recent date, and has always been a source of complaint in societies like ours, and even in private life I hear persons object to lending their books, on account of the ill-treatment they receive and the risk they incur of never getting them back. I will illustrate this by stating that some time ago I lent one of my journals which contained a piece which I thought would be interesting and amusing, to a newspaper editor, who is supposed never to forget, and neither article nor journal has ever appeared. The moral is, that if an editor can forget, then we ought not to be too severe on the liability. But if I remember correctly, there has been a provision made for this very contingency. There is a book and pencil provided with the names of all the journals and newspapers indexed and pages headed, and any one taking out a journal or paper is requested to write his or her name, and date of taking the same, and the date of its return; and if a part of the duty of the treasurer to see that this obligation is performed, and if neglected, to collect a fine of twenty-five cents per week for the time the journal is retained. So that you will perceive, Messrs. Editors, that if there has been any dereliction of duty the treasurer is the one in fault. But I hope that this matter will regulate itself and the patrons of the Society, impressed with the benefit they derive themselves from the use of the books, will be more prompt in returning them so that we can all share in those benefits.

R. B. HANAHAN,
President L. S.

MAJOR WOODWARD'S ADDRESS.—We are in receipt of a copy of the address of Major W. Woodward, delivered before "The Survivors' Association of the Sixth Regiment, S. C. Volunteers," at Chester, S. C. It is an able document, and in each line of it we can feel the heart, intellect and the courage of its accomplished author. We always love to hear from the gallant Major, and we unhesitatingly say, admire what comes from him. His picture from "Sumter to Drapesville" is vivid and highly interesting, and like everything that comes from his pen, it is graceful and full of interest to the reader. Major Woodward has the power to draw in real living scenes the occurrences of nearly a score of years ago, and in this address to his honored and beloved comrades he recalls with manly dignity what took place during the period to which he devotes himself. There is no whining or mourning, but a straight, courageous, splendid address, worthy of its able author. Thanks for it.—Camden Journal.

—The editor of the Barnwell People, who is a confirmed bachelor, says: "The Methodist church in Canada did a wise thing in striking the word 'obey' from the marriage service. No woman ever remembers the promise, and it is wrong to make her begin her married life with a lie on her lips."

—The Chicago Inter-Ocean truthfully observes: "This country needs more industrial institutions and fewer colleges of law and medicine. We want more common sense and less theory, more hard-headed practice and less theory, more workers and fewer puddlers. Success in the workshop is infinitely preferable to and more honorable than failure in a profession, and the mere matter of name has come to make but little difference with the salience of men's worth nowadays. Technical education is what is wanted in our manufacturing, and in them is our life."

The breakfast bell salutes my ear: Its cheerful tones ring loud and clear. For me it told of food and cheer. So great was my dyspeptic pain.

PAINT KILLER came to my relief And banished my dyspeptic grief. PAINT KILLER made me strong and well And now I'm glad to hear the breakfast bell.
