COTTON BELT, IN 2 YEARS.

Present Attitude and That of 1861 Contrasted.

(From the New York Evening Post.) In 1860, just before the War Between the Sections, the United States produced a cotton crop of 3,800,000 bales; the third largest then on record, and surpassed only in the two preceding seasons. The price had been 9 cents a pound; it was only 10 cents at the end of 1860. With the outbreak of the War Between the Sections, in the spring of 1861, Southern ports were blockaded and the planters went to the front. Nobody knows how much cotton was produced in this country between then and 1865; but the price at New York, in the resultant scarcity, rose to 28 cents in 1861, to 51 in 1862, and to $1.90 before the war was over. It was as late as 1883 before the price got down to 10 cents a pound again.

How curiously the circumstances of the cotton belt are reversed in the present war may be judged by this week's government estimate on the cotton crop, and by the South's reception of it. Between 1861 and 1865 the most urgent efforts were made to raise cotton, run the blockade and get the enormous current prices. Outbreak of last year's European war found our cotton crop at the largest recorded figure, but without outside markets, for both industrial and military reasons, largely blockaded. The New York price, which nearly trebled in 1861, broke in 1914 from 14-1/2 cents a pound to 7-1/4. The whole South joined in an excited demand to "reduce the acreage."

There was carried over unsold, from last year's crop, 2,800,000 bales—much less than the 5,000,000-bale surplus predicted last autumn. The new crop's acreage was actually reduced 15 per cent though organized effort had been made for an acreage 25 per cent or even 50 per cent less than in 1914. On top of this came bad weather in the cotton belt. Last Monday's Government forecast of the cotton yield named 10,950,000 bales, as against the 16,000,000 of last year. This would be reduction of 31 per cent.

The somewhat paradoxical enthusiasm in the South, over this bad showing for the crop, is explained by the fact that the price of cotton rose in consequence to 12-1/2 cents a pound, the highest since the war began, comparing with 10 a month ago, and 7-3/4 in January. But how about the cotton trade itself? In the last "cotton year," which began with the war, in August, 1914, the world's consumption of American cotton was 11,959,000 bales, or more than the crop now predicted by the department of agriculture, plus the "carry-over" from the last crop.

SAFE FARMING FOR SOUTH ADVOCATED

Government Issues a Circular to Encourage the Production of all Food-stuffs at Home.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—A program of "safe farming" for the South is outlined in a circular which the United States department of agriculture has sent to bankers, business men and farmers in the Cotton states. The history of agriculture in the South, it has been said, has been one of lean years and fat years. Short crops and high prices have almost invariably been followed by big crops and low prices, and, in consequence, the farmer has experienced much distress. The increased attention which has recently been given to supporting the people upon the land has already resulted in much good, but there is some danger, it is pointed out, that, with the price of cotton rising, there will be a tendency for farmers to return to the old system of gambling on cotton. If the people of the South produced their own living, the circular points out it would steady the whole system, and keep the boat from rocking. The safety measures recommended are as follows:

1. Produce a home garden for every family on the farm, the year round, paying special attention to a plot of Irish or sweet potatoes sufficient to supply the family with food of this character. Where feasible, have a patch of sorghum or other cane to produce syrup for the family.
2. Produce the corn necessary to support all of the people on the farm and the livestock, with absolute safety.
3. Produce the necessary oats and other small grain to supplement the corn as food. Pay attention to winter grazing.
4. Produce hay and forage from some forage crop, sufficient to supply all of the livestock on the farm. Use legumes such as clover, cowpeas, velvet beans, soy beans and alfalfa for the production of hay and to enrich the soil with nitrogen and humus.

5. Produce the meat necessary to supply the people, through increased attention to poultry and hogs, especially. Plan to increase gradually the number of cattle and other livestock so as to have a sufficient number to consume the waste products of the farm and make the waste lands productive.

6. After all of these things have been amply provided for, produce cotton for the market.

CAPT. BEN MONTGOMERY OF WOODRUFF DEAD.

Father of Jno. F. Montgomery, Outside Overseer at the Laurens Mill. Capt. Ben Montgomery, known by many of the older citizens and especially the Confederate veterans of this place, died at his home in Woodruff last Friday afternoon. Capt. Montgomery was the father of Mr. John F. Montgomery, outside overseer at the Laurens Cotton Mills. The following account of his death appeared in the Spartanburg Herald under a Woodruff dateline Saturday:

Capt. Ben Montgomery, one of Woodruff's most prominent citizens, died at his home on South Main street last Friday afternoon. He had been in failing health for some time and the end was not unexpected. Capt. Montgomery was a brave soldier in the war between the states, a successful business man, a consistent member of the First Baptist church, and a southern gentleman of the old type. His influence, advice, charity and example will be greatly missed in Woodruff. He was 74 years of age. His family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Capt. Montgomery is survived by his widow, Mrs. Montgomery, two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Rogers, of Woodruff; Mrs. E. M. Pearson of Due West, and four sons, Dr. D. H. Montgomery, of Union, Joe Montgomery of Woodruff, J. B. Montgomery, of Pacolet, and J. F. Montgomery of Laurens.

Only a woman can understand the paralyzing effect of disorders in the female organism—the misery of it and its depressing influence on the mind. Many women who formerly suffered from those disorders owe their present health to DR. SIMMONS' SQUAW VINE WINE. It exercises a powerful restorative influence on the female generative system, builds up a strong body, restores healthy regularity and promotes cheerfulness and a clear rosy complexion. Is The Chamber Asleep?

Elsewhere in today's issue will be found an article stating that the Republic Mills at Great Falls will double their capacity. Here is another important illustration of how badly Rock Hill needs the Seaboard and Catawba Valley connection. A representative citizen said to the writer the other day that he was unable to understand Rock Hill business men and the Chamber of Commerce here; why they did not drop everything else and go after this particular thing until it was secured. He said if the Chamber of Commerce did not do another thing for the next two years, but see that this connection was made, it would do the biggest piece of work that it had ever attempted—something that would really be worth while to the business interests of the city.

And we are obliged to say that we think he is exactly right. Rock Hill's business men have slept on this matter of bringing the Seaboard in here for more than twenty years, and it is only seven and a half miles away. Let us wake up and do something, gentlemen of the Chamber of Commerce.—Rock Hill Record.

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst."

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.
