

H. TERRY

Leave today for New York to buy a new and Up-to-date

Stock of Goods

To put in his New Store in the Simmons Building

The new store will be thrown open to the public September 1st and his efficient force will be delighted to extend a welcome to all of their old friends and new ones too.

Sales Prices on Summer Goods Continue Until the Stock is Moved
H. Terry

MEMBERS OF THE DAVIS REALTY CO.

J. B. Ashmore, Sec. G. Allen Banks, Treas. A. J. Davis, Pres.
Located at Located at Located at McComick, S. C. Greenwood, S. C. Laurens S. C.

Laurens County Realty for Sale

No.	No. Acres	Price	Distance	Town
1	135	$1200	10 miles	Graycourt
2	47	2500	5 "	Graycourt
3	90	20 per	7 "	Waterloo
4	89	1850	1 "	Barksdale
5	52	1500	1 "	Barksdale
6	54	750	12 "	Laurens
7	26	525	1 "	Barksdale
8	7	2700		Ora
9	51	1500	1 "	Barksdale
10	46	1800	2 "	Laurens
11	10	5000	1 "	Laurens
12	41	3500	1 "	Laurens
13	708	40 per	7 "	Laurens
14	203	20 per	12 "	Laurens
15	68	2500	3 "	Gray Court
16	37	3500	4 "	Laurens
17	240	15 per	2 "	Barksdale
18	158	20 per	5 "	Laurens
19	87	5500	3-4 "	Gray Court
20	15	20.0	1-4 "	Gray Court
21	92	30 per	4 miles	Laurens

Laurens City Property

No.	Lot	Building	Name	Location	Price
101	55x65	9 rooms	Boyd	Caroline street	$ 3000
102	380x121	6 rooms	Henderson	Chestnut street	2000
103	50x230	7 rooms	Thompson	Gordon street	1500
104	13 acres		Dr. Christopher	Jersey	2000
105	1-4 acre		Sullivan	Jersey	200
106	81x340		Martin	Chestnut street	400
107	150x150		Martin	S. Harper street	500
108	68x338	7 rooms	Martin	Chestnut street	2250
109	140x300		Martin	Farley Avenue	1600
110	1 acre		Martin	Farley Avenue	1600
111	1 acre	8 rooms	Floyd	Sullivan street	1800

Davis Realty Co.

Laurens, S. C.

Enterprise Bank Building, Room 2. Phone 120

WATTS MILL

Quite a number from here attended the old soldiers reunion at Langston church on Saturday and spent the afternoon in singing which was much enjoyed by all.

The singing convention of Laurens county will meet with the Lucas Ave., Baptist church on the first Saturday and Sunday in September. The public is cordially invited to attend and especially all who are interested in singing are requested to be present. All churches are urged to send delegates.

Mrs. L. B. Ivy was called to Enoree on Friday to attend the funeral of her brother, Mr. Oscar Prior, who died after a short illness of fever.

We are very glad to report that the little child who is said to have had infantile paralysis is now gradually improving.

Miss Ethel Farrow, who has been visiting her parents in Fountain Inn, returned home recently.

Mr. R. H. Donaldson, of this place, and daughter, Mrs. R. E. Thompson, of Laurens, left on last Wednesday for a pleasure trip to Washington.

Mrs. R. O. Morrow left Saturday to visit her parents in Georgia.

Mr. D. C. Jones, who has been in Greenville since last November, has recently accepted a position here as designer and has moved back to this place. We are very glad indeed to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Jones in our midst again.

Miss Jessie Mae and Master Clyde Gollightly, of Greenville, have been visiting friends at this place.

Master Rufus and little Miss Burnice Sanders, of Ware Shoals, visited relatives at this place last week.

Mrs. Mary Bolt spent Thursday with Mrs. R. H. Donaldson.

Mrs. J. W. Hellams and children, of Laurens Mill, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. R. H. Donaldson.

Mrs. J. W. Heaton has returned home after spending a few weeks with relatives in Greenwood.

Mr. J. Lee Langston has just returned from Knoxville, Tenn., where he went to purchase fall goods for the Watts Mill store. Mr. Langston also visited his son, L. C. Langston, at Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Alice Fray and Miss Stella Goff visited at Clinton Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gaymon, of Clinton, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burns on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Templeton, of Greenville, are now visiting relatives here.

Miss Octavia McGown, of Clinton, returned home on Tuesday, after spending a few days with her parents at this place.

Rev. J. A. Brock returned home on Saturday after holding a meeting at Bethany church.

Miss Tessie Kelly, who has been on the sick list, is much better at this writing.

COLD POINT NEWS.

Crops are needing rain.
Pulling fodder is the order of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Duncan, of Laurens, spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Duncan and family.

Miss Theo Nelson and friends, Misses Sue and Fay Williams, of Oakville, were the spend-the-day guests of Mrs. B. M. Cunningham this week.

Mr. J. D. Hunter, of Barksdale, visited relatives here several days.

A musical entertainment at the home of J. D. Nelson was very much enjoyed by quite a number of young people Tuesday night. Music being rendered by Mr. Will Mendy and daughter, Miss Grace Mendy.

Mr. and Mrs. McKinney, of Laurens, with their two children and their niece, Miss Eva McFerrin, of Greenwood, were the Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. O. C. Duncan.

Mr. and Mrs. McNinch, with Miss Ella Mae Moore, visited relatives in Clinton two days this week.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY. "The Progressive Railway of the South."

Offers extremely low round trip fares to

Washington, D. C.
Baltimore, Md.
Atlantic City, N. J.
Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach, N. C.
Norfolk, Va.
Richmond, Va.

and other points. Tickets on sale Wednesday, August 23rd, 1916, only, limited to September 8th.

For specific fare, Pullman or Steamer reservation, etc., call on nearest Ticket Agent or write
Fred Geissler, C. S. Compton,
Asst. G.P.A., S.A.L. T.P.A., S.A.L. Ry.
Atlanta, Ga. Atlanta, Ga.

Drives Out Malaria, Builds Up System
The Old Standard general strengthening tonic, GROVER'S TASTELESS chili TONIC, drives out Malaria, enriches the blood, and builds up the system. A true tonic. For adults and children. 50c.

What People of Other States Think of Sam Nicholls

House Representatives,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 16, 1916

Editor Laurens Advertiser,
Laurens, South Carolina

Please publish following clipping from Birmingham Age-Herald, relative to myself. It is gratifying to know how the people outside of my own State realize that the Congressman from the 4th District is properly representing his people.

Respectfully yours,
SAM J. NICHOLLS

(From the Birmingham Alabama Age-Herald, Sunday, August 13, 1916)

Sam Nicholls is Young Congressman Destined to Make Name in World

South Carolinian is Youngest Member of Congress, but is Already Rich in Experience—Has Many Relatives in Alabama, Which Makes His Career of Interest to this State.

By Hugh W. Roberts.

Washington, D. C., August 12.—(Special)—There are many interesting men in the House of Representatives. One is Champ Clark, glum and gruff, sombre and taciturn. Another is "Uncle" Joe Cannon, of vinegar aspect, but with the cocky, little cheroot with which his face is constantly adorned, picturesque to a remarkable degree. Another, still, is Jim Mann, the republican leader, who has the distinction of being able to ascend higher on one occasion, and descend lower on the next, than any other member who sits beneath the flag.

It is not true, however, that the names with which the newspapers each day are filled belong to the most interesting men, or to the men better equipped for the service of their country. Leadership in Congress, it is painful to admit, is dependent on length of service. The man with the biggest brain may serve several terms and never attract attention; or the man possessed of traits which impel others to follow him, may never have an opportunity to fully exercise these traits.

LOOK BEYOND NEWSPAPERS.

So if one would write of interesting members of Congress, he must depend upon his own industry and ingenuity in finding his material. He can't follow the newspapers. For perhaps the individual regarding whom the newspapers talk is a beef packet who has served long and made millions, or some other specimen of humanity entirely lacking in the graces which go to make a man; and in the manner and mind, hand and heart of the real fellow with whom one is fond of being.

One of these interesting members who has not yet served long enough to attain leadership is Sam Nicholls, of South Carolina. His parents christened him Samuel Jones Nicholls, but the fellows call him Sam. This is his first term. The indications are, however, that he will be in Congress for many years; for South Carolina, if it remains true to its historic predilection in recognizing and rewarding merit—in standing by right, irrespective of the opinion of others, in doing that which will redound to its own credit, will require the Speaker to swear in young Nicholls every second year, henceforth.

ALABAMA'S CLAIM ON HIM.

There is a reason why an Alabama newspaper—or the newspaper of any other State—should print a little story about Sam Nicholls. In the first place, he is the youngest member of Congress. In the second place, he is perhaps the most distinctively southern member of Congress. And he has friends and relatives throughout Dixie. In his relationship to the Crook family of Anniston, he is part Alabamian. In the fact that his uncle is Dr. Nicholls, of Tuscaloosa, he has claim in the affection of the majority of Alabamians who are and have been students of the University. For there are few young men in Alabama who do not recall the fact that the old Doctor would willingly excuse the boys from recitations, provided they would swallow in his presence his favorite prescription of castor oil.

From the standpoint of years, young Nicholls is quite a phenomenon. He was admitted to the bar in 1906. A year later he was elected city attorney of Spartanburg. In the same year, he was elected a member of the legislature, and at the age of 27, served on the bench of the Supreme Court of South Carolina. At 31, he is a member of Congress—and no other member is so young.

In less than a year's service, he has attracted attention. As a recognition of his worth he was made a member of the military committee in the very moment when that committee was confronted by the big problem of preparing the nation for defense. And then with the eloquence and logic of the southerner of the old school, he presented the House the child labor bill—in a new manner and in a new light. And then it began to dawn on old members that the youngest member was making friends—that, as a matter of fact, he has become as popular as any other man with the other members of the House. And no one knows as well as an old member just the degree of power possessed by a likable young fellow after he has won the friendship of all his associates.

INHERENTLY A SOUTHERNER.

But that which first won the admiration of The Age-Herald's correspondent was the apparent fact that Nicholls is a southerner, not only geographically, but inherently. He has the bearing and manner, the political conservatism, the impulsive chivalry of the fathers. In the old days, he would have danced in one hour, the stately minuet, and in the next, drawn the sabre in a patriotic cause. There are many such southerners left—and yet too few of them.

One afternoon two members of Congress were sitting facing each other in a Washington cafe. The one was a New Jersey republican whose father was an abolitionist. The other was a South Carolina democrat, whose father was a secessionist. An observer would have thought that the friendship of these two was proof that the "old wounds" were healed. But the abolitionist, like the melancholy Jacques in the Forest of Arden, was fond of philosophizing.

"This negro who waits upon us," he began, "is inherently, at least, as good as we are."

The southerner straightened up like a ram-rod.

"Now, as a matter of fact," continued the abolitionist, "there is no reason why we should not treat him as an equal."

"And as a matter of fact," returned young Nicholls—for the southerner was he—"there is no reason why I should longer sit in company with a man who entertains such ideas."

The abolitionist angrily got to his feet, but not sooner than Nicholls. The long arm of the South Carolinian swung from right to left, driving the closed fist against the other's chin. The republican measured his length on the floor.

And then the observer would have wondered about the condition of the "old wounds" after all.

It is futile and fatal to indulge in predictions. But there is every reason to believe that Sam Nicholls will ultimately become a leader of the House. Right now he is recognized as able, conservative, faithful and courageous. His constituency is behind him—for as one of his South Carolina visitors said recently, he is willing to defend his people mentally or physically. And Alabama which has a claim on him, will zealously follow his career... Political adv.