Patriotic Party.

Misses Katharine and Marion Bolt were charming young hostesses at a delightful "at home" on Monday evening, given in honor of their cousin, Miss Marion Coker, of Timmonsville. Patriotism was at a high ebb as evidenced by the "red, white and blue" garlands from every nook and corner, and the stars and stripes waving above every "lovers retreat". A refreshing ice course was served in the spacious dining room which was also a patriotic scene. Marion Blackwell and Mary Sue Bolt served here, while on the veranda Misses Alpha Bolt, Amy Wolff and Mr. Boyce Clardy dispensed punch and assisted the "youngsters" with a patriotic contest.

Hill-Burnett.

Cross Hill, July 21.—A beautiful home wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Eva Z. Hill when her eldest daughter, Miss Bessie Hill, became the bride of Arthur David Burnett of Charleston. The home was beautiful in its decorations of white and green. At the door the guests were received by Misses Mary Poole, Eloise Brown, Janie and Josie Griffin and were ushered into the parlor. There nuptial music was played by Miss Mary Hill as pianist, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Bass on the violin, playing "Some-where a Voice is Calling" and "I Love You Truly," after which the sound of Lohengrin's wedding march was played for the arrival of the bridal party. First came little Mildred Hill, sister of the bride, and little Willie Klugh Boggsman, cousin of the bride, ribbon bearers. Following the ribbon bearers came the minister, preceded by the bride and bridegroom. The bride wore an exquisite gown of white crepe de chine, made in the popular ankle length, wearing white kid boots and gloves and large white picture hat, and carrying a large bouquet of bride roses and ferns tied with a large bow of embroidered maling. The bridegroom was attired in a naval uniform carrying safr and cap. While "Just You" was softly rendered the Rev. R. G. Lee, pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony. A reception then followed in the reception hall, where ice cream and black cake were served.

The bride is a young woman of a lovable disposition and is admired by old and young. The large circle of friends regret that her marriage takes her elsewhere to live. The bridegroom is a splendid young man, a graduate of Furman university and Medical College of Charleston. He now holds a position as assistant surgeon in the United States naval reserve force.

Mrs. Burnett immediately after being served changed her dress to a midnight blue chambrase with Persian trimmings, wearing white kid boots and holly black hat. As she descended the stairs on the way to the car she threw her bouquet, creating much merriment and it was caught by Miss Janie Griffin. The guests were presented with small bags of rice tied with green ribbons. When the bride and groom left they were much pelted with rice.

Dr. and Mrs. Burnett went to Dr. Burnett's father's home near Greenwood, spending one night there, thence to Charleston their future home.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Burnett and little daughter Lois, George Burnett, A. L. Milling, Dargan Burnett, Misses Louise and Lois Mayer, Elmer Warner, Miss Lucy Burnett, Dennis Burnett, Ethel and Hugh Anderson, all of Greenwood. Miss Eleanor Bass of Cold Point, Mr. Wade Hill of Laurens and Mr. George Cray of Columbia.

Among the trained nurses recently granted licenses by the state board of medical examiners were Miss Dorothy Angel, who received her training at the Julia Irby Sanitarium, and Miss Allene Templeton, of Clinton, who received instructions in Spartanburg.

MANY BIG PLAYERS IN "SOWERS AND REAPERS"

George Stuart Christie, Frank Currier and Peggy Parr Among Them.

A specially selected cast will be seen in "Sowers and Reapers," Emmy Wehlen's Metro-Rolle production to be shown at the Opera House on Monday. This unusually strong offering was written and directed by George D. Baker.

Heading the list, and playing opposite Miss Wehlen, is George Stuart Christie, a stage favorite who will be seen for the first time on the screen in the new production. He has played prominent parts in the support of Mrs. Fluke, Julia Marlowe, Bertha Kalich and Henry Miller.

Well known to Metro patrons are Frank Currier and Kate Blanche, both of whom have important parts in "Sowers and Reapers." Miss Blanche has appeared in "The Brand of Cowardice" and in "The Pretenders," and Mr. Currier has been seen in "His Father's Son," "The End of the Tour," "The Wager" and other productions.

Pretty Peggy Parr has a part to her liking in Miss Wehlen's production.
