COLUMBIA LETTER.

Columbia, June 5.—The commencement season in Columbia has been in full blast here this week and will continue for several days. The Columbia Female College closed on Tuesday night. The literary address was delivered by Dr Geo. B. Cromer and was a fine address and much appreciated by the large audience present. The address will be published in full in the State of Sunday. Dr. Daniel, the president of the college, is an alumnus of Newberry College, and we always feel that he is a Newberry man. The Columbia Female College is prospering under his management, and in fact there is talk of moving the college because there is not room sufficient to accommodate the girls who desire admission. Greenwood, Laurens, Aiken and Sumter all have had committees here putting in bids for the location of the college in their town. I had expected to see Mayor Klettner and a committee of citizens with Newberry's bid, but up to this time I have heard nothing of them. If the college is to be moved why not take it to Newberry? As for myself, I think Columbia is the best place for the college, and the Columbia people seem to think so strongly that they are doing nothing to keep it here. If they remain quiet and do nothing, the probability is they will lose this institution as they did Winthrop, but then the State says one little college is not necessary to Columbia's development and growth, which no doubt is true, but a college of this character is worth a great deal to a community in other ways than material development, and any community is fortunate to have one. We would be delighted to see Mayor Klettner and his council put in a bid to capture this institution. It would be the biggest thing of his administration. In the graduating class is one Newberry girl, Miss Lily Warner, and she has just been elected to the chair of Mathematics in the college. She is also her class president. Mrs. Carrie Boozer, of Newberry, has been re-elected house-keeper, a position she has filled with great satisfaction for the past year.

Commencement exercises are on at the Presbyterian College for women also. In this institution a Newberrian is president, Miss Euphemia McClintock, and her predecessor came here from Newberry. So you see if we cannot secure the colleges we can furnish the presidents and professors. In the Methodist College is Mrs. M. B. Coffield as professor of history and English, who is also a Newberrian.

There has been some little political gossip here this week owing to the rumors of Senator McLaurin's resignation. That rumor has been more or less frequent for the past three years and Senator McLaurin has not yet resigned, and I pin very little faith in it until his letter is received. The Governor is already besieged with letters suggesting and recommending suitable persons to be appointed in case the resignation is received. He has given no intimation as to what he will do, and it is not probable that he will until the question is squarely up to him, except it is not likely he will appoint any of the candidates for the position in case he has the vacancy to fill.

The candidates for the various offices are getting very active, and it is now less than two weeks before the campaign will start, one part of the procession from Columbia and another part from Sumter. There will be more than six weeks of it. In regard to myself I have asked the daily papers to publish the following statement, and I would like also to have it in The Herald and News:

"Since my name has been mentioned in connection with the office of Secretary of State, I desire to say that I will not be a candidate for any office during the approaching campaign, and am not a candidate of the kind interest taken in the matter by my friends in all parts of the State and I admit there is a fascination about politics which is alluring. In reaching a conclusion I have considered the matter only from the view point of success. If elected it would necessitate living in Columbia, which would be pleasant, but to do so would mean a neglect of my private business which at this time I can not afford. There are two things in this connection which have been especially gratifying to me:

"The many assurances of support which I have received from the people of my own county, among whom I was reared and for whose best interests I have labored since reaching man's estate. I value their good opinion more than office, and the many expressions of good will from my brethren of the State press. This voluntary offer of support I prize very highly and shall endeavor always to deserve it.

"The kind interest of friends in all parts of the State is gratifying, and they may rest assured of my sincere appreciation. The time may come when I may be in position to ask their suffrage, but for the present I must remain among the private, always ready and willing to serve my friends.

"My observation, and I might say experience, for the past three years leads me to the conclusion that no man can fill a State office satisfactorily to himself or the public unless he lives in Columbia. To do so he must have an income outside of his salary, or no business at home which requires his personal attention and supervision, or he must make up his mind to go home at the expiration of his term poorer than when he entered upon it. My stay in Columbia has been pleasant, and while I have not held a State office, yet the position I have occupied has given me an acquaintance with men and affairs which I am sure will be helpful in the future. At the end of Governor McSweeney's term it is my purpose now to devote my time and my energies to my newspaper and my printing office."

There are reasons why I would have enjoyed the excitement of a campaign but there are other reasons why I cannot afford to go into it.

Col. Jno D. Frost, who is a candidate for adjutant and inspector general, has been the assistant for three and a half years and has done much hard work for that department. He is a thorough military man having graduated at the Citadel as ranking officer of his class and in the call for volunteers was made in 1898 he was made adjutant of the first regiment and upon the death of Col. Alston he was promoted to the rank of major. While the army was in camp at Chickamauga he was complimented as the best regimental adjutant out of seventeen who were there. He is in every way fitted for the position which he seeks by training and by experience and withal is a pleasant gentleman. E. H. A.

A LETTER FROM ENGLAND.

Miss Susie Summer writes The Herald and News an interesting letter of the Beautiful Country and Grand Sights across the Atlantic 26 Framfield Road, Highbury, London N., England, May 19, 1902.

Mr. Editor: Hearing sometime ago that you wished some news from me, I will endeavor to give you a few ideas of this dear old country across the Atlantic. I knew nothing of the publication of one of my letters sometime ago, or I should have tried to have written more interesting items for you to publish, but as I am kept very busy with my musical work and attending the best concerts and grand operas, etc., I have few spare minutes.

Last Thursday afternoon I attended one of Joachim Quartet concert at St. James's Hall, and a few minutes before the artists came on the stage the audience stood, and Queen Alexander, accompanied by five attendants, was ushered in. As we had very good seats, I saw her very well indeed; she is a very pretty and graceful queen. After the concert all stood and bowed as she passed out, and she returned their bows very gracefully. When out walking a few months ago, we saw the king drive out in his carriage. I have seen him twice, he is a very pleasant, but rather old looking gentleman. Another day, while passing through the court yard of St. James Palace, we noticed the liveries of the royal family standing at the door; so after waiting a short while we were rewarded by seeing the three children of the Prince and Princess of Wales, being put into the carriage. It was very interesting to watch the little princes return the salutes of the policemen as the carriage drove out of the court yard.

London is overflowing with music all the time. The most noted artists in the world always flock to this great metropolis. I have seen several famous and most noted artists, such as the violinists Dr. Joachim, Kubelik, Ysaye, Kruse, DeLicard, Lady Halle, Franck and numerous others; piano recitalists, as Mark Hambourg, Baner, Busoni, Leonard Borwick, Fanny Davies; vocalists Madame Marchesi, Abassi, Ella Russel, Ada Crosslay, Messrs. Andrew Black, Davies, and Lloyd Chandos. These artists are very fine indeed, and the vocalists have very beautiful and magnificent voices.

Lately I attended a violin recital by Mons Iego Nemes, which was a very grand affair, as Her Highness Princess Louise, of Schleswig-Holstein, was present. My violin teacher is a pupil of this noted violinist. In January we were honored with an invitation from Mons. and Madame Nemes to take tea with them. We accepted, and spent a very pleasant evening at their beautiful London residence.

The grand operas here are very fine. I have seen G. Unod's masterpieces "Faust" played three times, it is very beautiful; have also seen Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," Wagner's "Tannhauser" and "Lohengrin," which were fine.

The musical plays, dramas and comedies are well put on here. During the Christmas holidays there were several pantomimes on at the theatres, the most noted of which was "Blue Beard" at the Drury Lane theatre. This was the grandest spectacular show on in the world, and this is the only place in the world where one can see it. The beauty and magnificence of the scenery was dazzling to the eyes and one cannot find words which are able to sufficiently express the grandeur of this pantomime.

On Good Friday evening we heard the world-wide known oratorio, Handel's "Messiah," given at the Royal Albert Music Hall. Have also heard Mendelssohn's "Elijah," both were very beautiful; the choruses consisted of many hundreds of ladies and gentlemen's voices.

On Easter Sunday we attended services at the grand old Westminster Abbey; the rich full voices of the choir boys, as they blended with the melodious notes of that great organ, will always be remembered. The solemnness and gloom of this vast edifice produce a profound and mysterious awe. We step cautiously and softly about as if fearful of disturbing the hallowed silence of the tomb, while every footfall whirrs along the walls and chatters among the sculptures making us more sensible of the quiet we have interrupted. It seems as if the awful nature of the place presses down upon the soul and hushes the banister into noiseless reverence. We feel that we are surrounded by the congregated bones of the great men of past times who have filled history with their deeds and earth with their renown.

In speaking of places of worship I must not forget to mention St. Paul's Cathedral where I have attended services several times. A very interesting and never-to-be-forgotten service was one I attended at The Foundling Hospital. Here many hundreds of little orphan girls and boys, from five years old are well cared for and given a good home. The little girls look very quaint in their unique costumes of brown and white caps, in the style of the Puritan maids of by-gone days. After services we stepped into the dining room in time to see the children in to dinner, and their sweet, innocent little faces framed in beautiful pictures as they clasped their hands and with uplifted hands and closed eyes, sang their praises of thanksgiving to the notes of a bugle which one of the little boys blew.

London can well be spoken of as the most beautiful and wonderful city in the world, for here everything is kept in such perfect order, and the streets are always so clean. The shops are very beautiful, and one always enjoys looking at the lovely windows, for everything is displayed in the windows, one cannot walk in and handle goods like Americans do, for if you should say you are only looking around they would put you out, and a very good idea it is, for it avoids much confusion and trouble on the shop-keeper's side. The residences here are very handsome, and in whatever direction you stroll in this crowded city, you will always find some beautiful park in which you can sit down and rest if tired. One of the most beautiful floral sights of the season was the many lovely beds of hyacinths, tulips, and crocuses in Regent Park. Kew gardens is another very lovely sight for all lovers of flowers and scenery.

Everything is being rebuilt and decorated for the coronation on June 27. It is reported that most of the visitors will be Americans. I hope to see the procession, but I will not run any risks of being run over or killed by the many millions of people. The seats for the coronation are being sold for $25 up to $800.

As it has been so long ago, I will not go back to the Christmas festivities of England, the bands, coronations, etc., which were quite a novelty to an American girl. I like England very much, for it is such a beautiful country; the scenery is so different from America, and I should like to visit Europe more often, but I do not mean to insinuate by this that I like America less, for I am true to my native land; for there is no land or country to any American like that of the free and the brave.

With kindest regards and best wishes. Cordially, Susie Summer.

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could not get relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though you were' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pain had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by W. E. Pelham & Son.

DR. CROMER TO VETERANS.

A Veteran Compliments the Daughters on Selecting Such an Able Speaker. Wishes Every Veteran Could Have Heard It.

MR. EDITOR: I regret very much that you or some of your staff did not take down the address of President Geo. B. Cromer, made to the members of the James D. Nance Camp, U. C. V., on June 3rd. No better section could have been made by the Drayton Rutherford Chapter Daughters of the Confederacy for that occasion.

President Cromer is a born Carolinian with a heart full of patriotism as well as love for the educational interests of his country. I wish every old veteran in the county could have been present and heard his address and I believe I voice the sentiments of all that were present when I say that we felt worthy to wear the crosses of honor, after his address, that was being conferred by the daughters, and pinned by them on breasts that had been bared to the enemy on many a battlefield. The Southern principle that President Cromer advocated was not new to the old soldiers, but he presented them in a new light that made them shine like new gems in the old veterans' crown. Long may President Cromer live to defend the principles for which we fought and the characters of those that wore the gray. Let the thin gray line he referred to in his address ever stand by the principles that the crosses of honor represent and pray that more men like President Cromer be raised up to defend our cause that he and the daughters so nobly represent.
