THE VENEZUELAN QUESTION.

The war being made by Germany, England, Spain and Italy upon Venezuela is causing some uneasiness among government officials and others in this country. Some are apprehensive that the allied powers cherish ulterior designs against the Monroe Doctrine. A few like Henry Watterson hysterically declare that the time has come for abandonment or modification of that doctrine. Some, as Judge Richard Alvey, of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, express the opinion that Secretary of State Hay, in acquiescing in the employ of force by England and Germany to compel the Venezuelan government to make good the claims of their citizens against that country, has already to a considerable degree surrendered the principle of the doctrine referred to.

Judge Alvey is one of the most able jurists in the United States and his opinions are entitled to respect, but in this case we think that he is in error. It is not so very long since Americans were boasting of the right of this government to use force to compel the Sultan of Turkey to liquidate claims of American citizens against that country. It would seem to be a reasonable proposition that when one country refuses to comply with its obligations to another, force may properly be used to compel such compliance. The gist of the Monroe Doctrine is that the United States will not permit any European power to acquire more territory than it now possesses on the Western Hemisphere. If England or Germany, or either of them should attempt to appropriate any portion of the Venezuelan territory, however small, that would be a violation of the Monroe Doctrine and this country would be bound to interfere to prevent it and thus the United States would be forced into war.

But there is no danger of war and no reason for the abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine. The existence of the Monroe Doctrine is the guarantee against war. The European powers know that the people of the United States, without regard to party lines or shades of political faith have only one view on this question, and will stand by the Monroe Doctrine at all hazards, for the preservation of the world's peace. No European nation except Germany has any need of acquiring new territory. England has her problems in South Africa and a great territory for the overflow of her population in her Indian possessions. If Germany persists in her dog-in-the-manger policy with reference to the proposed arbitration, it would be a very easy thing for the United States to guarantee the claim of England, thus eliminating that country from the question, leaving Germany to attempt the overthrow of the Monroe Doctrine if she can. It is to be remembered in this connection that there are such nations as Russia and France, that Germany must take into consideration. Russia is and France always has been the friend of the United States. Their attitude toward Germany is well known. No, there will be no war, and the Monroe Doctrine will stand.

The next issue of The Herald and News will be printed early Wednesday afternoon in order to give employes an opportunity to enjoy Christmas day.

A Serious Accident.

Mr. A. Birge Wise met with a serious accident at Prosperity Saturday night. There was a false alarm of fire and he was running along the street towards the scene when his head struck a tree on the side of the walk. He was knocked unconscious and remained so until next morning. He will likely be confined to his bed for several weeks.

Christmas Service.

There will be a Christmas service at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Christmas morning at eleven o'clock. The subject of the sermon by the pastor will be "A Chime of Christmas Bells." The public is cordially invited to be present.

Arm Cut Off.

George Kinard, a negro working in the seed room at the Oil Mill, met with a serious accident Saturday evening, as a result of which his arm is cut off above the elbow. He was attempting to put a belt on a running pulley when in some way his hand slipped and was caught in the shafting, and torn off completely. Kinard walked from the seed room into the office to notify those in the office of the accident, and upon his return his hand was still revolving on the shafting. It was necessary in order to save the arm that it be amputated above the elbow, and this was done by Drs. Gilder and Mayer.

An Explanation.

Mr. Editor: I am not in the habit of correcting every little thing that goes wrong, but I want to say to my dear old friend Sigma that the sentence which appeared in my letter of last Tuesday, "If something don't soon turn up we are going to tell on an old humbug," was intended for a separate paragraph. But it got thrown in with the little paragraph, which was all in good humor, in reference to Sigma. We hope this explanation is satisfactory to Sigma, and that we may soon be able to tell in full the story about which we have been joking him.

Charged With Murder.

Henry Gilliam, the negro who it was supposed accidentally shot and killed his wife on Summer Bros.' place in No. 7 Township on the 24th of November, has been arrested on the charge of murder. The testimony brought out in the coroner's inquest immediately after the killing was to the effect that Gilliam and his wife were engaged in a good natured tussle over a pistol, in which the pistol was fired, the ball taking effect in Rachel Gilliam's body and killing her instantly.

Facts subsequently coming to light convinced several persons living in the neighborhood that the shooting was not accidental, and a warrant was sworn out and Gilliam was lodged in jail on Friday.

A Reckless Negro.

Late Saturday afternoon, Pierce, the little son of Mr. Burr F. Goggans, was run over and painfully hurt by a negro on a mule. The little boy was on the street crossing between Gilder and Weeks' drug store and O. M. Jamieson's clothing establishment. The streets were very crowded, and the negro, Robert Griffin who lives on McDuffie Sligh's place, was riding in a reckless gait, nor did he stop after the accident occurred, although he was repeatedly ordered to do so by several parties standing near.

The little boy was knocked down and stepped on by the mule, but although he was painfully hurt, there will not be any serious results. A warrant has been issued for Griffin's arrest.
