

LOCAL BRIEFS.

The Parcel, port in Yorkville, was burned Monday morning. Loss about $9,000. The new coach received by the electric railway company is a beauty. It will hold a hundred people with room for a few more. Six blind tigers were convicted in the Charleston city court Monday and fined $5 each. They paid their license like local citizens. Mrs. M. J. Sheridan gave a reception complimentary to Mrs. J. W. Tabor on Monday evening. It was a delightful entertainment and much enjoyed. J. J. Burnett, Master, referee in the Fairmount cotton mill case, reports the indebtedness of the mill at about $125,000. It will be sold in December, the upset price being $75,000. J. M. Kiser, a mechanic, recently from Columbia or Asheville, was committed to jail Sunday for an assault on a 12-year-old child. He has been working in the Morgan Iron Works for some time. Dr. Carlisle made the annual address before the students of the city Sunday evening in Central church. His subject was Joseph, and from the salient points of his character, he drew many suggestive lessons for the large audience. F. H. Lyons, keeper of the Gem Restaurant in Greenville, attempted to kill himself Monday by shooting. He was a widower and was regarded as a young fellow. A mixture of disappointed love and whiskey did the work. He may recover. Monday evening the Daughters of the Confederacy distributed a few crosses to the veterans. This was done in the court house and it was an impressive ceremony and a fine object lesson. For want of space a full notice cannot be given this week. The teachers' concert at Converse college attracted a large audience Monday evening. The people showed their appreciation of the exercises by their presence and close attention. Dr. Peters, Director of Music, has the thanks of the community for this entertainment. Dr. Mark L. Sharp died Monday night at the residence of his niece Mrs. J. K. Jennings. He was born in Pendleton where he lived most of his life. He was a prominent physician until he gave up his practice on account of age. He was buried here Tuesday afternoon. What is the matter with the sorghum crop this year? In many places it failed to make seed. Sometimes there will not be one well-filled head in twenty. Jesse Mahaffey was now employed at the New York Bazaar. He sends each firm a special invitation to call on him when in need of clothing, hats and furnishing goods. The large space given to the address of Mr. Bonnar has ruled out many local matters deserving notice. Next week we will publish the address of Capt. N. F. Walker. The Daily Herald has purchased a type setting machine, the Mergenthaler, the best machine made. One hand can do the work of four men setting type in the ordinary way. The Millinery Opening at the Bee Hive Friday evening drew a very large attendance. The store was arranged with fine taste and the display of stylish hats was much admired by the ladies. The Spartanburg Warehouse is receiving some cotton which is bringing only 7.87 in this market. If stored at that price, it will make about $5 net a bale if sold at 9 cents. The general opinion is that it will soon reach that price. Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Mrs. Virgie Carroll Copeland and Rev. A. C. Cree, of Gaffney, the 10th instant. Mrs. Copeland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Carroll, and Mr. Cree is the pastor of the First Baptist church of Gaffney. There was one Martin Cole in the Commander-in-Chief's Guard in the American Revolution. After the war he lived in Spartanburg county up to as late as April, 1825. He was a blacksmith by trade. C. E. Good, 728 Fourth street, Washington, D. C., desires information about him. Who can give it? Wallace's circus will be here Wednesday. It will be an all-day job for the little people. Who can blame them for watching the unloading of the animals and the hauling of the cages through the streets and the grand procession? You might as well turn the children loose and let them enjoy the day. If you are sowing clover or grass seed and have no harrow to cover with, take a board 30 to 40 inches long, 6 inches wide, put a hole in the middle and fasten to your plow stock. That covers the seed, smoothes the ground and breaks the small clods. If you will tie a twenty-pound weight to the beam, the work will be more satisfactory. It is impossible for circus managers to keep gamblers, fakirs and pickpockets from congregating where they show. Watch for these. Carry no valuables around with you. Take no chance at any man's game. Let the red lemons man alone and go to our town places for cheap drinks. You will find them just as cheap and much better. P. E. Chapman has bought a fine Guernsey bull, registered, from a good milk and butter family. After trying Jerseys, Guernseys and other grades he believes that the Guernseys are the cattle which suit him best. They are larger than the Jerseys, give rich milk and make very fine butter. A Guernsey cow led all the others at the dairy contest at the Pan-American Exposition. The Cherokee county court was convened into a debating club. All day Monday was spent in arguing the constitutionality of the jury law. By consent of all parties the case against Augustus Mintz for killing Dock Bridges at Blacksburg was taken up Tuesday. After much evidence the case was submitted to the jury with oral argument Wednesday. In a few minutes the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty." No other criminal cases were tried and court adjourned till the first of this week when the Common Pleas docket was taken up. Probably the last literary work done by President Roosevelt before the assassination of President McKinley raised him to the chief executive office of the United States, was the preparation of an article on William H. Taft, Gov. of the Philippines. The article was written in August and appears in THE OUTLOOK of September 21. It is particularly noteworthy, not only as a cordial appreciation of Governor Taft's remarkable personal qualities, but as in a measure foreshadowing President Roosevelt's future policy in regard to the Philippines, and as giving strong expression to his personal views on the retention of the United States to the island possessions. NUMBERS OF THE HISTORY CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE.

The most advantageous positions he can find. He reaches it, and from his lofty camp pens his boastful report to Lord Cornwallis: "I am posted on the King's Mountain and all the rebels out of hell cannot drive me from it." Hours before this message was despatched, through the darkness and the falling rain that cloud of rebels he had gone to disperse was approaching. Lower and lower hangs the doom over his head, as nearer and nearer come the hungry friends of freedom. Now the British camp is sighted. Hasty orders are passed—the mountain surrounded—and if not its rebels, at least the very fires of hell belching forth their flames as they roll over the mountain from all sides of the mountain to their tales of destruction to the forces upon its summit. I cannot attempt to give you, my friends, any adequate description of this great victory at King's Mountain, nor of its more important sequel—the overwhelming defeat of Tarleton at the Cowpens. These have been themes upon which great orators such as John S. Preston and Benjamin Perry have filled thousands of their countrymen. Suffice it to say that both in King's Mountain and Cowpens the Spartan Regiment played no insignificant parts. Look, if you please, at Col. Brandon as he mounts another charger—his own being shot from under him—and single-handed kills three dragoons. But this was what was seen in only a short part of the battle at Cowpens. What further death dealing he did, as onward he dashed against his foes, we can never know. And, as at Cowpens, so also at Blackstocks and King's Mountain did he and the other valiant Spartans fight their country's foes, and gloriously conquer them. Without the minor victories beginning at Cedar Spring and including Musgrove's Mill, in which the Spartans played so conspicuous a part, the greater victory at King's Mountain would have been impossible. Without King's Mountain the triumph of Cowpens could not have followed. Cowpens was the morning star of American success—the very turning point in the tide which flowed onward to Yorktown. And the surrender at Yorktown was but its logical result. Judge then, if you can, the tremendous importance which the struggles and victories of your forefathers and mine bore to the great cause of American liberty. No sketch of the Spartan Regiment can be worthy the name without, at least, some mention of a few of the many other illustrious names connected and associated with it. Of the other members of John Thomas' family—his brave sons Capt. Robert and Abram, the first named meeting death at the battle of Mud Lick—the scene of Roebuck's gallant fight—of his sons-in-law, Major Joseph McKinley, Major James Lusk, Capt. Joseph McCool and Capt. Joseph Culbertson, all the truest and bravest of men—the last also a famous scout and a favorite of Governor Rutledge, who nick-named him "Old Ironsides." Of Mrs. Culbertson, his wife, who blew on the Thomas Gosh shell a signal, which rallied the Whigs, and, by her help, enabled them to capture a band of Tories in her house—of Capt. Reed whose death was so signally avenged by Brandon and his men—of Capt. Farr, Capt. Jolly, and Capt. Farrow, gallant officers. All these belonged to Spartan Regiment. Of Col. Benjamin Roebuck, "the man ideal of a brave officer—of Col. Elijah Clark—the Daniel Boone of the Spartan District and a commanding officer in many a battle for her liberty, of Samuel Clowney and his negro man, who "surrounded" and captured four of the enemy on Fair Forest—of Rev. John Alexander, the pastor of Bullock's Creek church and the founder of Nazareth and Fair Forest churches, who preached patriotism to his folds, and inspired them for their noble lives—so hated and hunted by the Tories that his hearers oftentimes armed went to their meeting houses to defend him while they heard him preach—of Dicey Langston, who, in the dead of night, forded Tyger river, up to her neck in water, to warn the settlement of the bloody Scots' approach. But we must stop somewhere, though the list of illustrious names has hardly begun. Such were the men and women whom you and I are proud to claim our ancestors. Surely Bancroft was right when he declared "the romance of the revolution has its scenes for the most part in the South." But have we awakened, as we should, to our duty in preserving them? 'Twas the romantic legends and glory of their race, ever dear to the Romans and Greeks, told in their homes about their camp fires, that stirred the young hearts to deeds of noble daring, and nerved again the battle-cured veterans for more heroic effort. The truth of such tales was like a perpetual fountain of youth and vigor. As their fathers had battled hard to hand with the god, so too would their sons do gloriously and never disgrace the proud name they bore. What do we need more today than a revival of true patriotism? Let us then learn and tell the story of our forefathers, how they dared and suffered, and how mightily and unselfishly they wrought for their country's glory—until their names, from the last to the greatest, shall become household words throughout the length and breadth of our land.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Deafness is caused by inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. It is not a matter of a few minutes, or a few days, which is nothing but an unbroken condition of the mucous surface. We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Came Near Dying. For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lawther, clerk of the district court, Centreville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely. I went to sleep and did not awake for eight hours. On awakening a few hours ago, I felt so gratified that the first work I do on going to the office is to write to the manufacturers of this remedy and offer them my grateful thanks and say, 'God bless you and the splendid medicine you make.' The remedy is for sale by H. A. Ligon.

Old People Have Their Troubles. Mr. Francis Little of Benton Harbor, Mich., is over eighty years of age. Since 1865 he has been troubled more or less with indigestion and constipation and has tried almost everything in use for those ailments. Last August he began using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and was soon feeling much better. In a recent letter he says "I have used three boxes of the Tablets and now think I am well." These tablets improve the appetite and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. For sale by H. A. Ligon.

YOU DON'T KNOW... How cheap you can buy all kinds of building material until you get my prices. My system of business is so condensed that expenses are nominal and customers, therefore, get the greatest value for a little money. You Do Know That you need shingles, not splinters. Also want sound flooring, ceiling, siding, etc.; without worm and knot holes in the cheap grades. You should likewise have good doors, sash and blinds. If This is so See me. The two following rules prevail and explain why my prices are money-savers, viz: Spot cash and one price, that the lowest. G. O. FIKE, MAIN STREET. BUY THE BEST. THE CHAMPION HAYMAKER is designed and specially adapted for use under such conditions. There is no pitman or framework running across the front of the machine, and it will straddle many obstructions when a long pitman mower must be driven around. The finger bar may be handled in ways impossible on a long pitman mower. Either end of the bar may be lifted independently, or the bar may be placed in a perfectly upright position, without stopping the team and without throwing up or passing any obstruction, and when the obstruction is passed he lowered immediately and start cutting without losing a second's time. Various attempts have been made and are being made to arrange long pitman mowers so that the bar can be handled in this manner. All of such attempts must fail, because it is necessary to throw such machines in and out of gear while in motion, which causes breakage. Also the clutches wear and refuse to hold. M. P. PHIFER, next door to Bee Hive.
