SIR LESLIE RUNDLE. His Advancement to High Military Honors is Unparalleled in Modern English History. The case of Lieut. Gen. Sir Leslie Rundle, whom Lord Roberts sent to the relief of Wepener, via Reddersburg, constitutes perhaps the most remarkable instance of advancement to high military office which has occurred in the recent history of the British army. Sir Leslie Rundle only reached his forty-fourth birthday three months ago, and 15 years ago he was but a subaltern of artillery, having entered the Royal regiment in 1876, and ob-

GEN. SIR LESLIE RUNDLE. (Sent by Field Marshal Roberts to the Relief of Wepener.)

But in several respects Sir Leslie Rundle may claim to have done unprecedented service. He has eight campaigns to his credit—the Zulu and Transvaal campaigns in the South African war of 1879-81, the Egyptian expedition of 1882, the Nile expedition of 1884-85, the operations of the frontier field force in the Sudan in 1885-86-87-88-89-91, the Dongola expedition of 1896, the Nile expedition of 1897 and the advance on Khartoum in 1898. Gen. Rundle was employed with the Egyptian army from 1884 until last year, when he was given the command of the southeastern district, which he has since left to act temporarily as deputy adjutant general to the forces. During this period of employment with the Egyptian army he acted repeatedly as Lord Kitchener's chief of staff—it was in this capacity that he was present at the battle of Omdurman—and he was successively governor of the Red sea littoral, of the frontier and of the Dongola province. It is interesting to recall the fact that in the last Transvaal campaign Gen., then Lieut., Rundle was wounded in the defense of Putschefstroom.

TEN GREATEST MEN. The List Includes None But Englishmen and Americans of the Nineteenth Century.

Who are the ten greatest men of the nineteenth century? This is a favorite conundrum just now across the water, but we have seen only one attempt to solve it in print. An English periodical names Abraham Lincoln, the statesman; Grant, the soldier; Darwin, the scientist; Thackeray, the novelist; Herbert Spencer, the philosopher; Jenner, "the most commanding figure in medicine"; Froebel, the educator; Beethoven, the musician; and Morse and Stephenson, first masters of electricity and steam. It is easy to imagine, says Youth's Companion, the frantic objections a Frenchman—for instance—would raise to a list which mentions not one of the masters of art and life of his own nation. Noting that the list is restricted to Englishmen and Americans, men of the Anglo-Saxon race, and to Germans—first cousins, so to speak, to that race—he would allege that here was another outcropping of that self-satisfied egotism which makes the "Britisher" or the "Yankee" so disagreeable a neighbor.

The real truth is that a man, whether Englishman or Frenchman, who undertakes any such classification, engages in a perilous enterprise. He may not hope to satisfy anyone but himself. Probably every thoughtful student of our own time has at least one hero whose name he would vote to substitute for some name given above. Yet this is a goodly list, one worthy of respectful consideration. It is not ours. We merely support the conundrum and the answer. But the American who construes the more glittering roll of honor will have to read hard and think deeply. The sterner critic will probably concede that it would not be possible to mention "ten greatest men" of the nineteenth century, omitting all the ten whose names are given above.

Nine Comprehensive Rules. Seldom has there been better advice for the conduct of the human family than is boiled down in nine comprehensive antitheses: Drink less, breathe more; eat less, chew more; ride less, walk more; clothe less, bathe more; worry less, work more; waste less, give more; write less, read more; talk less, think more; preach less, practice more. To follow these is to strike for better health, further popularity and greater success.

Wants to Sell His Body. Walter Wentworth, 75 years old, and for many years a professional contortionist, is in New York looking for someone to buy his body. He has long been a wonder to medical men on account of the wonderful pliability of his frame, which he has already sold twice—once to Dr. Cowes, of Detroit, and later to Dr. Wilder, of New York, receiving in each case $100. Both these medical men are dead, and now Wentworth is looking for a third speculator.

Scrofula, a Vile Inheritance. Scrofula is the most obstinate of blood troubles, and is often the result of an inherited taint in the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Scrofula; it forces out every trace of the disease, and cures the worst cases. My son, Charlie, was afflicted from infancy with Scrofula, and he suffered so that it was impossible to dress him for three years. His head and body were a mass of sores, and his weight also became affected. No treatment was spared that we thought would relieve him, but he grew worse until his condition was indeed pitiable. I had almost despaired of his ever being cured, when by the advice of a friend we gave him S. S. S. (Swift's Specific). A decided improvement was the result, and after he had taken a dozen bottles, no one who knew of his former dreadful condition would have recognized him. All the sores on his body have healed, his skin is perfectly clear and smooth, and he has been restored to perfect health. Mrs. S. S. MANN, 800 Elm St., Mason, Ga.

For real blood troubles it is a waste of time to expect a cure from the doctors. Blood diseases are beyond their skill. Swift's Specific, S.S.S. For The Blood reaches all deep-seated cases which other remedies have no effect upon. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed purely vegetable, and contains no potash, mercury, or other mineral. Books mailed free to any address by Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.
