Mr. Sheekies, of the REVIEW, is an expert revolver shot. Last night the skunk who had lived around his and the neighbors houses for months, and had been shot at by such famous marksman as J. A. Campbell scores of times without the slightest effect, made his usual raid and tackled a fine chicken. ger; there was a loud report and the skunk fell dead. The astonished slayer of this famous bandit is now boasting of his skill and the neighbors are congratulating him.

A COOKERY COLLECTION.

Items of Information Pertaining to Matters in the Culinary Department.

In most families the one and only way of serving prunes is stewed, but they may be made into a number of palatable desserts. Prune pudding is made by lining an ordinary baking dish with brown bread and butter. Have the prunes soaked over night, and open them and take out the stones. Fill the dish with the prunes, cover over with another layer of brown bread and butter. Beat two eggs without separating, add to them one pint of milk; pour this over the mixture, and bake in the oven for 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold.

Prunes may also be soaked, the stones removed, and the flesh mashed with a spoon, or cut into small pieces, half a box of gelatine added to each pint of the prunes, and stir in, as the gelatine begins to congeal, either a pint of whipped cream or the whites of four eggs, beaten to a stiff froth.

To make prunes into croquettes soak the prunes, mash them fine; to each half pound add a pint of bread crumbs. Bind together in small blocks, dip in egg and bread crumbs, fry in smoking hot fat. Serve with caramel or lemon sauce.

An unusual dish that is seasonable is fried asparagus. The tender portions of the stalks are cut into inch lengths, boiled for about five minutes in salted water, drained, dipped in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs and fried in hot lard. Parsley, also fried, is served as a garnish. A white or Hollandaise sauce should be sent around with the dish.

Very rich cream often shows particles of butter or even goes all to butter while being whipped. This is because it is not sufficiently chilled. It must have a temperature of less than 60 to whip well. If kept for several hours in the ordinary house refrigerator it is a safe plan to set the bowl holding the cream in a pan of cracked ice, as otherwise the heat of the kitchen or of an outside pantry in summer will quickly raise the temperature of the cream, which will probably be none too cold when taken from the ice chest. If the cream is very thick an equal quantity of new milk might be added.

Trade with Asia and Oceania. For the first time in history our exports to Asia and Oceania will exceed $100,000,000 during the current fiscal year. In no part of the world has our trade grown with such amazing rapidity, except in South Africa, the total having increased 100 per cent. in two years, for in 1893 our total exports to all Asia and Oceania amounted only to a little more than $27,000,000. The increase is chiefly in cottons, breadstuffs, provisions and manufactured goods.

From War to Pursuits of Peace. Now that the war in South Africa is practically over, the Missouri mules that are left may be used in Kansas to pull harvesting machines, suggests the Chicago Times-Herald.
