Harris, the tailor, only charges $2 to clean a suit of clothes, Tombstone canyon.

LOST—A watch chain, malachite, Red Men on one side and A. O. U. W. on the other. Return to T. F. Metz.

W. W. Ross, of San Francisco, arrived yesterday and registered at the Bessemer. He is here on business.

C. M. Woods is one of several Denver residents who arrived in Bisbee yesterday. He, too, is at the Bessemer.

B. F. Meyer, a citizen of Denver and well known business man, is in town attending to business among the local merchants.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Ernest Barker will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. T. C. Moffett will officiate.

The Methodist Church Fair commences on Tuesday the 13th of the month. Great preparations are being made for this event.

D. Ford Jones attended a party of his friends at a venison dinner last evening. The dinner consisted of venison served in several courses and prepared at the New England Kitchen.

There was an election held at the school yesterday. Voting was for the presidential candidates and candidates for delegate. The democratic side won.

Messrs. Hare, Bradley, Roemer, Col. Gray, all candidates, were passengers by this morning's train for the county seat. The gentlemen were most of them looking a little bit anxious.

Commencing December 1st the Bisbee Water and Coal company will deliver coal by their new electric elevated trolley burro system to all customers.

Paul Morgan, the expert piano tuner who makes regular semi-annual trips to Bisbee, is here again. Those wanting their piano tuned or repaired by a scientific tuner can leave orders at Schmieding's jewelry store. Mr. Morgan expects to remain here this week only.

Charles Harris begs to announce that he is continuing his business of tailoring and repairing at short notice at his residence in Tombstone canyon this side of the Castle Rock. That he is now in a position to make clothes and to repair and clean them at the cheapest rates and invites the attention of the public to his fine stock of fall and winter goods.

It is with deep regret that the REVIEW is compelled to inform its readers of the death of Mrs. E. C. Barker who passed away this morning. The cause of her death was typhoid fever. Miss Marie Strumm was married to our well known and respected townsman Mr. E. C. Barker, about two months ago and the event was looked upon as one of the happiest of the year. That the young wife should be taken thus at the outset of her married life is sad indeed, and the young husband can, if it be any consolation, be assured of the deep sympathy of the community.

The meeting of the Easter Sunday Mine Directors was well attended, except by the outside shareholders who expressed their desire that the local men should look after their interests, and also expressed their entire satisfaction with the management of the mine. The following gentlemen were elected to the respective offices: President, R. P. Brown; Vice-President, C. A. Overlock; Treasurer, T. P. Devine; Secretary, I. W. Wallace; General Manager, John Hill. Directors: J. H. Huber, W. M. Scrimsher, I. W. Wallace, H. R. Hauginger, John Hill, T. P. Devine, R. P. Brown, J. C. Krigbaum, C. A. Overlock, Peter Johnson.

Notice. This is to notify that Mr. Paul Morgan is the only tuner representing us in this section at the present time.

SNAKES ON PICNIC GROUND.

Pleasure Resort Was Laid Out at Great Expense Over a Den of Reptiles.

"A few years ago," said Mr. Kepp, of Punxsutawney, Pa., to a Chicago Inter Ocean reporter, "a friend of mine, Maj. Powell, who was superintendent of a little railroad, built at considerable expense a fine picnic ground out among the rocks and trees of Bradford county. He thought it would help the road to have a fine rustic and romantic resort, where people could go to hold picnics, and anticipated that there would be one or two excursions every week to this cool sylvan retreat. And it was a mighty pretty place. When it was all fixed up and about 300 people, the majority of them children, went there to have their first picnic, Maj. Powell was there in all his glory to witness the opening of what was to be the most popular resort in Bradford county. Presently somebody saw a big rattlesnake, which was duly dispatched. Mr. Powell looked at it, and not wishing to injure the reputation of his sylvan paradise, said: 'Yes, that is a pretty fair sized milk snake,' and ordered it buried.

"But that snake had scarcely been buried when a man came in with six more big rattlers that had just been killed. And that was only the beginning. In a few moments it was discovered that the place was literally alive with rattlesnakes. Most everywhere you turned there was a big rattler, and you can guess that the women and children weren't long in getting out of that. The fact was that the picnic grounds were constructed right over a den of rattlesnakes. The major had spent nearly $300 in fixing up the grounds, and had named the place 'Paradise Glen,' but the people shunned it as a pestilence after that and changed the name to 'Rattlesnake Gulch.'

DOES NOT COME WITH AGE.

Wisdom Is Not Always One of the Accompaniments of Years.

A medical man has discovered that neither in youth nor old age is a man likely to make the biggest fool of himself, remarks the New York Press. Extreme youth usually is considered not to have arrived at the dignity of years of discretion, yet a homely proverb would have us believe that "there is no fool like an old fool." This medical observer has broached the theory that there is an "aberration period of middle life," between the ages of 57 and 62. "If," he says, "a careful examination be made of the preventable disasters of the last 20 years and of the ages of those who were held responsible by the verdict of mankind for such lamentable issues there will be found a strange coincidence in the range of their ages."

Here is an interesting and practically inexhaustible field for investigation. Politicians who are "ag'in" the government may trace the blunders of an administration to the sinister influence of some boss who was passing through the fatal period at the time, and "regrettable incidents" of all kinds, in war or peace, may be traced to their true origin. In time, no doubt, we shall appreciate the necessity of requiring all public men, on entering the fatal period, to take a five years' holiday and to resume work only when they have passed the age of aberration.

TRIED BY HIS PEERS.

Stinging Rebuke to a Jury That Had Reached an Outrageous Verdict.

No member of the Massachusetts bar stood higher than the late Harry W. Paine. He was absolutely fearless, and occasionally trampled upon the traditions of the courts with the utmost recklessness. On one occasion he was defending a charity case in which a boy of 15 was charged with arson. He made a strong case to prove the defendant an idiot. After a charge from the judge, which was practically an order for acquittal, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The judge asked Paine if he would move for a new trial. "I thank you for your suggestion," was the answer, "but I am oppressed with the gravest doubts whether I have the right to move for a new trial. Your honor, I have already asked for and received for my idiot client the most precious heritage of our English and American common law—a trial by a jury of his peers."

Paine had an old quarrel with the supreme court, and never lost an opportunity of showing his contempt for that body. Once, riding from Boston to Cambridge with a load of law books, he was accosted by a young Harvard man with the remark: "You have quite a load, Mr. Paine. Law books, I suppose?" "Oh, no," was the answer, "only supreme court reports."

About Bald People.

Most bald people are found to lead indoor lives, and almost all of them belong to the intellectual class. Usually the loss of hair begins before the thirtieth year. In woman it usually constitutes a general thinning; in man it affects the top of the head. Diseases that affect the general nutrition of the body are likely to thin the hair.

SPARROWS PURSUE A CAT.

How a Tabby Lost Her Life by Encouraging Her Marauding Disposition.

The ivy which climbs the north wall of the United Congregational church in Newport, R. I., furnishes a retreat for thousands of sparrows. A cat had noticed the birds, and no doubt conceived the unreasonable idea that here she might possibly find a nest with a toothsome young bird in it. So pussy climbed the ivy and reached a point where she had seen one of the birds disappear amid the thick leaves. Stretching out its paws where it supposed a nest would be a loud chattering ensued and a myriad of sparrows darted out and attacked the cat with fury. It was indeed a vicious onslaught. They pecked and chattered and fluttered at a great rate and the cat was bewildered. To free itself from the assault the cat spit and fought and howled, but it was of no use, the birds kept at it until their enemy fell to the ground. This did not stop the combat of the birds. They kept pecking away until they were tired. The cat did not move and occasionally a sparrow would drop to the ground a safe distance from its enemy, as if to see if it was dead. Some little time afterward a witness of this strange struggle went to the spot and found that the cat was dead. Its eyes had been literally dug out and its head was a mass of bleeding wounds.

PAYING DUTY IN KIND.

One Case Where a Thieving Turk Was Bitten—How Justice Is Meted Out.

The rapacity of Turkish officials of all sorts is notorious, but that of the customs officers exceeds all other kinds. An interesting instance of paying duty in kind is to be recorded. An official of the British embassy bought in Paris a dress for his wife, for which he paid £10. The customs official valued it at £20 and demanded duty on that amount. The Englishman protested, and, knowing the law, said they might keep the dress, paying him the value they had fixed upon it, less the eight per cent. This was done, and a month later at the public auction of confiscated goods he bought back the dress for £6, thus getting the dress for nothing and making a profit of £39 in the bargain.

Justice is meted out rapidly in Turkey. On one occasion a Kurd picked up a tobacco box in the street, which was promptly claimed by an Armenian. Just as they were coming to blows a policeman interfered. Both Armenian and Kurd claimed the box; when the former suggested that the Kurd should say what was in it. "Tobacco and cigarette paper," promptly answered the Kurd. "Nothing of the sort," cried the Armenian. "It contains only a five piastre piece." The box was gravely opened by the policeman, who then said: "The Armenian is right and the Kurd is a liar." Here he smote the Kurd's head. "Furthermore, Allah be praised!—for my trouble in deciding this complicated case I keep the five piastres."

EARNINGS VERY LARGE.

Sleeping Cars Pay for Themselves in Considerably Less Than a Year.

The well-patronized sleeping car pays for itself in considerably less than a year. Take the run from New York to Chicago, 1,000 miles. Every road in the United States pays three cents a mile for the privilege of hauling a sleeper, and contracts to return said car in as good shape as it is received and to pay for all damages. The journey on the limited expresses to Chicago is made in 24 hours, therefore the car earns $30 a day for travel.

If it is full, which is generally the case, receipts from berths, sections and staterooms amount to $185, making a total revenue of $215 a day. Out of this must come the wages of the porter and conductor—the latter, however, usually, having charge of several cars—the towels, sheets, soap, ice, etc., the whole amounting to but a small sum. Then there are the wear and tear and general depreciation, the daily cleaning, the annual refitting and repainting. Set these charges down at ten per cent, and give the car three trips a week of 1,000 miles each, and we have its earnings at over $60,000 annually. Some can earn a great deal more.

THIS BIRD CAME BACK.

It Returned Alone from California to Its Home in Rogers Park, Ill.

A story illustrating the remarkable instinct sometimes displayed by birds is told by a Rogers Park man, says the Chicago Chronicle. He had a pet oriole to which a friend visiting him from California took a great fancy. Although the bird had been in the family since the day it was picked up as a fledgling by the head of the household, the Californian was made its owner. The gift was so appreciated that the oriole became the Californian's companion on the return journey to the Pacific coast. Of course the bird was caged during the trip, but it was allowed a degree of domestic freedom on its arrival near the Golden Gate. Soon the Rogers Park man heard that the pet had disappeared. Fancy his surprise when he awoke one morning to find the bird scratching at one of the summer screens of his bedroom window. The exiled oriole had returned, but it was always by a mystery to the owner how the long journey was made—whether the homeward flight of the little pet was across the great divide of the Rocky mountains or by way of the no less trying route of the Arizona deserts.

With reference to the dedication of the athlete at public schools, the Oxford Magazine has the following: "It appears that a few days back the vice chancellor received the following letter from a gentleman: 'How much would I have to pay for the education of my son in your university? Let me know if I shall have to pay more in case my son, besides rowing, should wish to learn to read and write.'"

CHOICE IN COLOR OF MEAT.

It Is a Fallacy to Suppose That White Is More Desirable Than Dark.

In a recent series of articles published in a German medical journal, Dr. Offer and Rosenquist deal with the opinion that has been accepted by many that white meats are more suitable for the sick, owing to greater digestibility and the presence of less uric acid and nitrogenous extractive. This belief is shaken by the analyses made by the medical men referred to, which show that while white meats, such as poultry and fish, do in certain cases, as fish and fresh venison, contain less extractive and nitrogenous derivatives, the average amount does not appreciably differ in dark and white meats such as poultry, veal, beef, pork, mutton, etc., to make either preferable.

They point out that the only way of limiting the ingestion of these deleterious extractive and nitrogenous substances is by diminishing the amount of meat taken, rather than by forbidding dark meats. They also assert that among the extractive present in meat the most important ones are by no means harmful if taken in small quantities, as is ordinarily done. The same holds good as regards the other organic extractives which are nitrogenous.

HOW PLANTS GAIN WEIGHT.

Their Growth in Avordupois Comes Wholly from Gas in the Air.

As far as is known the first botanical experiment ever performed was conducted by a Dutchman. He placed in a pot 200 pounds of dried earth, and in it he planted a willow branch which weighed five pounds. He kept the whole covered up and daily watered the earth with rain water. After five years' growth the willow was again weighed and was found to have gained 164 pounds. The earth in the pot was dried and weighed and had lost only two ounces.

The experimentalist, therefore, looked upon this experiment as supporting the theory that plants required no food but water. But he was wrong. Later it was discovered that much of the increase in weight of plants was derived from carbonic acid gas in the air.

Vegetable cells contain a liquid known as "cell sap," which is water holding in solution various materials which have been taken up from without by the roots and leaves. Thus it is in the living cells of the plant that those "digestive" processes are carried on which were once believed to occur in the soil.

LONG SERVICE AS COUNSEL.

John Fowler, the United States consul at Chefoo, China, has been in the government service ever since reaching manhood—for 21 years. Beginning in 1879 as a clerk in the Washington navy yard, where he stayed two years, he was later transferred to the Tallapoosa and stayed on her till she was wrecked in 1885. Ten years ago he was appointed consul at Ning-Poo by President Harrison, whence he was transferred to Chefoo by President Cleveland in 1896.

HUMBERT'S PECULIARITIES.

Didn't Care for His Army and Disliked Conventionalities—What He Enjoyed.

"Did the Italians like Humbert pretty well?" was asked of a well-known Americanized Italian the other day after the receipt of the news of the assassination of the king of Italy. "I see by the newspaper dispatches that he was extremely beloved," responded the Italian. "Well, what are the facts in the case; was he really popular?" "Not at all. He took little interest in anything or anybody. He cared so little for his big army that to my personal knowledge he was never inside the barracks of his own King's guards." "What did he care for? He must have been interested in something." "All he cared for was to go shooting or get out to some country-house, where he could yawn without covering his mouth with his hand."

MORAL SUASION ON A DOG.

How a Minister Easily Overcame the Antipathy of a Belligerent Canine.

A clergyman who went up into the country to preach and lived there a considerable time had occasion in his ministrations to drive regularly over a certain road. At a house on that road lived a big bulldog which always came out and attacked him viciously. The minister stood this for a good while, until finally, as he drove past one winter night in a low sleigh, a means of correcting the dog by moral suasion occurred to him. He stopped his horse in the road before the house. The dog rushed out madly, barking and threatening to jump into the sleigh. The minister sat in his sleigh and paid no attention. The dog retired, returned to the assault, retired again, and a third time rushed out to the attack, but did not touch the man. Then he returned to the doorstep and laid down, apparently utterly crestfallen and disgusted with such a man; and, as he paid no further attention, the minister drove off. After this the minister drove many times past the house, but the dog paid no attention to him, and never seemed to see him at all. He was cured.

Bees in the Telephone Business.
