Mr. R. A. Sonn, the superintendent of the Orphans' Home, Atlanta, Ga., and business manager of The Magnet, a new quarterly publication the entire proceeds of which are devoted to the Home, was in the city last Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday in the interest of that magazine. At the meeting of Rimmon Lodge last Sunday night Mr. Sonn was called upon to make a few remarks relative to the Home. In doing so he mentioned the very creditable fact that during the entire time he had been connected with the institution the word "orphan" had never been used by him or his wife in the presence of a child. It was rather their effort to make the children feel that it was in reality a home and he and Mrs. Sonn the father and mother. Mr. Sonn was quite successful in his mission, and to the credit of the Jewish community be it said that refusals were very rare.
